At Last They Got Him. Money Did It, as Usual. Air Wisdom, and Nonsense. New Coins for Austria.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

IT TOOK FIFTEEN federal agents, all expert gunmen, to "get" Dillinger. And they got him by surprise, thanks to a woman's "tip that he was to be in a certain theater," a tip supposed to have been well paid for. It was no "detective work." Dillinger was killed as he had killed others, without a chance of escape, like a trapped coyote, and now he knows, if he knows anything, that as a profession "crime does not pay."

LIKE OTHER conspicuous bandits, Dillinger was rather stupid, and decidedly conceited, a small brain, with a big opinion of himself.

He has the "asymmetrical" face of the typical criminal, one eye higher than the other, a face badly formed. His death was inevitable, once the national government took an interest in him, and offered large cash rewards.

The reward system seems to produce results. There would always be somebody ready to sacrifice Dillinger's life for $5,000, just as he was ready to kill anybody for less than that.

DILLINGER WAS "an Indiana farmboy," born right in this glorious country, not one of those "undesirable aliens" supposed to be responsible for all our woes.

He was jailed and should have been kept jailed, but a parole board let him out to "help his old father on the Indiana farm."

Thirteen Dillinger murders followed that stupid parole.

The movie that Dillinger saw, appropriately, was "Manhattan Melodrama," showing New York gamblers and racketeers. As is usual with criminals, the dead man did not lack self-approval. "I guess," said he, "my only bad habit is robbing banks. I smoke very little and don't drink much."

Henceforth, as regards this world, his conduct will be even more nearly perfect.

THE WAR DEPARTMENT'S special aviation committee says the Army should have two thousand three hundred and twenty planes, with corresponding increases in flying men. It also says there should NOT be one department controlling all air forces, which is pitiful idiocy.

Mr. Baker must remember what happened when he was Secretary of War and the flying machines of this country sent to Europe were a joke among nations, our flying men compelled to borrow from France and England planes that would really fly.

HOWEVER, THE big men in the Army and Navy are not fliers, and feel that they should have their little separate flying units to play with.

Col. Lindbergh recommends airplane engines of 1,500 horsepower and Capt. Rickenbacker, the outstanding flier of the United States, our greatest "ace" in the big war, recommends planes that will develop 500 miles an hour speed. Both suggestions are good and both have been made repeatedly for years past by Gen. William Mitchell, head of our air force in the big war.

WITH SO MANY attacks on religion in Germany, Russia, Spain and other countries, it will encourage the devout to learn the reverence for sacred things still exists.

The Austrian Dictator, Dollfuss is issuing new silver coins that will show on one side the Austrian coat of arms, a double eagle, and on the other the

DILLINGER VICTIM OF LOVE FEUD

Mob Around Corpse Jostles Old Man Waiting for Son

By GEORGE C. GALLATI
International News Service.

CHICAGO, July 24.—While the bullet-pierced body of John Dillinger was prepared today for a 200-mile trip in a hearse it was disclosed that two ex-convicts and the mysterious "woman in red" sold out America's super-outlaw for the reward money and to avenge an old love rivalry.

Through a wall of secrecy maintained by federal sleuths came reports that "the woman in red," who was with Dillinger as he left the Biograph Theater to be ambushed and slain, was under heavy guard to prevent gangdom vengeance.

OLD MAN SEES SON

Meanwhile, old John Dillinger looked upon his wayward son for the first time since that much-publicized family reunion down in Mooresville, Ind., on April 8.

On that occasion the desperado was extremely "hot"—the most hunted man in the blood-besmirched underworld. Today he was cold in death.

Old John bore up remarkably well. Even while he looked at the still form of his boy in stoic silence, federal agents and police pushed on in frantic search for five other members of the slain terrorist's mob. A manhunt was on in desperation, but old John was hardly interested.

He had been shoved and elbowed and harassed by milling throngs ever since he arrived here yesterday in a decrepit 1927 hearse to claim the remains of his son.

IGNORES CURIOUS CROWD

Today he sat quietly in an undertaking parlor, scarcely heeding the excitement around him, while thousands were permitted to stream past the body of his son.

Shortly was to begin the long home of the outlaw's sister, Mrs.

BANK BANDITS FLEE BULLETS

International News Service.

OXFORD, Kan., July 24.—Four bandits, believed to include three who escaped from Texas State Prison Sunday, looted the Oxford State Bank today of $5,000 and escaped in a hail of bullets with four hostages.

Three of the captives, Homer Jester, cashier of the bank; Daisy Bay, a bookkeeper, and Marion Carson, lumber company employe, were released a short distance from Oxford, but P. E. Donley, assistant cashier, was taken to Arkansas City, Kan., before being freed.

The bandits seized Donley as he approached the bank and compelled him to open the door. Jester and Miss Bay were seized as they arrived at the bank, and Carson was waylaid by the bandit guard and compelled to get into the bandit car.

Otto Wenrich, a director of the bank, noticing Donley being escorted into the bank by the strange men, quietly spread an alarm.

Several businessmen, armed with shotguns and pistols, stood by and when the bandits emerged from the bank let go a volley of bullets.

Sleuth Solves Theft With Rye Grain Clue

MERCER, Pa., July 24.—A grain of rye furnished the clue which led to the arrest of William Kowalewski, 19, and solved the robbing of the home of Mrs. Edward Zahniser of $28 two weeks ago.

County Detective Samuel Leyshock descovered the grain on the floor. He learned Kowalewski, who had been working in the rye field near the Zahniser home, was missing. When the boy returned home he was arrested, confessed, and has been held for court.

Jailed in Hunt For Skidmore, Hilltop Gunman

George Skidmore, Pittsburgh's fugitive gunman who shoots first, then doesn't wait to ask questions, skidded back into the headlines today.

Either Skidmore, who is wanted here for murder, or somebody who looks like him was under arrest in Atlanta, Ga.

Skidmore is under indictment here for the murder of Charles Hamon, 22, crippled attendant slain in the holdup of a gasoline station at Boggs and Warrington avenues in September, 1930.

In Atlanta the prisoner said he was E. M. Duncan, manager of a small apartment house there. He was arrested on the tip of a private detective who had seen a photograph of Skidmore in a detective magazine.

Detective Inspector Sam Wheeler telegraphed Atlanta police for a description and photograph of the prisoner.

The descriptions of the prisoner and Skidmore tallied, even to the part of their hair.

Duncan, denying that he was Skidmore, asserted he was serving in the Navy when the crippled Hamon was murdered.

Skidmore is not overly fond of the police. In 1930 an "army" of 300 police and armed farmers cornered him in a hunting camp on Rattlesnake Mountain near Bellefonte.

Skidmore shot his way out, wounding two state highway patrolmen. Since then he has evaded his searchers. He is known as a sure-shot, whether on a rifle range or fighting it out with the law.

One other suspect remains a fugitive in the Hamon murder. He is Henry White, alias Uccillino, also under indictment.

A third, Eugene Batdorf, 20, of McKees Rocks, has been convicted and is serving a life term.

1,200 ARRESTED IN VIENNA PLOT

VIENNA, July 24.—(AP.)—Twelve hundred Socialists were arrested today in connection with an alleged plot to overthrow the Dollfuss government. It was the biggest roundup of political prisoners since the bloody February civil war.

Political police were picking up threads of evidence which they said indicated Socialists, Communists and Nazis had merged into a common front for a huge campaign of terror against the Fascist government.

Government circles also suggested that the new "terroristic front" has a common source of money and explosives in Germany.

Two Socialist bombers, convicted by a court martial of dynamiting the Danube River Bank Railway, were sentenced to death today. The death sentences were the first imposed since Chancellor Dollfuss started his latest drive against terrorists.

Ruth Bryan Owen Plans Home Visit

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(AP.)—Minister Ruth Bryan Owen, first United States woman diplomat, will make her first return visit from her Danish post in a Coast Guard ship.

Mrs. Owen, daughter of the late William Jenning Bryan, plans to accompany the director of the Greenland Administration on his annual trip from Copenhagen to Greenland. The Coast Guard ship will pick her up at Godthaab, Greenland, in September and convey her to this country.

M'NAIR QUITS POLICE QUIZ OVER CASH

Mayor Loses Interest In Probe as He Hears Of Plea for $3,500

Mayor McNair is not interested in the Police Research Commission report charging police graft—the commission's request for $3,500 expenses spoiled it for him.

His Honor didn't read the report, or anything like that, but he did read newspaper accounts of it, he revealed today, until he came to that part about money. Then, he said:

"I quit."

But the Mayor did say he was glad to see the lawyers getting paid, because he's a lawyer himself. The lawyer referred to might be Dennis Mulvihill, counsel for the commission, who may be paid a retainer for services.

Meanwhile, the report awaits discussion before Council's Public Safety Committee Thursday. Council is expected to be more interested in it than is McNair.

The report slashed at the Civil Service Commission, urging that any action to bring the city detectives into Civil Service should await until a non-partisan Civil Service group is appointed.

It charged "entrenched graft" and "improper influences" perpetrated the police department during the present, as well as the past administrations.

STATE CONTROL URGED

It hinted that a solution would lie in a state police system, or a local system subsidized by the state and must meet the requirements of the state.

Dr. Elmer D. Graper, chairman of the commission, is known to favor such a system. In England, Scotland Yard has the authority to suspend the subsidy to any local police group when its standards fall below those demanded by the Yard.

Such a plan, Dr. Graper believes, would function in Pennsylvania.

Yesterday the preliminary report was presented in Council and

RAIN HALTS U. S. TENNIS RALLY

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Sports Writer.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 24.—With Sidney Wood making a supreme bid to reclaim America's waning tennis fortunes by taking a lead of two sets to none over Jack Crawford, Australian star, further play was postponed by rain today in the Davis Cup interzone finals between America and Australia.

Wood, rallying gallantly in the face of what had seemed almost inevitable failure for the American cause, won the first two sets today, 6-3 and 9-7.

Play will be resumed at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow.

When the round got under way, the Anzacs were leading two points to one, as a result of defeating both Wood and Frank Shields in Saturday's opening singles, while losing the doubles yesterday to George Lott and Lester Stoefen. The Australians, therefore, needed only one victory in the remaining two singles matches to assure themselves of a place in the challenge round against England.

If Wood should win tomorrow, Shields still will have to defeat Vivian McGrath.

Divorce Plea Accuses Homestead Politician

Charging an affair between his wife and Ross Thomas, Homestead politician, James E. Sumpter, of Lincoln way, McKeesport, filed a libel in divorce against his wife, Mrs. Virtue Aline Sumpter, of 260 Cedar boulevard, Mt. Lebanon, today.

Mrs. Sumpter and Thomas, arrested on morality charges last May, are both under bond for court trial. They were arrested on informations made by the husband, who avers he found them together in an Oakland rooming house.

The Sumpters were married secretly in Oakland, Md., in September, 1921, while the husband was a student in Carnegie Tech. Mrs. Sumpter was a junior in high school at Fairmont and the marriage was kept secret until she graduated a year later.

Later they were residents of Dormont and Mt. Lebanon.

'DR. E.J.S.' CLUE IN DROWNING

The body of an unidentified man whose shirt bore a monogram, "Dr. E. J. S." was recovered from the Allegheny River today near the Sixth Street Bridge.

The man was well dressed and had been in the water only a few hours, according to morgue officials. In his pockets were found two bags which had contained popcorn or peanuts purchased from "Glen's peanut stand, below the postoffice."

The man was about 40, had brown hair, slightly gray; blue-gray eyes, a scar above the left eye. He wore a pair of striped slacks, a white shirt and tan shoes. A Braddock physician whose initials correspond with those on the shirt said he was "very much alive", and did not recall giving away any shirts.

Norman Arrives For U. S. Vacation

NEW YORK, July 24.—(INS.)—Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, was on his way to Bar Harbor, Me., today for a quiet vacation after refusing bluntly to discuss international finance with reporters.

Arriving on the same boat was George L. Harrison, governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank. Harrison said he had gone to Europe only to familiarize himself with conditions there.

Kreisler Disputes U. S. Income Taxes

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(AP.)—Fritz Kreisler, the musician and composer, filed a petition with the Board of Tax Appeals today disputing $30,042 in 1931 income taxes. Mrs. Harriett Kreisler, his wife, contested $12,810.

Kreisler was assessed $28,481 in taxes and a penalty of $1,424. In addition, he claimed an overpayment of $137.

Mrs. Sloan Ill; Cavalcade Owner

GLEN COVE, N. Y., July 24.—(AP.)—Mrs. Isabelle Dodge Sloane, owner of the famous Brookmeade Racing Stable, has been critically ill since Friday with pneumonia at the North Country Community Hospital, it was learned today.

The owner of Cavalcade and High Quest passed a crisis last night, progressing satisfactorily.

Boy and Man Drown in River; Child Rescued

A frightened boy of 12 was drowned in Sharpsburg today, a drowned man was found in the Allegheny River under the Sixth Street Bridge, and on the North Side a 3-year-old child had a narrow escape from a similar fate.

John Warnert, of 211 Fourteenth street, Sharpsburg, became frightened when the skiff on which he and two other boys were standing floated away from the Allegheny shore. He jumper and was drowned. Too late, his body was recovered by Samuel Lamonica, 20, of Sharpsburg.

In the Allegheny River, below the north end of the Sixth Street Bridge, was found the body of elderly Louis R. Weiseman. He had been dead just a few hours. A newspaper clipping in his clothes told of a divorce action filed by L. R. Weiseman against Carrie Weiseman.

Three-year-old Richard Schmidt "just walked" away from his home, 509 East Ohio street, and all but drowned, but he enjoyed the experience.

He wandered to nearby Lake Elizabeth and saw "Skippy," a water spaniel, splashing about in the water.

This seemed like great sport to Richard, so as "Skippy" swam out Richard walked in.

"Skippy" was leaving with his masters, 14-year-old Harry Reilly and father, Peter Reilly, of rear 20 Sampson street, when the Reillys happened to glance back.

They saw only Richard's feet floating in the water. The rest of him was submerged. The elder Reilly yelled to his son:

"Get in there after him, Harry!"

Boy Killed in Fall From Apple Tree

A boy was killed this afternoon in a 15-foot ball from an apple tree. Joseph Findish, 17, of 111 South Thirteenth street, fell when the limb of a tree snapped in Crane avenue extension woods, Beechview. He was dead when the ambulance reached South Side Hospital.

His companion, Steve Swidarski, 14, of South Sixteenth street, told the police they had planned to take the apples to their homes.

HAWAII THRONGS HAIL ROOSEVELT

ABOARD CRUISER NEW ORLEANS WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT IN KAILUA BAY, Hawaii, July 24.—(AP.)—The cruiser Houston nosed into Kailua Bay at daybreak today, bringing President Roosevelt to Hawaii Island, largest of the Hawaiian group.

A brilliant sun of the eastern horizon outlined the cruisers Houston and New Orleans to the early morning crowds waiting on the shore of the cone-crested island to greet the first President to visit this American possession.

Mr. Roosevelt reserved his plans for the day until a visit from Gov. Joseph Poindexter, who came from Honolulu to extend a formal welcome.

A full moon made the island visible to the President far at sea before he retired last night. The village of Napoopoo, scattered among the cocoanut trees under the Hawaiian cliffs, awaited the possible landing of the President.

The spot was reported to have good fishing and boats will be ready for parties to try their luck later in the day. Ships crews will land for the Luau native festival near Napoopoo Monument. Capt. James Cook, early English explorer, was killed here by natives in 1779.

The Coast Guard cutter carrying Gov. Poindexter brought the first mail to the President since he left Panama.

STEERS SHOT AS HELPERS WALK OUT

Chicago Pens Glutted As 1,500 Quit Jobs; Market Closed

CHICAGO, July 24.—(AP.)—Weakened animals had to be shot at the glutted Union Stockyards today as a strike stopped efficient feeding and watering in a blistering temperature. The Livestock Commission Men's Union, Local 519, joined a walkout of stock handlers at the Chicago Union Stockyards today, bringing the total on strike to 1,500, as the temperature hovered around the 100 mark. The commission men had helped handle the animals and when they quit only a handful of workers remained to feed and water the 75,000 head of stock.

MARKET CLOSED

There was no market and the action of the commission men put an end to all hopes that there would be one today.

A police cordon was hastily thrown about the yards. Wires were dispatched to all shipping points to hold their shipments. Farmers were forced to take their truck loads of cattle home.

The paralysis of the yards began at midnight. The first to leave were livestock handlers, totaling 750 workers. The action of the 750 commission men was taken after the scheduled time for the opening of the market.

YARDS PICKETED

About 400 pickets, carrying signs calling the yards company unfair, sat peacefully on the sidelines watching the emergency activities. Lieut. Thomas Flannagan, with a detail of 60 police, patrolled the yard roadways.

The strikers, members of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers' Union of America, Local 517, last night submitted a list of 12 demands, through their attorney, but would not, O. T. Henkle, president of the company, claimed, fix a time for their strike. They asked a 48-hour minimum work week, with pay increased correspondingly.

With water supplies none too large, with many of the pens destroyed in the recent stockyards fire not yet rebuilt, the strike in the yards held serious possibilities, observers agreed. Even before it began, Henkle had asked government buyers to check the enormous shipments of cattle they had been sending into the yards from the blighted pasture lands of the Plains states.

LIVESTOCK SHOT

So fast were cattle arriving that government agents were posted yesterday at the unloading pens, to shoot stock which staggered and held back the stronger animals. The handlers worked frantically, in a blistering sun, to dispose of shipments which almost reached the all-time record of 49,128 head.

The Regional Labor Board, which arranged the negotiations leading to last November's settlement, prepared to take a hand again today. Carl Steffensen, secretary of the board, was en route from Wisconsin to attempt arbitration.

First Lady Secret Guest Of Daughter on Ranch

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

RENO, Nev., July 24.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President, came quietly into Nevada and spent five days with her daughter, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, on the secluded Arrowhead D ranch, 40 miles northeast of Reno, it was learned today.

Mrs. Dall is in Nevada to establish residence and file suit to divorce Curtis B. Dall, New York broker. She is living with Mr. and Mrs. William Dana, who own the Arrowhead D ranch.

Secrecy was thrown about the visit of Mrs. Roosevelt. Every effort is being made to shield Mrs. Dall from publicity.

Mother and daughter were almost constantly in each other's company during Mrs. Roosevelt's visit. Mrs. Roosevelt enjoyed again seeing her grandchildren, Eleanor Ann Dall 7, and Curtis Dall, 4. They lived at the White House with Mrs. Dall during the last year.

Mrs. Roosevelt on several mornings arose early and went horseback riding in the desert canyon backroads with Mrs. Dana.

After her five-day visit, Mrs. Roosevelt left as quietly as she came. Even the local newspapers had no information that she had been in the vicinity.

MINNEAPOLIS LAUNDRY WORKERS DEFY GREEN, JOIN STRIKE

NEW WALKOUT PERILS PEACE PROPOSALS

Longshoremen Vote on Arbitration Waited In San Francisco

By JUSTIN H. FORREST
International News Service.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 24.—Labor war clouds hovered over Minneapolis again today when inside workers in laundries and cleaning plants went on strike at 8 a. m.

Despite a telegram from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, the workers decided to join in a sympathy walkout with the 7,000 union truck drivers.

Green informed N. E. Carle, head of the laundry workers, that the A. F. of L. disapproved of sympathy strikes, and that the charter of the workers would be revoked.

The striking truck drivers insist on representing the "inside workers," an issue which is paramount in the present trucking strike.

Carle, however, issued a bitter attack on Mayor A. G. Bainbridge and Police Chief Michael Johannes, declaring:

"Not a shirt will be ironed, nor a garment cleaned, until these hirelings of the capitalist class are removed."

Members of the employers' committee, including some 166 firms which employ truck drivers, failed to pass finally upon the suggestion made by the Rev. Francis J. Haas and E. H. Dunnigan, federal mediators on the scene, for a settlement of the troubles which have stopped the delivery of produce commission firms and slowed up all other trucking activities.

No official statement was issued as to the plan.

Minneapolis was still filled with troops today, more than 4,000 militiamen being on duty. Gov. Floyd B. Olson and Mayor Bainbridge conferred on the question of convoying trucks by police escort when requested, and indications were that such plans will be continued.

Trucks yesterday were convoyed —some 22 of them during the day —by as many as five police squad cars.

Longshoremen's Vote To Decide Coast Peace

Associated Press.

The nation's labor spotlight swung again today on San Francisco, this time for the counting of ballots, which even strike leaders predict will end the Pacific Coast maritime workers' walkout.

Representatives of the National Longshore Board took the poll yesterday and expected to know the strikers' answer to arbitration proposals tonight. Docks were rapidly being cleared by non-union workers in San Francisco, Portland and Seattle.

In New York, 100 Staten Island bus men struck, delaying 20,000 homeward-bound commuters.

Approximately 850 employes of the Central Foundry Company, Holt, Ala., and about 550 employes of four stove foundries in Rome, Ga., stayed away from their jobs to enforce wage and union demands.

The fate of the hand-made cigar industry in York County, Pa., today rests in the hands of the NRA cigar code authority. A study of the local situation—brought on by a strike that has thrown 5,000 cigar makers out of work—was completed last night by the two-man commission representing the authority. A report was prepared for presentation today in New York.

Formal demands to suppress destruction of property of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company at Butte, Mont., where 7,500 employes are on a strike, were under consideration today by county and city officials. The demands were made by company officials following destruction of a water flume by dynamite and a fire at the West Stewart mine. Firemen were stoned and their equipment damaged by a crowd. Another fire yesterday destroyed an ice building at the Parrot mine.

Gulf to Reinstate Striking Employes

PHILADELPHIA, July 24. —(INS.)—Officials of the Gulf Refining Company today agreed to take back striking employes of their Girard Point plant here without "discrimination" of any sort.

Strenuous efforts are being made to settle the strike of 900 workers, officials of the Gulf Company revealed.

HOT WAVE TOLL 535 IN NATION

Associated Press.

The death toll mounted to 535 today, as intense heat blazed down on the nation, smashing records for intensity and duration.

The blanket of heat, as tenacious and oppressive as a mustard plaster, showed signs of lessening at the edges, but in the Midwest, where its devastating effects are greatest, no relief was sighted.

An unofficial 120-degree temperature was recorded at Muscatine, Ia., and above 100-degree readings were general throughout the Central Western states.

The Atlantic seaboard was cooling, hope for relief was held out for the Southern coastal states and a high pressure area, now over Western Canada, promised relief for the Great Lakes territory.

In Chicago, packers, deluged with record shipments of cattle because of the drought, appealed to government officials to stay the flood of starving animals being bought with federal funds from destitute farmers and shipped there for processing.

Each day added to the hundreds of thousands of dollars of damage to crops and livestock and aggravated human suffering.

Girl Dislikes Girls, So Dresses as Boy

CAMDEN, N. J., July 24—(INS.)—A pretty 19-year-old Raleigh, N. C., girl today was being held by police after she was found dressed in boy's clothes and wandering with three youths along the railroad tracks here. Arrested, the girl, Laura Barnes, told police:

"I don't like girls and don't see why I have to wear girls' clothes."

McNair to Oust His Own Protege

Mayor McNair today ordered a letter prepared dismissing Walter Stifel, one of his appointees as clerk in Traffic Court.

His action followed a resolution adopted by Council calling the Mayor's attention to the charter ordinance of 1901 requiring city employes to be residents of the city for six months. Stifel has been living in Oakmont.

ALUMINUM CO., MEN CONFER

Hope was expressed today that a strike of the aluminum industry which would affect several thousand workers in the New Kensington plants of the Aluminum Company of America could be averted through a conference of the National Council of Aluminum Workers and company officials.

The New Kensington and Arnold lodges of the Aluminum Workers were adamant in their demands for full recognition which virtually meant a closed shop agreement. Midnight tomorrow had been set as the deadline for negotiations.

In Washington, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, was quoted as being hopeful of a settlement. He said:

"I have been advised today that the workers and the management of the plants in the Pittsburgh district have gone into a conference. This is a hopeful sign to me and I anticipate a compromise which eventually will result in a complete settlement."

18TH BUS VICTIM FOUND IN RIVER

OSSINING, N. Y., July 24. —(AP.)—Another name was added today to the list of dead in Sunday's Secor Hill bus accident, the body of the eighteenth victim being recovered from the Hudson River at the foot of the hill.

Twenty-one other persons were still in hospitals with burns suffered when the bus, loaded with 40 members of a Brooklyn Democratic young people's league, went out of control and hurtled over a 30-foot embankment at the New York Central Railroad tracks.

The body recovered today was thought to be that of William Murray, Sr., Brooklyn. It was thought Murray, like others, leaped into the river, crazed with pain. The river has been searched since the accident and fire which followed.

As nearly as authorities could determine, the bus carried three children, 10 women and around 27 men and boys.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 24. —(AP.)—District Attorney Coyne announced today that indictment of "several persons" on charges of manslaughter will be asked of the Westchester County Grand Jury tomorrow as an outgrowth of the outing bus crash which cost 18 lives Sunday.

JUDGE FREES 40 HELD AS REDS

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—(AP.)—Instead of jail sentences, Municipal Judge Sylvian Lazarus today handed out 50-cent pieces to a number of men brought before him as a result of police and so-called "vigilante" raids against radicals following San Francisco's general strike.

When his own silver was gone, Judge Lazarus called on court attaches and friends in the audience for donations during a night court session which lasted far into the morning. He declared:

"I will stay here all night rather than see these unfortunate human beings spend an hour longer in jail. They have been incarcerated a week already."

He dismissed 40 cases, continued 11 for further investigation and set trials for six demanding juries.

Judge Lazarus' attitude was in contrast with that of two other municipal judges who yesterday sentenced many defendants, officially accused of vagrancy, to jail or ordered them turned over to federal immigration authorities for investigation.

More than 300 persons accused by police of being communists or radicals were arrested in the roundup.

STATE DENIES MORALS TRIAL FRAMEUP

Defense Scenario Tale, Says Prosecutor; Case Near Jury

LOS ANGELES, July 24.—(AP.)—Hollywood's "morals" trial neared the end of its startling course today with counsels' final arguments for and against the defendants, Dave Allen and Gloria Marsh.

Only the address of Jerry Geisler, representing Allen; the final argument of Prosecutor Arthur Veitch, and the instructions of Superior Judge B. Rey Schauer remained before the jurors should retire to their deliberations.

Allen, head of Central Casting Corporation, which is maintained by the major film studios for the employment of extra players, and Miss Marsh are accused of participating in an immoral party last April 26 with June De Long, flaxen-haired film extra.

Both defendants have denied the charge. They contended they were lured to Miss De Long's apartment by a ruse and that Allen was "framed" by enemies who sought to have him dismissed as head of the casting corporation.

Prosecutor Veitch in his initial closing address yesterday described the defense contention as an "absurd fabrication" and the figment of a scenario writer's imagination. He shouted:

"The defendant Allen's story on the witness stand is unreasonable. The scenario writer who composed the defense revealed the same approximate knowledge of court procedure as the movies do in their depictions of lawsuits on the screen."

SEEK QUORUM TO IMPEACH LANGER

Legislators' Absence Delays Action in N. Dakota Strife

BISMARCK, N. D., July 24.—(AP.)—North Dakota's legislators today sought a sufficient majority to function as an impeaching body.

All hopes of a quorum in the Senate apparently have been abandoned by the solons, although they voted to meet once more today.

Strengthened by an opinion by Attorney General P. O. Sathre that the House could convene as an impeaching body only, the determined Representatives left the State House yesterday intent upon bringing back enough members to establish a quorum, and the right to vote on resolutions today.

PROBE PLAN DELAYED

Pending concentration of that strength, a resolution appointing a committee to investigate the indictment and conviction of William Langer, ousted Governor, rested inactive in the files of the Speaker of the House. Read Monday, it could not be acted upon because of lack of voting strength. Only 53 Representatives answered the roll call while 57 were needed for a quorum.

The impeachment proceedings would serve as the basis for a complete legislative investigation of the administration of Gov. Langer, his conviction in the Federal Court on a charge of soliciting funds from relief workers, and the method and manner of political contributions for campaign purposes in the state

It was noted by observers that with a friendly Legislature, the Langer administration undoubtedly would be given a clean slate.

PRESS GAG THREATENED

The Senators confined themselves for the most part to oratorical attacks on newspapers and to vocal support of a threat to bar the press from the legislative activity, softened by the qualification of one Senator leading the attack:

"I think as a rule the newspapers want to be honest."

The resolution which may be introduced in the House today, organizing a fact-finding committee, also includes directions to air graft charges in state government made by United States Senator Gerald P. Nye.

Langer asked for investigation of the Nye charges in a statement issued earlier in the day.

NEW UTILITIES TAX PROPOSED

A resolution proposing that public utilities pay for the expense to which the city is subjected by their use of the street was presented in Council yesterday by Councilman John J. Kane.

He held that various utilities do not assume their proportionate share of the expenses for police and fire protection in their use of the streets.

The greater part of the expense to the city, he announced, is the use by utilities of vaults and passages under streets and sidewalks for conduits, branch stations and other facilities. These underlie practically the entire downtown district. When they are installed the city must provide police supervision and engineering inspection to guard against accidents.

The taxpayers, Kane said, pay the bill.

Weather Conditions

Pressure is high over the North Atlantic Coast and over the Northwest, and lows are centered north of the Great Lakes, over the Gulf of Mexico, and in the Far Southwest. The rainfall for the last 24 hours occurred in very widely scattered showers, the most pronounced rainfall area being over the Rocky Mountain states. The skies are mostly clear this morning over the country, and the weather continues warm, especially over the central valleys, where high maximum temperatures occurred again yesterday. The highest reported is 108 degrees at Columbia, and St. Louis, Mo. The high in the Northwest is causing cool weather over that section, the lowest temperature reported being 46 degrees at Edmonton.

River Conditions

The rivers are about stationary. Stage at Franklin is minus two-tenths foot; Lock No. 7, Mon., 10.3; Pittsburgh, 9.6; Dam No. 4, 9.1; No. 6, 9.3; No. 10, 9.6; and No. 12, 9.1. The dams are up.

LEADERS MAKE RELIEF PLEA TO U. S.

Guffey and Lawrence Seek Federal Aid in Pennsylvania Crisis

By JOHN P. COWAN
Sun-Telegraph Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Joseph F. Guffey, Pennsylvania Democratic leader, with State Democratic Chairman David L. Lawrence, are here today in an effort to obtain an increase in federal aid from the Federal Emergency Relief Administration and to have monthly allotments continued until the state's fiscal affairs are improved.

In the absence of Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, Guffey and Lawrence called upon Marvin H. McIntyre, President Roosevelt's secretary, at the White House, and made a plea for increased funds.

MOVE STIRS COMMENT

In announcing the August allotment a few days ago, the FERA reduced the fund about half a million dollars, this being the result of a conference between Hopkins and Gov. Gifford Pinchot. Hopkins said that political influence had nothing to do with relief allotments, and relief administration officials who are here are wondering as to the regularity of the Guffey - Lawrence - McIntyre conference. Guffey and Lawrence have no official status in the Pennsylvania and McIntyre has no connection with federal relief activities.

State Senator Chester H. Rhodes, Democratic candidate for Circuit Court Judge, came here with Guffey and Lawrence and met a few Democratic national leaders at the Guffey headquarters in Washington. All scouted the reports of efforts to form a third party in Pennsylvania with Pinchot, Kaufman and Margiotti as key men.

STATE OFFER READY

HARRISBURG, July 24.—(INS.)—The State Emergency Relief Board will return Harry L. Hopkins' ultimatum that the state share in the relief load beginning with September with a reply that $1,250,000 a month from the state liquor stores is the greatest amount it can raise, it was learned today.

Whether that amount will be considered a "reasonable" share of the approximately $10,000,000 being spent monthly for relief in this state can be answered only by Hopkins, federal relief administrator. If the offer is satisfactory, it will obviate the necessity for a special session of the Legislature, it was believed.

FUNDS ALLOTTED

A total of $7,928,704 was allocated by the board at the meeting, leaving a balance of $3,023,217 from the federal grant for August with which to meet works relief payrolls for the month. No specific allocation was made for work relief.

Included in the allocations were:

For August relief, $7,100,771.57; $272,700 for additional July food relief; $175,000 to the Bureau of Transients; $325,000 to the clothing fund; $50,000 for printing stationery and supplies; $5,000 to the federal surplus food account, and $233 to Beaver College for part-time students' jobs in June.

ILL VET ROBBED, WOLGAST HELD

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, July 24.—Accused of robbing a World War veteran after administering "knockout drops," Midget Wolgast, 24, recognized as flyweight boxing champion in some states, was arrested today.

The fighter, whose real name is Joseph Loscalzo, was accused by Joseph Manning, 40, of stealing his $300 bonus money. Manning recently returned from California, where he was a sanitarium patient.

Manning told police he struck up an acquaintance with Wolgast at a hotel last night and they drank beer together. Manning said the fighter went to his room and returned with a bottle of wine.

After drinking the wine Manning fell asleep, he told authorities and awoke to find Wolgast and his bonus money gone.

U. S. Rodeo Impresario Flays British 'Hosts'

NEW YORK, July 24.—(AP.)—A much embittered man, "Tex" Austin, the rodeo impresario, returned to America today deploring the manner in which England received a noble sport.

He lost about $200,000 putting on his rough-riding, steer-throwing exhibitions in England. Austin declared—all because of boycott against him and his act by the British press. He said:

"The entire purpose of this animosity toward us was part of the British program of shutting out all form of foreign entertainment."

During a previous tour of the island, in 1924, Austin said, only three animals were killed. He continued:

"Yet in the same year, when the Grand National was run, there were four horses killed and there were no charges against the riders or their owners of cruelty to animals."

Austin charged that the British press carried on a campaign against him, based on the claim that the rodeo meant injuring animals, and continued:

"The trouble with the British is that they worship animals. We cowboys believe that animals are put here for a purpose, and that throwing a steer and hog-tying him is as natural as eating or sleeping.

"But the British leaders have become finicky. They'd like a golden calf. Something they could worship."

Austin and his entertainers will leave shortly for various rodeos in the South and West. But they won't go back to England.

City Heart Beats Warm For Ill 'Tent Lady'

BROOKLYN, July 24.—(AP.)—The heart of the city, too often libeled, beats warm and true on Lincoln place.

Mrs. Margaret Berger lies ill under a tent in the yard of the Brooklyn Women's Hospital. She might have died.

Mrs. Berger, after becoming the mother of a 10-pound girl May 29, was found to be suffering from a serious ailment, necessitating an operation. Her strength waned.

Fresh air was an essential if she were to survive; fresh air and quiet. She was too ill to be moved daily to the hospital porch.

Someone suggested a tent be pitched in the back yard, and it was done. Of course, there would be noise—children playing and pianos and mechanical music machines pouring brassy tunes from open windows.

Two six-story apartment buildings stand close by. From the windows housewives, working to the music of their radios or with one ear policing a child's piano practice, saw the tent and wondered. Somebody made inquiry.

The word spread that under the little tent lay a woman near death, whose only hope of life lay in quiet and fresh air.

The heart of the city beat in sympathy. Radios and pianos were hushed. Children no longer screamed and shouted at play.

For 10 days now there has been no party in either apartment building. No radio has been turned on, no piano touched. These apartment house dwellers don't know Margaret Berger, yet each day they send flowers, and constantly they ask:

"How is the lady in the tent today?"

The lady is much better. Within a week or two she will be able to leave her tent and go home, well on the way to recovery. The heart of the city, too often libeled, is seeing to that.

JACK LAIT SEES 'THE GUY THAT CROAKED DILLINGER'

FEDERAL AGENT SLATED FOR PROMOTION

Lieutenant of Purvis Gets Credit for Killing Thug

By JACK LAIT
International News Service.

CHICAGO, July 24.—The man who has the deepest notch in his gun in the world is Samuel A. Cowley. He is the man who killed John Dillinger. Cowley is first assistant to Melvin Purvis, chief of the United States Bureau of the Department of Justice here.

Agents of the department are traditionally instructed that they must have no individual identities. But no departmental regulations are big enough to obscure in anonymity the man who sent three bullets through the world's most notorious bad man.

I stood beside Cowley last night in the morgue beside the body of the man whom he had so well rubbed out. Cowley, dressed in somber black despite the blistering heat, gazed down upon the clump of clay he had delivered in the name of the job, pulled at a smelly cigar, and watched the internes go through the routine of identifying as John Dillinger the man he had killed, who I knew was John Dillinger.

SERIES OF BREAKS

I got in the morgue through a series of breaks. With me was a Chicago cop, who happened to be under rather dramatic obligations to me. My credentials read New York, although that very morgue had been part of my reportorial beat for many years.

Dillinger's body lay before me. Spot news. Details were secondary. I was in that basement room for two hours. That was long enough for secondary details to become primary. Dillinger was dead. The next question was, who killed him?

My copper friend had not been as impressed or as idle as I had been. It was none of his business. He was a finger print expert, and despite the attempt at obliteration, he had Dillinger's deadly marks beyond possible conjecture on the whorls, loops and deltas in 15 minutes after we got there. I had interviewed Dillinger in the Crown Point Jail and didn't need his affirmation—one look, the body still pink and warm, and I knew it was Dillinger.

That was easy. The whole world would soon know it was Dillinger. But the bureau of identification must perfect its records, and my friend, a copper whose star was pinned right through his heart, was going to hand in a complete and competent report. That was okay. He had his work to do and I had mine.

REPORT MADE

I didn't have to file my story for a couple of hours. He had to make his report immediately, and it was one word—"Yes."

He could have left then and gone back to his girl in whose room he had gotten the quick tip that a man was shot, probably Dillinger—and he should beat it—to the morgue.

But I was a reporter in Chicago for many years. And he was my friend. His assignment was cleaned up. Mine wasn't. I stood there, fascinated like a small-town boob on his first obituary. But he was a hard-boiled guy—well, not so very. He mooched around and, presently, he sidled over to me and he said:

"You see that guy with the black suit on and the cigar? He's a government dick, and he's going to be promoted."

That didn't particularly interest me. I knew a $125-a-month government dick who turned up a secretary to the President of the United States. So I asked how that could possibly affect my life. And he pulled down the left corner of his mouth (very much like Dillinger did when I interviewed him at the Crown Point jail) and he said:

"That's the guy that croaked Dillinger!"

I had known him for many years. He had never given me a wrong steer. Melvin Purvis and his Washington chief, J. Edgar Hoover, may think it policy to issued a formidable official denial. Nevertheless, Samuel A. Cowley not only killed John Dillinger, but put all the three bullets that went through him through him.

'Baby Face' Nelson Hunt Vain in Ohio

COLUMBUS, O., July 24.—(INS.)—The hunt for George (Baby Face) Nelson, Dillinger gangster and Public Enemy No. 1, since the death of his chief, was abandoned in Ohio today after a tip received by Sandusky County authorities proved to be a false alarm.

Sandusky County authorities had been told that Nelson was believed to be in a small sedan speeding through Northern Ohio. The highway patrol picked up the car during the night. Its occupants were Wisconsin tourists.

'New Dillinger' Held in Murder

LOS ANGELES, July 24.—(INS.)—Racing to the aid of John Meyers, 34, a holdup victim, Patrolman Russell A. Leidy, 32, was shot to death by two men. Later captured and charged with murder were two who gave their names as Paul McDonald, 24, and Harry Wilson, 20. The latter screamed "I'm the new Dillinger," as officers arrested him shortly after they said he had pumped bullet after bullet into the body of Leidy, who had fallen helpless at the first bullet.

EVELYN WEEPS FOR DILLINGER

International News Service.

MILAN, Mich., July 24.—John Dillinger's sweetheart sat on the edge of her cot in a cell in the women's division of the federal penitentiary here.

The cell lock clicked and Warden John J. Ryan entered. The warden said:

"Evelyn, he's gone!"

The girl looked up. Her dark eyes filled with tears. But all she said was:

"That's too bad. Thanks for tellin' me. Too bad."

That, according to Ryan, is how Evelyn Frechette, pretty black-haired sweetheart of Dillinger, took the news of his death. Ryan said:

"She didn't seem to want to talk about it."

Miss Frechette is serving a two-year federal sentence for harboring Dillinger in St. Paul.

Dillinger Death Laid To Rivalry in Love

Audry Hancock, where the funeral trek back to the Maywood, Ind., will be held. The old man said:

"John will have a good Christian burial like his mother would want him to have."

NEW MANHUNT ON

Dillinger's slaying had hardly been pronounced "justifiable homicide" by a coroner's jury before federal investigators under Melvin Purvis, chief of the Department of Investigation here, took steps to trap the remaining five members of Dillinger's ruthless gang of outlaws still at liberty.

Their weakness for women, the same which lured Dillinger himself into the range of federal agents' guns, will be employed to trap the five, George (Baby Face) Nelson, Homer van Meter, Joseph Fox, John Hamilton and Joseph Burns.

NAME HELD SECRET

Her name held secret and even the fact that she is being held denied by federal investigators, "the woman in red," according to well-founded reports, is either a sister or the wife of a former Dillinger gangster.

Her motives for putting "the finger" on the desperado were to gain the reward money expected to aggregate $15,000 and to obtain leniency for a male relative who is reported to be charged with mail robbery.

In the naming of two ex-convicts—Fred Brennan and Clifford Mohler—as having taken a part in the betrayal it was reported that one of them had co-operated in bringing about Dillinger's death because the outlaw had stolen another hoodlum's girl.

The two ex-convicts had worked with Dillinger in the shirt factory at the Michigan City (Ind.) Penitentiary. They were last reported to be living in East Chicago, Ill., whence came Police Capt. Timothy O'Neill and five other officers Sunday with the definite information that Dillinger was to view the gangland motion picture, "Manhattan Melodrama," at the Biograph Theater.

AGREEMENT MADE

Capt. O'Neill and Sergt. Martin Zarkovich had negotiated with Mohler, Brennan and the woman to the end that an end to Dillinger's crime career was arranged and an agreement made for payment of the reward.

Because to reveal the woman's identity would mean an almost certain death at the hands of the five hardened gangsters still at large, Purvis and his staff hushed up all mention of any woman. Purvis said:

"I can't say whether the tipster is a man or woman. All I will say is that the information was not given by a sweetheart of Dillinger."

Throwing doubt on the federal denial that "the woman in red" was under guard, was the brief police report of Sergts. James Frawley and Hugh Olsen, who were at the scene of the shooting. It read:

"At about 10:30, Dillinger, with a girl on each arm, came out of the theater.

"The two woman companions with him were placed under arrest. We were unable to learn their names."

Bent on discovering a possible cache of some of the thousands of dollars in cash and securities stolen by the Dillinger gang in bank raids in recent months, police and federal agents were combing the territory about the shooting scene for the outlaw's hideout. Dillinger was carrying only $7 and some change when he was shot down.

200 HUNTING LOOT

Two hundred police were co-operating in the search for the hideout which is expected to restore the vast loot taken in wholesale raids on banks throughout the Middle West—raids that left a shocking trail of blood in their wake.

Sixteen men were slain in the search for and depredations of the super-outlaw.

Federal agents were meanwhile keeping a close watch over the surgeon who did the "face-lifting" operation on Dillinger in attempt to disguise the outlaw. The physician's identity is known, investigators admitted, but his arrest was being delayed in the hope that other members of the Dillinger gang might be traced through him.

Spoil Death Masks Of Slain Terrorist

CHICAGO, July 24.—(INS.)—No death masks of John Dillinger will be made.

Six men invaded the morgue today, said they had permission of authorities to make two masks of the slain terrorist and began work on them. A policeman discovered the error, however, and the nearly completed masks were seized and the men ejected.

Dillinger's Things

OWNERS FINED IN DOG ROUNDUP

Following complaints from Mt. Lebanon residents, V. D. Johnson, state dog law enforcement agent for Allegheny County, captured 30 dogs suspected of being responsible for damage to gardens. Twenty-five of the owners were fined $5 and costs each last night at hearings before Justice of the Peace D. E. Hubbard, Mt. Lebanon.

Five owners produced dog licenses which had been taken out before the informations were made against them.

Johnson warned of another offensive against stray dogs in the Mt. Lebanon and Upper St. Clair townships.

POLICE STALK FACE-LIFTER

International News Service.

CHICAGO, July 24.—Federal sleuths today had under close surveillance the surgeon who performed the plastic surgery which gave John Dillinger his disguise.

Delaying his arrest, although his identity is known, Department of Justice operatives hope to trap other Dillinger mobsters by keeping a close watch over his movements, it was explained.

Two incisions had been made in the desperado's face just forward of the ears to give Dillinger's features a more rounded contour. Another stroke of the knife concealed somewhat a conspicuous chin dimple.

Despite the "face-lifting" operation the disguise failed to deceive the federal agents who trapped and shot to death America's No. 1 Public Enemy.

LOVE SPURNED, FARMER'S ALL NOW ASHES

Fate's Tragic Finger Put on Suitor as Romance Fails

RAMSEY, N. J., July 24.—(AP.)—Unrequited love has done this fantastic, this tragic thing to William Storms.

Sunday night was "courtin' night," for a bachelor of 52 may love as ardently as youth. Storms went to Miss Jennie Quackenbush, five years his junior, and asked her hand in marriage. She refused him.

Storms, up early yesterday, returned to press his plea. Perhaps Miss Quackenbush would reconsider. He had money—$3,600—and he felt he was well able to afford marriage. Again she said no.

Then Storms declared:

"Very well. I shall leave town. Without you, there is nothing for me here. I shall take my money and become a wanderer."

Such is love.

THINKS OF HORSES

He went home, after first getting his money from the bank, and took down from the wall a shotgun. His thoughts were of his three horses. He could not take them, nor would he leave them behind perhaps to be abused by a new master. So with the shotgun he would kill them. It seemed better so.

The money—$3,600 in bills—was in his sweater pocket as he entered the barn.

He killed one horse. Flames from the gun barrel shot into a pile of hay, igniting it. Fire flashed up toward the rafters.

In that moment William Storms forgot the sorrows of unrequitted love, forgot his determination to be a wanderer on the face of the earth; forgot all except that he was a farmer, that his two remaining horses were in danger of burning to death, that the barn itself was threatened.

MONEY BURNS

Off came the sweater, to become a flail with which to beat out the fire, now leaping madly through the barn. Repeatedly he swung it until the sweater itself was ablaze. In the pocket crisp bills—$3,600 in crisp bills—burned and were destroyed.

Storms himself was severely burned. He dashed out, as the flames roared through the stable.

Storms died today in a hospital. Ashes are all that remain of his barn, his beloved horses, his money; and ashes, too, is love.

SEES BOY FRIEND DIE IN PRANK

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 24.—The girl and the boy sat on a bench listening as the orchestra played for the dancers.

Five minutes later the boy was dead—slain through a prank, according to state police.

Anthony Buonbrisco and some friends were sitting nearby, shortly before midnight Sunday, during a picnic on the Lazar farm, near Harrison City.

In front of them were 17-year-old Jean Alwine and the girl.

Everybody seemed in good humor.

Somebody began to toss apples and pebbles at Jean and his girl.

Jean protested. There was an argument. They wrestled. Jean was knocked over the bench.

The girl saw him lay there inert. He never rose. His neck was broken, and he was dead.

Sergt. John J. Tomek, of the State Police, said that charges would be filed against Buonbrisco, 22, a barber at McCullough Mine, near Harrison City. He came to this district six months ago from Detroit. He is being held at Greensburg barracks.

River Lowered, Fish Die by Thousands

CALLENSBURG, Pa., July 24.—(AP.)—Lowering of the water level of the Clarion River has left thousands of dead fish on the banks.

An appeal to the State Health Department is planned, the authorities announced. Bass suckers, catfish and other species, attempting to find fresher water in tributaries, were left high and dry at a dam-site, county officials said.

"I have been out of pictures now for two years and I intend to stay out. I'm far too busy being a married woman to bother with the screen again."

News Behind The News

Postal Department's $5,000,000 Saving No 'Trick'

(Paul Mallon, whose signature usually appears over this dispatch, is on a brief vacation. During his absence the column will be composed of contributions from leading Washington correspondents.)

WASHINGTON, July 24.—When the Post Office Department announced that, as the result of the last fiscal year's business, it was about $5,000,000 to the good, instead of being, as usual, many millions out of pocket, every one thought there must be some catch in it. But there is no trick concealed in it at all, according to officials. It's the consequence, they say, of no legerdemain of bookkeeping, but of simple, economical business administration. Big savings were made on the air mail contracts and on several other items, yet it was the adding together of many smaller economies which enabled the customary deficit to be overcome.

As an example of these, the cost of carrying the mail to and from railroad stations to postoffices is cited. There were 21,000 contracts for this service, which should be let by bidding. It was found, however, that this regulation had not been followed in the immediate past and 12,000 of the contracts had been allowed to run on, being renewed from time to time, without being submitted for competitive bidding. These were all put up for bids, and a saving of around $2,000,000 was effected in this small part of the system alone.

Before boasting too much about wiping out the deficit, however, the department might turn its attention to speeding up the delivery of mail. When a letter, even one carrying a special delivery stamp, which leaves Washington around midnight is not delivered to its New York address earlier than noon the next day, the postal service is not so hot.

EFFECTIVE SILENCE

In relation to the San Francisco strike, the silence of Jim Farley furnished a striking contrast to the vociferousness of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, and, in the opinion of observers in the capital, was immensely more useful in bringing reasonableness into the situation. Jim didn't have to say anything. In his official capacity, he simply stood for certain things and served as a mnemonic obelisk to the ship owners. They could not look at his towering form and placid face without being reminded of a lot of things.

The first aid to memory was that he was postmaster general. Then, they didn't have to think very far back without recalling that he had been instructed by the President to make an investigation of ocean mail contracts and determine whether they were not out of line with fair compensation. While on that line of thought they had no difficulty in recollecting that two mail contracts out of San Francisco bring in $48,000 a voyage, or $1,248,000 a year on each contract. It was not forgotten, either, that one route was extended so that it gave $1,684,000 of government money to the lines in one year, instead of $1,248,000. It popped into their heads also, doubtless, that the route out of Seattle to Manila pays $10 a mile and adds $81,000 a voyage to the revenues of shipping lines which were making handsome profits even before the mail contracts were given them.

It is considered here that mulling over facts of this kind may have had much to do with the change of front by the ship owners in agreeing to submit all the causes of dispute with the strikers to arbitration. If they did not think about them, with Postmaster General Farley standing right there, it must be supposed they don't believe in signs.

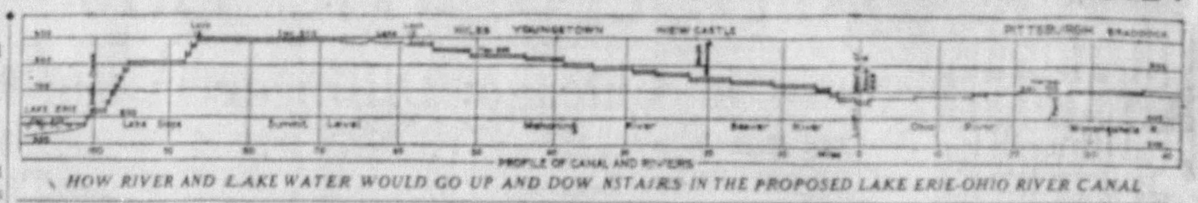
HOW OHIO RIVER-LAKE ERIE CANAL WOULD LOOK IF BUILT

No Difficulty Seen In Constructing 'Big Ditch'



HOW RIVER AND LAKE WATER WOULD GO UP AND DOWNSTAIRS IN THE PROPOSED LAKE ERIE-OHIO RIVER CANAL

The building of the proposed Lake Erie-Ohio River Canal offers no engineering difficulties on the approved Beaver-Mahoning route.

But the physical plans for the "big ditch" running 102 miles northward to Lake Erie's shores are interesting in themselves.

It becomes a question of making water go up and downstairs, as George M. Lehman, chief engineer of the Lake Erie and Ohio River Canal Board, points out.

Pittsburgh's harbor elevation is 703 feet. The continental divide, north of Youngstown and Niles, is 900 feet above sea-level. Then the route comes to the Lake Erie basin, which drops 327 feet in 12 miles.

How is it going to be managed?

With huge locks, just as in the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers.

It will require five locks to get to New Castle, a distance of 20.7 miles, and six locks to take the canal to Niles, 29.4 miles. Three more locks, in a distance of 3.5 miles, will get the canal to the summit of the continental divide.

For a distance of 31.7 miles no locks will be needed. Barges and boats will travel at a good rate of speed to the edge of the lake basin.

Then, in swift succession, under present plans by engineers, there will be a series of locks which will carry boats and barges downstairs to the water level of Lake Erie, 573 feet above sea-level.

The "big ditch" will not be the narrow, shallow canal which long ago led to Lake Erie, before it fell into disuse as interest in water transport died. It will be 12 feet deep, two feet less than Canada's Welland Canal, and 200 feet wide. Twelve feet in depth is considered necessary since canal water, having no movement, cannot be displaced by traffic as water in a river can, where a nine-foot stage is considered sufficient.

Some parts of the canal will be easy to construct. Part of the waterway will make use of existing stream channels.

As Lehman explains:

"Twenty-five and one-half miles below Pittsburgh the Ohio River is joined by the Beaver River, and from that junction point the canal route follows the Beaver River, then the Mahoning River, to Niles, O. These two streams form 50 miles of slackwater.

From Niles the canal proper extends 52 miles directly north to a point on Lake Erie, at or near Ashtabula. On the south end of the long summit level, about midway between Mahoning River and Lake Erie, there will be an artificial lake, 8½ miles long, and this with the river slackwater improvement leaves only 43 miles of actual canal ditch."

The proposed artificial lake referred to is Mosquito Lake. It has no water, but the basin is there and it can be used as a canal link at little cost, water being provided from an enlarged Pymatuning reservoir nearby, now built by the state. For 8½ miles boats and barges will be able to make extremely good speed, and that much cost will be saved.

The fact that only 43 miles of the 102 total requires actual canal construction was a factor in engineers' preference for the Beaver-Mahoning route.

Locks on the canal likely will be twice the size of those in the Monongahela. Originally they were to be the same size—56 feet wide and 360 feet long—considered adequate in the river. But later opinions were that the traffic attracted to low-cost river transportation would be so huge that movement of boats would be delayed unless larger locks were used. A length of 720 feet may be necessary.

Twenty-four locks are planned to overcome the rise and fall between river and lake. A single barge fleet will be able to pass through the locks with a burden of 6,000 tons.

DEMPSEY ALIBI IN SWINDLE TRIAL HIT

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Jack Dempsey went to the bat for a pal yesterday.

The pal was Jim McKay, who is on trial in Federal Court here on a charge of using the mails in connection with a fraudulent gambling scheme. McKay claimed that the time the crime was committed, Jack visited him in the hospital just across the California line from Reno.

Jack said on the witness stand that he remembered the incident well. It was the day after his Max Baer-Paulino Uscudun fight had drawn a big gate in Reno, where he and McKay had promoted fights together. Let's see, Jack testified, that would make it July 5, 1931.

Jack even remembered the sage hens he had taken to Jim on the visit. They were part of the bag, he said, from a sage hen hunt in the Nevada wilderness. The Governors of Nevada and California were on the hunt, he recalled.

Everything was going fine for the defense, and Jim was beaming from the dock as Jack tranquilly furnished the alibi, when Federal Prosecutor Jake Rosenblum set the former heavyweight champion back on his heels with a flurry of questions.

Didn't Jack remember that at about that time he was divorced in Reno from Esteele Taylor? Jack did.

Then Jake showed Jack some testimony at his divorce hearing. The record said McKay had gone to bat for Jack then, testifying that he saw him every day for six weeks, the required residence for a Reno divorce. That didn't fit well with Jack's story that he had been hunting while McKay was in the hospital.

The defense rested on Dempsey's testimony. The case is expected to go to the jury today.

GALE BAFFLES BYRD RESCUERS

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, July 24.—(AP.)—(Via Mackay Radio.)—The tractor party of Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, blocked by adverse weather and dangerous footing as it tried to force its way to the advance base of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, reported by radio today it will try to resume its journey back to this camp.

Dr. Poulter and his crew of five were 28 miles south of Little America. There they had stopped the tractor for a period of rest. The machine was partly covered by a drift as they prepared to come on today.

The party reported that several hours would be required to heat up the motor and the tractor's transmission, stiffened by a temperature of 71 degrees below zero.

After battling near-blizzard conditions since Friday, the tractor party turned back yesterday.

It had reached only half-way to Byrd's camp, 123 miles to the south.

No word has been heard from the expedition leader for several days. His main radio set has been out of order and in his most recent messages, relayed on a set which he cranked by hand, he reported he had "a bad arm." He did not indicate his condition otherwise.

AIR ATTACKERS 'BOMB' LONDON

LONDON, July 24.—(AP.)—"Enemy" air raiders who swooped over London last night claimed today to have broken through aerial defenses and won a smashing victory.

The attackers reported they successfully bombed seven parts of the city, wrecked the air ministry and wrought havoc at docks and other key points.

Defenders, on the other hand, claimed to have taken a big toll of the invaders, but the full result of the night's combats will not be known until an official report is made.

The mock raids, opposition parties charged, served as good propaganda for the government's bigger air force plans.

Vas You Dere, Charlie? Anyway 'Carmen' Vas!

Result: Grace Moore And Miss Glotz Carry On

HOLLYWOOD, July 24.—(AP.)—At the Paris Opera Comique, "a number of years ago," a flaming-haired songstress sang "Carmen."

In the audience at one of the performances was a Jellico, Tenn., girl named Grace Moore, who was studying voice in Europe. That "Carmen" was one of many she had heard and was to hear in succeeding years.

Comes 1934 and Grace Moore is in Hollywood, preparing to star in a picture. There is some difficulty casting it. Not quite the right people are available for some of the roles, especially that part of a stout Italian landlady who must be able to sing in true operatic fashion.

The director, Victor Schertzinger, recalls some correspondence he has had with a voice teacher in nearby Santa Ana, a woman who said she was once an opera star.

So he invited Rosemary Glotz to come to see him, which she primptly did.

While the director was discussing the part with Miss Glotz, Miss Moore phoned him to meet her to discuss some "Carmen" costume sketches. This is Schertzinger's version of the rest of the story:

"Miss Moore, showing me the sketches, commented that they were not her idea of the proper "Carmen" costumes. She recalled having seen "Carmen" played 'a number of years ago' in Paris, and that ever since she had wanted to do "Carmen" in costumes like she saw there.

"Then she showed me a picture of Miss Glotz. 'This woman would know about the costumes,' Grace said, 'if we could only find her.'

"'What is this, a gag?' I asked. I told Grace that Rosemary Glotz was in my office.

"Well, we went to my office, and you never saw such a meeting. Both of them went ga-ga about it. And, of course, that cinched the role for Miss Glotz."

Miss Glotz, a Boston-born Hungarian, made her concert debut at 16, created the title role in "The Merry Widow," and has sung all over the world.

Her husband was the late Judge David Rose, former Mayor of Milwaukee, a prominent Democrat in Illinois and Wisconsin for many years. Miss Glotz came to California a year ago.

POLICE SHAKEUP WAITS AIRING IN COUNCIL

sent to the Public Safety Committee. Following it, a request submitted by Councilman John J. Kane for an appropriation of $3,500 for commission expenses was sent to the Finance Committee.

An expert to study the technical phases of the police department will be hired, it is understood, if the appropriation passes Council.

CHARGES MADE

Charges made by the commission in the report were:

Entrenched graft of past administrations was not dislodged by the present one.

Big business paid police bonuses for strike duty.

Big business got a "foothold" in anticipation of the steel strike predicted little more than a month ago. Politics, friendship and fraternalism were the reasons police were chosen for promotions, and the public safety director and other high officials were given their jobs.

Enforcement of the year's rule on pensions, training student police, abolishing the "sub-patrolman" system, abolishing the policy of abandoning police disabled in line of duty after 30 days, substituting a complete hospitalization plan and pension protection were some of the remedies urged.

A commission to check on the police, named by the court or by Council, was urged as an immediate remedy.

GRAFT CHARGES DUE

Graft and corruption and political meddling would be treated later, the report inferred.

Real standards were urged for the admission of police promotions, and for choosing executives. The report condemned the practice of putting able police on a pension—a plan which "cheated the pension and robbed the city of its investment in the trained men."

By inference, the report chided Public Safety Director A. Marshall Bell for not furnishing records and data requested, and inferred he was one of the "inexperienced with personality."

Supt. Ben R. Marshall and his former captain of the v..e squad, Frank R. Boyd, were not mentioned by name.

VICE 'AS USUAL'

But the report stated:

"That improper influence and graft were entrenched in the Police Bureaus of former administrations and were not dislodged by the present administration.

"Racketeers and vice mistresses were, until recent disclosures, carrying on business as usual.

"An inspector, who stationed a policeman at the entrance to the city's most exclusive brothel, soon found the Old Deal shuffled him out of the district, even under the New Deal.

"That the underworld interpreted the sudden creation of a vice squad, headed by a close friend to the superintendent with orders to report only to the superintendent, as the 'tip-off' that the racket business would continue as usual. Subsequent action of the vice squad did not change that interpretation."

It was believed Inspector Jerry Deasy, who was transferred from Oakland to East Liberty, was the "inspector" to which the report referred.

Mate Chose Auto, Wife Gets Divorce

Mrs. Rietta J. Harberth, of 3794 Bigelow boulevard, granted a divorce by Judge George V. Moore yesterday, testified her husband, Joseph J. Harberth, chose to give up his wife rather than his automobile. She said that shortly after their marriage he lost his job. She told him she could make enough to pay the grocer and rent if he would give up his car. He said if he went home his mother would see the car was paid for. When she tried to get him back a month later, Mrs. Harberth said he told her he did not want to be married any more, and had a better time without a wife.

TRAFFIC COURT CHARGES FILED

Employes of the Traffic Court today were under a charge of negligence and indifference in a report submitted to City Council by Budget Controller Edward A. Schofield.

One section of the report, detailing a visit of investigators to the Traffic Court office, said:

"There seems to be lack of harmony and several of the employes stated that they did not know who was at the head of the office."

Another excerpt read:

"The first negligence was noted in the file room, where we found lying open on top of the files in small cabinets, hundreds of tags with money orders and checks clipped. Upon examination these checks and money orders showed dates as far back as June 6. After some discussion with two of the employes as to the responsibility, it was decided that these checks and money orders should be deposited promptly."

The report charged a complete breakdown of morale at the Traffic Court office and "a general condition of buck-passing."

SEEK ASSAILANT OF POLICEMAN

Public Safety Director A. Marshall Bell today ordered every man in the police department to search for the fugitive who shot Patrolman Thomas Martin. Bell said:

"Taking potshots at policemen must stop."

Martin is in critical condition in Mercy Hospital. He was shot in the neck when he approached three loiterers at Elm and Hazel streets early Sunday.

The assailant was described as five feet seven inches tall, 165 pounds, wearing a brown suit and brown straw hat.

SHOT GIRL, PARK GUARD ADMITS

INDIANAPOLIS, July 24.—(AP.)—Elmr Heuser, 35, a night watchman at Garfield Park, in a signed statement given to police, has admitted firing the shot Saturday night that killed Miss Garnett Bradley, 27, of Richmond, Ind.

Miss Bradley was fatally wounded at the park where she had gone with George Hendrixon, 33, an Indianapolis bus driver.

The watchman said he was threatened by Hendrixon when he came upon the bus driver and Miss Bradley seated on a bench in a secluded spot. He said he fired two shots and left unaware Miss Bradley had been struck.

Miss Bradley, employed as an accountant in the office of the Richmond Palladium, had come to Indianapolis to visit Hendrixon, who is married and the father of three children. His wife, a daughter and a brother-in-law were at the park shortly after the shooting, but they convinced police it was a coincidence.

SLEUTHS HOLD 'ALKY' SUSPECT

Believed to be one of the leaders of a local alcohol syndicate, Simon Albert, 39, of 900 Sherman avenue, North Side, today was being held by city detectives.

When Albert was arraigned in Central Police Court today Inspector of Detectives Sam Wheeler said he would be turned over to state authorities.

His arrest last night followed a Morals Court hearing yesterday in which four other men were held for investigation. They had been taken into custody Saturday on liquor violation charges after police raided the alleged headquarters at 910 West Diamond street, North Side.

The detectives raided a supposed lottery, but found, instead, books containing names of more than 1,000 alcohol customers.

Albert was one of 15 men arrested in the East Liberty hotel room of Louis Volpe in a liquoring investigation 16 months ago.

Virgin Mary with the Christ Child.

Around the Virgin are the words Magna Mater Austriae, "Austria's Great Mother."

The coin reproduces a madonna in the historic church of Mariazell that devout pilgrims have visited for centuries.

The coin, according to Dollfuss, will emphasize Austria's reverence for religion. There might be a considerable demand for these coins in America, assuming that no "NRA" or Treasury or other regulation would prevent their coming in.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS from a Brooklyn Democratic club started in seven motor buses for a day of pleasure, to include playing baseball against convicts in Sing Sing prison.

The game was not played because one of the "pleasure" buses, starting with defective brakes on which the driver said he would "take a chance," went through a railing into a lumber yard, killing seventeen, injuring others, of whom some may die.

The words, "take a chance," are among the most dangerous and most frequently used in our American vocabulary.

YOUNG PEOPLE fond of quoting "Steve Brodie took a chance," should remember that Steve Brodie took no chance, never jumped off the Brooklyn Bridge. He dropped a dummy, dressed like Steve Brodie, from the Brooklyn Bridge and was pulled out of the water, into which he had previously entered from a tugboat, while his dummy, well leaded, sank to the bottom.

NEWS THAT malaria is spreading in Cuba, 6,000 cases reported at Santiago, will disturb intelligent Cubans and doubtless cause an energetic fight against the dangerous malaria-bearing mosquitoes.

Mosquitoes spread malaria and also spread yellow fever. Malaria is the worse of the two, for it makes life worthless. According to scientists, the malaria mosquitoes coming up from the marshes, not rude barbarians from the north or the vices of the inhabitants, destroyed the power of ancient Rome.

HERE IS A place for shedding real genuine tears.

American bankers lent billions abroad after their foolish government had lent ten thousand millions. Germany, following the fashion, says she won't pay those private loans just now, because she finds it hard to get cash or credit to buy raw materials.

American bankers say, "We must fix that," and their representatives abroad are discussing more loans to Germany, that Germany may buy the raw materials, and pay.

The perennial Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, is on his way here to explain to American dodos why this country, not Britain, should lend Germany the money for raw materials.

Is not that enough to make the angels weep, especially when they read in the daily paper that England has a great deal of money to lend, and is looking around for "trustworthy borrowers"?

KISS HINTS 'CRADLE OF ROMANCE'

International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 24.—When a man kisses a girl, it may not be news, but it's romance.

Even though Joan Lowell, authoress and spinner of tall tales of the sea, denies it (the romance—not the kiss).

Hardly had the gangplank been lowered when the liner Pastores docked from a West Indies cruise than Lieut. Commander Herman E. Halland, ace flier of the United States Navy, crossed over and embraced and kissed Joan. Said Joan:

"He's just a friend of the family. I've known him a great many years."

A reporter said:

"But, Miss Lowell, only a few weeks ago they said you were going to marry the princely son of Tolstoi, the great writer . . ."

Joan replied:

"Tush, the commander here is going to advise me on flying. Late this fall I'm going on an exploration trip to the headwaters of the Amazon. I'm going to take a small plane. I want to be the first white woman to penetrate the deep Matto Grasso country and come out alive."

Commander Halland recently flew a doctor from Panama to the Galapagos Islands, where the explorer, William Robinson, lay critically ill of appendicitis.

ARMY MAPPING SHAKEUP OF AIR FORCE

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(AP.)—Quick changes in the Army's air program were foreseen today as a result of the Newton D. Baker committee's report.

The administration is known to favor development of the nation's air arm along most modern lines.

The Army chief of staff, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, was at work today whipping together suggestions to hand to President Roosevelt and Secretary Dern, when they return in mid-August. They are expected to form the nucleus of a redrafted air corps program.

Outstanding recommendations of the Baker board which attracted interest include:

All pilots should average 300 hours flying a year instead of between 150 and 200 hours.

Frequent concentration of air units should be held for training maneuvers at different seasons of the year, including cold weather training flights in Alaska.

Appropriations should be made for more definite and continued research and development programs.

The purchase of small standard commercial airplanes for cross-country and night flying training.

Commercial air transport pilots should be encouraged to become members of the Army Air Corps Reserve; a close liaison between commercial and military aviation.

GUARD GRILLED ON 'PEN' BREAK

PHILADELPHIA, July 24.—(AP.)—Discovery of correspondence between two escaped Eastern Penitentiary convicts and the home of a friend now under questioning as a suspected accomplice has brought investigation of a prison guard.

Inquiry into the guard's prior knowledge of the break that gave two of five prisoners freedom after a half-mile flight through a sewer on Saturday was ordered by Warden Herbert B. Smith yesterday.

The guard is stationed opposite the sewer grating through which the five men fled, and one of his nightly duties was to see no escapes were attempted via the sewer line.

Suspicion was cast on the guard, Warden Smith said, when police held Thomas Dougherty, an acquaintance of Martin Farrell and Roy Frank Wiley, the fugitives, as their suspected harborer.

The missing men's correspondence—censorship of which was another duty of the guard being questioned—showed communications between them and Dougherty's home, Smith asserted.

BISHOP FOUND SHOCK VICTIM

GLACIER PARK, Mont., July 24.—(AP.)—Bishop William F. Faber, 74, of Helena, whose body was found in Paradise Creek yesterday by a Glacier Park ranger, died of shock and exposure, County Coroner M. A. O'Neil, of Cut Bank, said.

The upper portion of the body was not submerged. It lay against a log. The Bishop, presiding head of the Episcopal Diocese of Montana, stumbled or slipped on the log as he walked down the comparatively shallow creek, it was believed.

Bishop Faber had been missing since Friday afternoon.

CHARGES HOME HEAD BEAT HIM

BUTLER, Pa., July 24.—(AP.)—Fred C. Herold, superintendent of the Butler County Home, awaited arraignment today before Alderman John W. Bixler on assault and battery charges filed by one of the home's inmates.

After a minor infraction of rules, Peter Z. Ross said, Herold dragged him from bed on the morning of July 4, threw him to the floor, struck him and then flung him into a "prison room," where he was forced to spend the holiday and the following day.

Herold was appointed to the superintendency May 1 to replace Howard Graham, superintendent for 20 years, who was dismissed. No reasons were given for Graham's dismissal.

ENZO TO SEEK CITIZENSHIP

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Enzo Piermonte, Mrs. Madeline Force Astor Dick Piermonte's husband, has another great desire. First he wanted to whip Maxie Rosenbloom and lift the light heavyweight championship. Then he evinced a desire to rival Hollywood's leading men. Now he is particularly anxious to become an American citizen.

Divorce proceedings reported contemplated by Mrs. Piermonte were reported to have some bearing on the patriotic impulse of the Italian Adonis, who before his marriage was barred from entering the country. But Piermonte said:

"I want to become a citizen because I love the United States. I know of no move to deport me and hope I can remain here."

The ex-pubilist is having a hurried dental job done, which probably means he will be Hollywood-bound soon if the immigration department approves.

LIQUOR TAXES FALL; BLAME BOOTLEGGING

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Intoxicating beverages dropped to fourth place as a federal revenue source during the 1933 fiscal year, yielding $256,911,000, the Internal Revenue Bureau announced today.

Since liquor taxes became effective only last December it is expected the current fiscal year will yield upwards from $400,000,000 and put liquor taxes practically on a par with pre-prohibition days.

BEER TAX UP

Treasury officials are disappointed at the failure of the tax to equal the estimates. Some blame the high federal and state taxes which have spurred continuation of the illicit liquor traffic. It is frankly admitted that bootlegging is flourishing and diverting a large volume of revenue from the Treasury and every effort to check liquor smuggling is being made by governmental agencies.

In January, the distilled spirits tax amounted to $9,651,304, dropped to $6,843,000 in April, jumped to $7,276,324 in May and dropped to $7,118,300 in June.

For the fiscal year the distilled spirits tax totaled $61,889,000 and an additional $6,577,000 was collected as the excise tax on imported spirits. The latter was far under estimate.

Beer taxes gained substantially since January when the collection totaled $10,226,500. In April $14,366,000 was collected and in June $22,871,000. In part this increase was seasonal.

INCOME REVENUE GAINS

Total liquor taxes for the first half of the calendar year were: January, $22,132,000; February, $23,039,000; March, $28,320,000; April, $23,721,000; May, $20,198,000, and June, $33,925,700.

Internal revenue collections for the fiscal year amounted to $2,672,239,000, an increase of $1,052,399,000 over the previous year. Income taxes totaled $817,025,300, a gain of $70,233,000, and miscellaneous internal revenue, $1,482,790,000, an increase of $610,743,000.

The government collected $425,162,000 on tobacco taxes, a gain of $22,423,000 over last year. This included $349,661,000 cigaret tax, an increase of $21,243,000. The manufacturers' excise tax amounted to $390,044,000, a gain of $142,257,000, led by a gasoline tax of $202,575,000, an increase of $77,645,000.

All important manufacturers' sales taxes showed large increases.

So Sick of Trousers She Wants to Scream

MRS. WILLIAM LaVARRE . . . SHE'D TAKE AN EVENING GOWN

Feminine Explorer Longs to Wear Evening Gown

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The next time she goes exploring, she's going to take an evening gown, Mrs. William La Varre, pretty explorer who just returned from a visit to the jungles of British Guiana with her husband, declared today. She explained:

"I got so sick of trousers I wanted to scream."

Yet trousers are what the lady explorer must wear, she continued—trousers, and no frills. She said:

"I took with me five pairs of trousers, three divided skirts, three pairs of jodphur breeches, 18 crepe shirts, 12 neckerchiefs, three cork helmets, 18 pairs of socks, six pairs of leather gloves, four pairs of boots, three pairs of sneakers, a large cargo of medicines and cosmetics, and my wedding ring."

The trip lasted 14 months, and at the end of it Mrs. La Varre had, she said, the clothes on her back, one tube of tooth paste, one jar of cold cream, and the wedding ring. The trousers got torn to shreds in the underbrush, the socks were eaten by vermin, and the rest of her clothes were pounded to pieces by a native laundryman who was six feet four inches high and proportionately strong.

80TH VETS SET FOR CONNEAUT

General Chairman Christ C. Kramer today announced a tentative program for the fifteenth annual national reunion of veterans of the Eightieth Division, American Expeditionary Forces, which will be held at Conneaut Lake August 16-19.

As listed now, the opening day's schedule includes the dinner of officers, members of the executive council, and of the history committee in the Hotel Conneaut at 6:30 p. m. followed by the opening session at 8 p. m.

Sightseeing trips, individual luncheons and reunions, dancing, park amusements, and a vaudeville show, are other events on the day's schedule.

The reception for Maj. Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite and National Commander Ephraim G. Peyton is set for the Crystal room, Hotel Conneaut, at 8 p. m. Friday, August 17. The V. F. W. Boys' Band will play.

FRENCH CABINET 'PATCHED UP' IN CRISIS

PARIS, July 24. — (AP.) — Premier Gaston Doumergue appeared to have mastered warring factions in his cabinet today and was confident he could maintain it unimpaired.

Back from an interrupted vacation, Doumergue faced the ministers with the possible fateful consequences of destroying the people's faith in the political truce under which the cabinet was created.

He demanded renewed allegiance to the symbol of political peace, represented by the presence of all parties in the cabinet.

Doumergue, talked to both Edouard Herriot and Andre Tardieu, ministers who split when Tardieu allegedly charged the Radical Socialist party, of which Herriot is a leader, knew of illegal operations of the late Serge Stavisky while they were going on.

The premier attempted to placate both the former premiers and afterward Herriot told friends "the difficulty can be smoothed out."

A number of other ministers were then called into session to attempt to reach a settlement.

A compromise has been based on Tardieu's statement that he defended himself before a commission investigating the Stavisky scandal against charges made by former Premier Camille Chautemps, also a radical Socialist leader, without mentioning Chautemps' party.

Herriot's acceptance of this view was seen in an unsigned editorial in the radical Socialist party organ, Ere Nouvelle, saying an examination of Tardieu's testimony shows it "is a personal battle, as Tardieu said."

Seven radical Socialist ministers whom Chautemps had urged to withdraw had construed Tardieu's attack as against Chautemps as president of the party, instead of against Chautemps as an individual.

Chautemps, however, was fighting desperately to compel Tardieu to leave the cabinet, under the threat of the resignation of six radical Socialist ministers, even if Herriot remains.

This action, which might wreck the government and cause Doumergue himself to resign, was hotly discussed at a radical Socialist meeting, but finally the ministers were given the "freedom to decide for themselves."

Grocers to Picnic, Speaker Scheduled

The retail grocers will hold their annual picnic at West View Park tomorrow. I. Leonard Aronson, president of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers League, will speak. The league head will discuss the need for a constitutional convention for Pennsylvenia. Grocers and their friends from throughout allegheny County will attend the outing.

Dogs Guard Body Of Aged Mistress

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—(AP.)—Called to investigate the howling of dogs in a flat, Alfred Girolo, humane officer, found four famished mongrels standing guard over the body of their mistress, Mrs. Agnes Woods, 65.

Police said Mrs. Woods apparently had been dead four days.

COUPLE TO WED AT PICNIC

With all civic and business organizations taking part, the South Side and Hill Top Community picnic will be held Thursday at West View Park. Ten thousand persons are expected to attend.

The program will include all sorts of contests and athletic games, with prizes for the oldest couple, the largest family, the prettiest red head and the most attractive bathing beauty. As a feature of the program, there will be a public wedding in the Talkie Temple.

Oakmont District Picnic Tomorrow

Verona and Oakmont will hold a joint community outing tomorrow in Kennywood Park. Rosedale, Sandy Creek and other nearby communities will take part. Special trains will take the picnickers to the park. In charge are E. A. Wolkwein, J. G. Green, C. W. B. Woodings, Kier M. Ewing, John S. Wolfe and L. C. Anderson.

Thousands of Thin Folks Once Discouraged Now Adding Flattering Pounds
QUICK NEW 3-IN-1 WAY
5 lbs. in 1 Week or no Cost
"I never thought I could gain an ounce until I tried Kelp-a-Malt," says Miss E. H., New York. "Then I gained 5 lbs. in one week."
Thousands of thin, pale, rundown folks—and even "Naturally Skinny" men and women—are amazed at this new easy way to put on healthy needed pounds quickly. Gains of 15 to 20 lbs. in one month—5 lbs. in a week—are reported regularly.
Kelp-a-Malt, the new mineral concentrate from the sea—free from drugs—gets right down to the cause of thin, underweight conditions and adds weight, through a "3 ways in one" natural process.
First, its rich supply of easily assimilable minerals nourish the digestive glands which produce the juices that alone enable you to digest the fats and starches in your daily diet, . . . the weight-making elements in food. Second, Kelp-a-Malt provides an amazingly effective digestive substance which actually digests 4 times its own weight of the flesh-building foods you eat. Third, Kelp-a-Malt's natural FOOD IODINE stimulates and nourishes the internal glands which control assimilation—the process of converting digested food into firm flesh, new strength and energy. Three Kelp-a-Malt tablets contain more iron and copper than a pound of spinach or 7½ pounds of fresh tomatoes; more calcium than 6 eggs; more phosphorus than 1½ lbs. carrots; more FOOD IODINE than 1600 lbs. of beef.
MONEY BACK GUARANTEE
Try Kelp-a-Malt for a single week and notice the difference—how much better you sleep, how ordinary stomach distress vanishes, how firm flesh appears in place of scrawny hollows and the new energy and strength it brings you! Prescribed and used by physicians. Kelp-a-Malt contains no drugs and is fine for children, too—Improves their appetites. Remember the name, Kelp-a-Malt, the original and genuine kelp and malt tablets. There is nothing else like them so don't accept imitations and substitutes. Try Kelp-a-Malt today, and if you don't gain at least 5 lbs. of good, firm flesh in 1 week the trial is free. Kelp-a-Malt costs only a few cents a day to use.

PINCHOT ALOOF, THIRD PARTY DELAYED

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, July 24.—The non-committal attitude of Gov. Gifford Pinchot to overtures that he make an independent race for the United States Senate this fall today was credited in political circles with delaying possible formation of a third party ticket.

Friends of the executive said he was studying several proposals for hookups in a fall campaign, but only one of them, on the surface at least, appeared anywhere near the verge of consummation. That was the potential slating of the Governor, Charles J. Margiotti and David E. Kaufman for Senator, Governor and Lieutenant Governor respectively.

Kaufman has confirmed efforts in this direction to the extent of declaring that a third party ticket, to be known as "Progressive Republican," was definitely in the making. Margiotti, who spent several days with Kaufman after two political visits to the Governor's estate at Milford, is expected to make a third trip to see the Governor late this week or next.

After that visit may come the announcement of the Progressive Republican ticket if there is to be one, Kaufman said he would have something to say about personalities on the third party slate within "a week or 10 days."

SOVIET DOOMS EIGHT SPIES

MOSCOW, July 24.—(AP.)—The Soviet government has smashed what it calls a pro-Japanese spy ring by handing death sentences to eight and long prison terms to 15.

The military tribunal of the Supreme Court delivered the sentences. It was testified Kim Zayen, a Korean, led the well-organized band which sought information about the movement of troops and supplies to the Far East.

Zayen was among those condemned to death. Efforts to paralyze Soviet railways, involving wrecks at stations at Chernay, Panki and Eudelnaya, and sabotage at Morumsk, were blamed on the defendants.

Others who received the death sentence were Koslov, chief of the Moscow freight depot; Michin, an official of the Kazan Railway; Alexandrovsky and Slastenin, engineers in the locomotive department of the Peoples' commissariat of transport; Sviridov, chief of the technical department of the Morumsk locomotive repair shop; Borovsky, chief of the Moscow Passazhisky station, and Muzanov, a locomotive engineer.

LINER FLOATED, 1,200 SAFE

THORSHAVN, Faroe Islands, July 24.—(AP.)—The German liner Monte Rosa, grounded overnight on a submerged rock off Stroemoe Island with 1,200 passengers aboard, was refloated today after an earlier attempt had failed.

Divers began an examination of the extent of the damage to the vessel before it proceeded to Iceland on an excursion tour.

The ship struck the rock last night during a heavy fog. An effort to free her this morning, with local salvage vessels aiding, failed, but the Monte Rosa was cleared when high tide came.

She is owned by the Hamburg-South American Line.

Mayor Opposed On All-Night Parking

Mayor McNair has broached to his cabinet the idea of permitting automobiles to be parked in the streets all night, but he failed to obtain much encouragement for the plan. His assertion that the plan was being carried out in Washington brought a statement that the streets of the capital were wider than Pittsburgh's.

Col. W. R. Dunlap, director of city supplies, pointed out that allowing automobiles to stand in the streets all night would hinder firemen in the event of fires, and Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston declared they would hinder street cleaning.

Policeman Nabs War Captive As Speeder

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(AP.)—Patrolman Maurice A. Rainey, who made one capture in the Argonne, found his man again in the capital's Rock Creek Park.

In the World War Rainey captured a Prussian lieutenant. The other night Rainey, patrolling the park, caught a speeder. The man said:

"You still look pretty tough. I guess you don't remember. You got me once before and now you've got me again."

FLOOD DEATHS UP IN POLAND

WARSHAW, July 24.—(AP.)—Eight new villages on the lower Vistula River near Torun were flooded today, although there were encouraging signs that waters which have been on a rampage here are abating.

Five new deaths were reported, bringing the total known dead to near the 250 mark.

In Warsaw the water from the Vistula receded further, despite heavy showers. A fresh inpouring was expected, however, from the San River.

The government continued strenuous efforts to avoid epidemics through a lack of good drinking water. Typhoid serums are being dispatched to all villages, while the public was forbidden to drink water from the Vistula.

Milk Theft Fails, Two Hikers Held

The attempted theft of a bottle of milk stopped the "bumming trip" of two Toledo youths en route to New York. A milk truck driver, Robert Smith, took William Young, 18, and Earl McCafferty, 18, to the Oakland Police Station. At a hearing today Magistrate W. J. McGowan discharged them in care of social workers.

PINCHOT HOLDS LAST REVIEW OF GUARD

International News Service.

CAMP MUIR, INDIANTOWN GAP, Pa., July 24.—A brilliant military spectacle today climaxed the two weeks' encampment of the Pennsylvania National Guard as the 12,000 men and officers of the 28th Division passed in pretentious review before Gov. Gifford Pinchot, their commander-in-chief.

With Gov. Pinchot in the reviewing stand were Gen. Paul B. Malone, commander of the 3rd Corps Area, United States Army; Gen. Edward C. Shannon, commander of the Pennsylvania National Guard, and prominent state officials and political leaders.

It was the first complete divisional review since 1925 when the guardsmen paraded in honor of Gen. Henri Gouraud, the French World War hero who defended Paris.

Beginning at 1:30 in the afternoon, the 10-mile line of row upon row of khaki clad citizen soldiers passed the reviewing stand on Route 343 between Lickdale and Harpers Tavern for almost three hours.

The review took place on the new parade grounds of the recently acquired 15,000-acre military reservation here. The 6,000 troops encamped here were joined by the 6,000 other troops at Mt. Gretna and Colebrook.

The divisional review was a "red letter" event in the 15-day tour of duty of the guardsmen and they spent hours shining, cleaning and polishing their equipment.

The review was staged as a mark of honor to Gov. Pinchot in his last year in office as chief executive of Pennsylvania.

The demonstration will ebb tonight with a brilliant searchlight display by the 213th Coast Artillery anti-aircraft regiment and planes of the 103rd Observation Squadron.

Before the review got under way this afternoon, the new division hill headquarters in Indiantown Gap, overlooking the parade grounds and the surrounding camp areas, were officially opened and dedicated.

Missing Leechburg Girl Found Here

Magistrate W. J. McGowan at a hearing today in Morals Court discharged Margaret Henderson, 17, of Leechburg, held as a runaway. She was turned over to social workers.

The girl was arrested late last night. Police found her at a gasoline station at Main street and Mansfield avenue, West End. She told them she was en route to visit an aunt in Cleveland.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Birds Show Gratitude For Winter Feeding

INGRATITUDE is classified by some as a SIN.

Well, the birds, called gulls, on a certain pond in Cape Cod won't have to show penance for this. Last winter, when the storms raged and when the snow piled high upon the rought shores, the land folks fed these sea harpies . . . There were those among them, old, weather-beaten and respectable citizens who shook heads, and said:

"Givin' food to scavengers. It won't turn out good."

But it did . . . For when the summer came, and the sun shone hot upon the sand, and the New England folk planted seeds, petunias and zenias and phlox, and even those life necessities such as peas and beans and spinach . . . lo, the sea gulls were there thick and furious . . . And when the pest named locust arrived in swarms, the scavengers "et 'em alive."

Miss Brunot

Ah, what tasty morsels they made for the fat-stomached harpies . . . And one, two, three . . . down the alimentary canal of birddom the plant destroyers went. One, two, three. More delicious morsels.

And the debt was squared . . . food in the winter . . . over against protection of food in the summer . . .

Good lesson, sisters . . . Do we always square ourselves as ably as these sea gulls are doing? Are we as meticulous about the good turns done us . . . Or do we forget?

GIRL IN DOUBT

Dear Miss Brunot:

Am 19, and have been going with a fellow for eight months. He is only 18 years of age, but acts as if he were 22. He says he loves me and pleads with me not to go with anyone else. I have told him he is young and when he gets older, he may forget me. But he always says, never.

He has been going with girls since he was 14, and all the girls he has gone with are crazy about him and some of them write him letters, asking him to come and see them again. He always answers and says he is going steady with me. And does not want to be with anyone else. He says he has tried going with others, but there is no use. He is all for me.

Miss Brunot, tell me what you think of him, and of all this. Do you think it will be as he says? H. F. S.

The only way to find out if it will be as the young man says, is to wait and have TIME answer you . . . He seems to have made up his mind, and the fact that he began going with girls so early, may make him stronger in his decisions . . . Not that I approve of going around at such a tender age! Young people should develop naturally, and that is a slower process, sister.

Don't cross your bridges before you come to them. Take what the gods give, and don't tremble over what may happen . . . After all, that is all any of us can do.

BOY WANTS TO WED

Dear Miss Brunot:

Very likely, you will not remember me. It is quite awhile since I wrote you. It was about a certain fellow who was coming to see me, and had quit . . . Well, he has come back again, and everything is smooth-going, now. I listened to what you said, too.

Now, however, he wants me to marry him, and as we are both very young, only 17 and 20, I don't know what to say. He is in such a hurry, being of a tempestuous nature. He wants to be married in August. I say, wait a year, young man. He has a job, but it does not pay him very much, and my mother says when the wolf comes in at the door love goes out. How about it? ETHEL.

Your mother's idea is right in some cases, and especially when love is new and untried . . . Tell the young man he will have to wait until winter, at least . . . If he really cares, his fuming over the delay won't hurt him . . . It should kindle his ambition, and make him look for business promotion . . .

BOY SHUNS HER

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am 18 years of age and a senior in high school. A month ago, at a public affair, I became acquainted with a fellow who lives near me, but to whom I had never spoken. I invited him up to the house, and we listened to the radio, but about an hour later he went home. After this I saw him about twice a week, and se seemed to enjoy my company.

Now, lately, he simply has ignored me. He does in roundabout ways to avoid me. When I stop him sometimes and speak to him, he seems ill at ease and in a few minutes finds some excuse to go on. I care for him very much and I cannot understand his actions.

He is a very sociable boy, but he cannot dance, and I am very fond of dancing. I attend many dances with my girl friends. I have tried to forget him, but cannot. I am continually thinking of him.

Should I ask him why he acts so queerly?

LITTLE SENIOR.

Certainly, ask him what ails him . . . Maybe someone has told him something unfavorable concerning you . . . Or again, he may think that you like to dance better than you like to be with him. There may be something personal bothering him, too . . . Something he can't very well tell you, or again, something he may not think you would like to hear . . . Sometimes there is another girl . . . Anyway, satisfy yourself one way or the other . . . And if the difficulty is insurmountable, develop will power, and forget him.

Given in Marriage :: A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Dr. Braithwaite Prepares to Attend Hugh

If Avis Arlen had been Hugh Grantland's wife, mother, sister or fiancee, she could not have put more anguished concern into her voice than she did in her wailing cry of "Oh! Hugh, Hugh! What has happened to you?" Indeed, I am sure that few women whom I know would have uttered such a cry. They would have waited in silence, no less anguished because of their dignified restraint, for fear their outcry might aggravate the injury already received.

I was fairly sure of her motive in staging this particular bit of bad taste. She wished to convey to the rest of us that she was on sufficiently intimate terms with Hugh to warrant such a flamboyant expression of concern.

Hugh she meant to impress with her affectionate solicitude for him, but I doubted that he heard a single syllable of her outcry, or knew, indeed, that she was anywhere at hand. The fatigue of the journey, together with his loss of blood had brought him to a state very near the border line of unconsciousness.

AVIS SENT TO ROOM

But the men around the car and the women on the veranda did not realize how near a swoon he was, and I saw an involuntary stiffening of many of the group as the girl's wailing cry rang out. Philip Veritzen wheeled and intercepted the girl as she was rushing forward to the side of the car.

"Go to your room at once," he said, in tones so low that I think very few of the group could have heard. "Stay there until I send for you," he added.

Avis turned before his hand was fairly off her shoulder and scuttled—there is no other word for her motion—to the shelter of the front veranda. That she kept on going without slackening her pace until she reached the destination he had named, I was very sure.

Lillian's voice, low, clear and vibrant, sounded from the steps.

"Bring him directly into the library," she said. "Dr. and Mrs. Braithwaite are waiting there."

I caught my breath in surprise, and a little thrill of excitement put my anxiety for Hugh into second place for the moment. Dicky's brother-in-law, famous as a surgeon on two continents, but who had not touched a scalpel for more than a year because of his breakdown, must be intending to take care of Hugh!

If my premise were true, it meant the comeback of a great man, for Edwin Braithwaite's collapse and long illness, during which he and his devoted wife had wandered all over the world, were simply a matter of nerves shattered by too arduous labors in his profession.

A sudden dismaying thought struck me. Harriet Braithwaite had told me that her husband cherished an obsession that he would bungle things if he ever attempted an operation, and that no patient would be safe in his hands. Would Hugh be in danger?

I brought myself up with a decisive jerk. Hugh's injury was in all probability a deep flesh wound. To a surgeon of Edwin Braithwaite's experience, treating it would be child's play. There would be no risk whatever to Hugh, but to the brilliant man under a cloud it would mean an opening wedge for his re-entrance into the world which was his life.

There was no trace of nervousness about him as he stood swathed in what was plainly a makeshift white substitute for a surgeon's regalia, with his shirt sleeves rolled far above his elbows.

READY FOR OPERATION

Before him was the library table covered in white, transformed into an operating table. Upon another table nearby was an empty tray, and I guessed that upon the gas range in the kitchen a basin with water held the instruments he might need for an emergency operation—instruments which, in a compact emergency kit, are never left out of his luggage list.

The room held another surprise for me as great as that of seeing Edwin Braithwaite himself again. Unobtrusively, close to him, stood his stately wife, she whom I have always named to myself as a "grande dame". She was attired in a nurse's uniform that was as impeccable and as closely fitting as her husband's was makeshift, and there was about her the unmistakable air of a professionally trained nurse.

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Graduation Congratulations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to attend the senior class reception of my home town high school. Please tell me just what I should say in congratulating the graduates, teachers and the principal?

R.

It is only the graduates whom you congratulate, saying something like this, "Congratulations to you, Mary, and every good wish," or "Congratulations, Mary. I am very proud of you."

To the principal you might say, "Thank you so much for letting me come to the commencement. It was a beautiful occasion, and I was deeply impressed. I shall never forget the excellent address that you made to the graduates . . . and I am sure that they will never forget your friendly and wise words."

To the teachers you might say something like this, "How do you do, Miss Johnson. It is a great pleasure to meet you today, for Mark has told me so very much of your charm and of your goodness to her. We all appreciate so much what you have done for her."

When the Girl Pays

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a girl invites a man to a dance given by her club or sorority she, of course, buys the tickets, but how should she handle the situation?

Should she give them to him before the dance, or should she hand the tickets in at the entrance? W.

How grateful I am to you for that "of course" in your sentence. "When a girl invites a man to a dance given by her club or sorority she, of course, buys the tickets." I wish that every girl was as sure in her social point of view about this gesture of courtesy and hospitality as you are. Most of the girls who write me about this wish me to say that "of course" the man buys the tickets, which is unreasonable and incorrect.

And you ask a good question as to what the girl does about the tickets, to make the performance of her hospitality as smooth as possible. She may send him the tickets, a few days before the date of the dance, with a note that she is sending them to him "for safe keeping." Or she may give them to him before they leave her home for the party. She herself should not hand them in at the entrance.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Is There Time?

The best procedure for the Declarer in playing a notrump contract is usually to tackle his longest suit first. Naturally one's longest suit is the suit which will produce the most tricks after the opponents' stoppers have been removed. However, it is just as bad to follow this principle blindly as not to know it at all. There are numerous occasions when the Declarer, because of a scarcity of stoppers in another suit which the opponents are likely to lead, will be unable to set up his longest suit before the defense establishes the setting tricks. In these instances the Declarer must naturally look for another way of fulfilling the contract . . . by using some shorter suit which will provide sufficient tricks, and which can be established without losing the lead too many times. Today's hand illustrates this point.

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

| | ♠ A K J♡ 10 9◇ J 10 9 8 3♣ A 9 3 | |

| South | North |
|---|---|
| 1 ◇ (1) | 1 ♡ |
| 1 NT | 2 NT |
| 3 NT | Pass |

1—South is obviously too weak for a vulnerable notrump and in addition there is no stopper whatsoever in the heart suit. The slightly shaded diamond suit should be bid.

West opened his fourth-best spade. South took care at the first trick not to block the suit and won with the King in his own hand. At this point a great many careless players would automatically go after the diamond suit without another instant's thought. As a matter of fact a diamond return is the correct lead to Trick Two, but the Declarer should reason somewhat as follows before actually playing:

The diamond suit can be set up only after the lead has twice been lost. During this time, however, it looks reasonably certain that the defense will shift to clubs and in one lead will be able to set up sufficient tricks in that suit to defeat the contract. These tricks of course can be cashed when East and West get in with their second high diamond. There is one other hope, however. The contract can be fulfilled by winning four tricks in each of the major suits in addition to the club Ace, merely assuming that the heart King is in the West hand and not guarded more than twice. Since if the opponents shift to clubs the heart finesse must work if the contract is to be fulfilled, nothing can be lost by trying diamonds once, as there is a slight chance that the opponents may blunder and not shift to clubs after winning the first diamond lead. If this happens, the diamond suit can be set up without risking the heart finesse.

At Trick Two therefore South led out his diamond Jack. West very brilliantly won this trick with the Ace and shifted to the club Jack. South of course knew that it was useless to hold up his Ace as the East player almost certainly held the diamond King and even though he did not, the heart finesse had to be taken into the East hand anyway. After winning with the club Ace, South realized that he must change his plan of campaign The opponents had not blundered and if given the lead again with the diamond King they would run a good many club tricks.

South, therefore, played for his only hope and led the heart Ten. West covered, the Ace in Dummy won the trick, and the Declarer unblocked the suit by leading a low heart back to his Nine-spot. The Ace of spades was now cashed, the Jack of spades led and overtaken with Dummy's Queen and the seventh, eighth and ninth tricks were taken with the spade Ten and the two high hearts in Dummy.

A simple hand, but one which teaches some good lessons on correct analysis by Declarer.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

'Run Around' Is a Painful Infection

Neglect of the finger nails or the skin of the fingers often leads to severe and disabling infection. A simple hang-nail is a common finger annoyance and may be the seat of a serious infection. When the hang-nail is neglected or irritated, there will be a break of the skin which permits the entrance of germs.

Dr. Copeland

"Paronychia," or "run around," as it is more commonly called, is a common infection found at the edge or root of the nail, caused by neglect of simple abrasions in that region. As a rule, this condition is associated with improper care of the hands and fingers.

Once the germs have entered the skin and come in contact with the tissues surrounding the nail, an abscess forms. The victim is first aware of this infection by a trobbing sensation and painful swelling at the border of the finger nail. The nail becomes dark and raised on its edge. As a rule it is extremely painful and disabling.

Since the abscess burrows its way under the nail, relief can only be obtained by a small incision. This permits the pus to drain out and gives the finger a chance to heal.

Too often the victim of this discomfort resorts to home remedies. This treatment may give relief from pain but rarely a cure. The infection usually recurs and the condition is then spoken of as "chronic paronychia." Ordinarily this leads to a marked deformity of the infected finger nail. It is a disagreeable deformity and for an individual whose work requires careful use of the fingers it is indeed annoying.

I cannot overemphasize the importance of prompt and careful attention to infections and abrasions of the hands. Neglect of a simple scratch or injury may lead to a severe blood infection. I know of many cases where fingers have been sacrificed and even hands amputated because of neglect of a trivial pin prick or simple infection.

When infections of the finger are neglected and pus is present, the infection may spread up the arm and the poisonous substance become absorbed in the blood stream. When this occurs septicemia or blood poisoning may follow. This is a dreaded and serious complication.

Whenever an injury of the finger or hand occurs a suitable antiseptic should be applied immediately. If the injury has been produced by a rusty nail or dirty object, it is best to consult a physician. In such instances it is advisable to receive a "tetanus antitoxin" injection. This will prevent lockjaw.

Never ignore an injury to the finger, regardless of how trivial it may appear to you. Throbbing or painful swelling is a sign that must not be ignored. Delay in obtaining the necessary treatment may mean extensive operation and disfiguring scars.

Answers to Health Queries

I. E. M. Q.—What is the cause of hair turning gray on a young person?

A.—This is sometimes hereditary. It may also be due to worry or shock.

H. S., Q.—What would cause gas, shortly after eating?

A.—This is usually due to indigestion and hyperacidity. Correct the diet and keep the system clear. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

RARE GWINNETT SIGNATURE MAY BRING RICHES

MELROSE, Mass., July 24.—(AP.)—A yellowed copy of the Declaration of Independence, bearing what is believed the rare signature of Button Gwinnett, 39th signer of the document, may bring Mrs. Laura Whynot Harlow, a Melrose dressmaker, a lot of money.

The document has been in Mrs. Harlow's possession 20 years, but the possibility of its value did not occur to her until recently, when she read that autograph collectors had paid as high as $32,500 for genuine signatures of Gwinnett.

Mrs. Harlow said her first husband had given her the paper some time prior to his death and had remarked:

"Keep this. It may be valuable some day."

She was not familiar with the history of the yellowed paper and said she believed her husband, once a St. Louis insurance man, had purchased it for a small sum from a man who came into his office.

Gwinnett signatures are among the rarest of those of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

PET BEAR RAIDS COUNTRY SIDE

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 24.—(AP.)—Heat sent a huge black bear on a rampage yesterday, bringing injuries to two persons and imprisonment of an entire family in a hillside home while the bruin stalked before the door.

The pet bear, Sadie Blake, tore logs from its pen at the Pine Manor Country Club and stalked over the mountain top in a reign of terror that ended with a bullet in the bear's head.

First it attacked Roy Johnson Pike, of Pratt, 11-year-old nephew of Olive Grose, the club's secretary. The boy was clawed and bitten before his aunt drove the animal away.

Then Sadie lumbered down the hillside to frighten the family of Mrs. Roy Fox into their home and keep them prisoners for a quarter of an hour by pacing about the house.

Finally the bear left and encountered Elmer Henshaw, who headed her back toward the mountain top club, but suffered a bitten hand in his efforts.

Back on the grounds, her keeper, John Morgan, Negro watchman, pressed a rifle against the bear's side and pulled the trigger as she clawed at him.

'PARTY' KILLING PLEAS MADE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—(AP.)—Arguing for his client's life, Edwin McKenzie, defense attorney in the Millard Hickman murder trial, asserted to the jury today that the prosecution, "by its own witnesses," had shown it flatly impossible for the marine engineer to have murdered Louise Jeppesen in Golden Gate Park, May 13. He declared:

"By their own witness they have recited screams were heard from that tunnel where a young woman was foully murdered at 4 a. m. And at that very hour we have shown Hickman was calling for Miss Blanche McKay at her own hotel."

Arguments were unlimited in time, but Prosecutor Peter J. Mullins was expected to wind up the arguments this afternoon, demanding that Hickman be sent to the gallows for murder of the Utah girl.

Pastor Accused As Church 'Rebel'

The Rev. J. Murcek and his followers today had been named the insurgent group in the year-old dispute at the Slovak Evangelical Lutheran Church of Duquesne.

John Bibza, secretary of the church board, made the charge when he claimed that the pastor and his group only represented 25 per cent of the congregation. He admitted the church was padlocked Sunday to prevent services after the directors had voted to take the action for the best interest of the congregation and community.

Sewickley Man Wills $20,000 to Widow

Samuel Y. Anderson, Jr., of 223 Melville lane, Sewickley, leaves his estate, valued at $20,000, to his widow, Mrs. Anne Reed Anderson, in a will filed today.

Thomas J. Burke, of 2124 Lloyd avenue, Swissvale, leaves his residence to his niece, Margaret Kilroy, and the balance of his $10,000 estate to a brother, James Burke, and a sister, Mrs. Harry A. Williams.

WHAT? SANTY CLAUS IN JULY?

YES SIR . . . whiskers, reindeers and all . . . The picture may look funny, and the weather may be a bit tough on old St. Nicholas, but if there's no Santa Claus in July, how can you account for the almost give-away prices in our AUGUST SALE OF FURS?

Of course, we wouldn't have you believe that we're giving them away . . . but with all due respect to Santa, when it comes to the August Fur Sale, our manufacturers cut costs and shave profits until the VALUES look like presents under the Christmas tree.

We could point out a dozen reasons why our August Fur Values merit your instant attention . . . We might dwell at length on the high quality of pelts and workmanship . . . We might emphasize the fact that Furs are still far under price, and that we look for sharp and definite advances this Fall . . . We might even let you in behind the scenes and explain how our manufactures have taken advantage of the dull period to fashion these coats with painstaking care . . . but it all gets back to the same point . . . That QUALITY is HIGH, PRICES ARE LOW . . . and the SAVINGS strongly suggest that Santa Claus must have been mixed up in the transaction somewhere.

We've had August Fur Sales for a great many years . . . and so long as we can save you money we're going to keep on having them . . . This year the advantage of buying early is definite and conclusive . . . Otherwise we wouldn't urge it . . . Select your coat carefully and leisurely . . . take advantage of the saving . . . and when the time comes to wear your coat . . . PRESTO . . . IT'S PAID FOR!

But why go on . . . One look will tell you more than pages of type . . . Be your own Santa Claus, and take advantage of the savings in . . .

Robert Traux Forms Ohio Flight Squadron

By J. JAMES MOORE,
Pittsburgh Wing Commander.

Ohio—the Buckeye State—furnishes us great news today!

Robert Traux, 16, of Wellesville, O., R. F. D. No. 1, has applied for a Flight Squadron charter, the first such group to be organized in Ohio. He will get charter No. 9.

Looking over our membership list of more than 3,000 names, I notice that we have many Junior Birdmen and Birdwomen in Ohio. Robert's squadron, however, is the first and we offer him congratulations for his fine work.

Since becoming member No. 1383 he has been a very active worker. We hope that many more of the boys and girls over in Ohio will keep pace with him.

I have been through Ohio many times and I think that its quaint little towns make it one of the loveliest states in the Union. Also I have noticed that it has many dandy open spaces—mile after mile of level open country—that make perfect conditions for flying model planes.

TRAUX GETS GOLD CARD

Robert is also the first of our wing members to change his membership card from the younger to the older group. He was 15 when he joined and now that he is 16 is eligible for the class "A" group.

He sent in his silver card and 10 cents. In return we will send him a gold card and wings and change his classification in our files. Don't forget members to do the same thing when you pass from the "B" class age to the older group.

And here are members of squadron No. 9, all of whom live at R. F. D. No. 1, Wellsville, O.:

Leroy Geisse, 17; Junior Klavuhn, 16; Robert, Floyd and Edwin Roseberry, Carl Miller and Andrew and Joe Kiddey.

I wish that I had a picture of that group to run in the paper. Oh, yes, that reminds me! Send your pictures in so that we can publish them in the column. I also want to take this means of asking Traux to send his picture in.

The first Flight Squadron commander in West Virginia—where we have many members—will also get his or her picture in the paper.

DICTIONARY LIST NO. 30

We're moving fast in this second section of our Air Dictionary. Here's List Number 30 already, with some additional important and instructive definitions. And we start off with the letter "F" today.

FABRIC (GENERAL)—A material for covering.

FABRIC (BALLOON)—The finished material, usually rubberized, of which a balloon or airship envelopes are made.

FABRIC (GAS CELL)—The fabric used in making gas cells for rigid airships.

FABRIC (GOLD-BEATER'S SKIN)—A fabric consisting of a layer of light, fine, strong cloth, usually cotton, to which one or more layers of Goldbeater's Skin have been cemented.

FAIRING—An auxiliary member or structural part of a plane whose primary function is to reduce the drag of the part to which it is fitted.

FERRULE—A metal sheath used to prevent wear on a cable.

FIN—A small fixed auxiliary surface of airfoil attached to the aircraft to aid directional stability.

FIN CARRIER—A frame to which the inboard edge of the fin of a non-rigid or semi-rigid airship is attached so as to prevent the edge of the fin from sinking into the envelope.

FISHTAIL—A colloquail term describing the motion made when the tail of an airplane is swung from side to side to reduce speed in approaching the ground for a landing.

FITTING—A generic term for any small part used in the structure of an airplane or airship. If without qualification a metal part is usually understood.

Have we skipped any words or terms? Perhaps you have noticed one here or there. Even though this may be the most complete dictionary ever published, it is never possible to continue along with a subject such as this and not miss up somewhere. Let me know if you have found a word missing in any of the letters from A to E and I will include it in the addenda at the end of the Dictionary feature.

HAPPY LANDINGS!

ON TRAIL OF GOOSEBERRY PIE RECIPE

By PRUDENCE PENNY

Just about the time a letter popped into the office the other day with a big question about gooseberry pies, an East End avenue woman was becoming psychic—and today we present, as a prize-winner, her recipe for making gooseberry tarts.

Nevertheless, we're still in the market for a good gooseberry pie recipe, so if you have one of which you're a wee bit proud, how about sending it? Remember, you might win a prize. They're awarded daily as follows: One $5 prize, five $1 prizes and five honorable mention cook books. Address Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

And, by the way, you mustn't forget to try today's $5 prize winner, a lovely, different tid-bit. Here 'tis:

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MISS MARGARET BENTZ,
313 Tabor street, Pittsburgh.
BLUSHING APPLE TAPIOCA.

Half cup sugar.
One and one-half cups boiling water.
One lemon, thinly sliced.
Two tablespoons red cinnamon drops.
Four large apples, cored and pared.
Two tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca.
One tablespoon lemon juice.

Combine sugar, water, lemon and cinnamon drops and cook until cinnamon drops are dissolved, stirring constantly. Add apples and cook until tender, being careful that syrup does not boil away. Remove apples, measure syrup and add enough water to make one cupful. Add tapioca and cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Remove from fire and add lemon juice. Fill apples to overflowing with tapioca mixture. Chill. Serve with whipped cream. Serves four.

Five $1 Prize Winners

620 East End avenue, Pittsburgh.
GOOSEBERRY TARTS

Shells:

Two and one-half cups flour.
One and one-half teaspoons salt.
Three-quarters cup shortening.
One egg.
Ice water.

Mix and sift flour and salt. Cut in shortening with a knife. Add beaten egg and only enough water, a few drops at a time, to make the paste hold together. Chill. Break off small pieces of paste, roll out on floured board to one-eighth inch thickness and fit over muffin pans. Trim to fit. Prick with a fork and bake in a quick oven 10 to 15 minutes.

Filling:

Wash four cups of gooseberries and drain. Cook slowly with one and one-half cups sugar and one-quarter cup water until berries are tender, stirring constantly until sugar is dissolved. Add one tablespoon butter and one teaspoon grated lemon rind. Cool. Pour into baked tart shells. Garnish with whipped cream, flavored and sweetened.

MRS. JULIA KABARIN,
2031 McKean avenue, Donora.
LAMB LOAF

Two pounds meat from lamb shank, ground three times.
Two small onions.
Two tablespoons butter.
One cup sifted white bread crumbs.
One tablespoon minced parsley.
One small green pepper, minced.
Two eggs.
One-half cup rich milk.
Salt, pepper and nutmeg to taste.

Combine all ingredients and blend thoroughly. Shape in loaf and bake one hour.

MRS. HAROLD S. KEMP,
268 Franklin avenue, Vandergrift.
FROZEN PEACH SALAD

Mash three cups sliced peaches. Soften two tablespoons gelatine in two tablespoons cold water, dissolve over steam and add to peaches. Stir in one cup mayonnaise and one cup of cream, whipped. Add one tablespoon lemon juice and mix thoroughly. Pour into refrigerator trays or into a mold and pack in ice and salt for two or three hours. Serve on lettuce with additional mayonnaise, if desired.

MRS. HERBERT GIBSON,
113 Grandview avenue, Mt. Washington.
"SNOW IN THE SUMMER" COOKIES

Two cups sugar.
Six egg yolks.
One cup sweet milk.
Three teaspoons baking powder.
One-quarter cup citron, cut fine.
One-quarter pound grated bitter chocolate.
One-quarter pound almonds, chopped fine.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
One-quarter teaspoon cloves.
Three-quarters cup molasses.
Three beaten egg whites.
Three cups sifted flour.

If desired—Two cups raisins, two cups figs, two cups dates, one cup nuts.

Beat egg yolks well. Add sugar and continue beating until light, fluffy. Stir in the molasses. Mix and sift the spices, baking powder and flour. Shake a little over unblanched almonds and citron. Add milk and flour alternately. Stir in flour nuts and citron, and grated chocolate. When thoroughly mixed fold in the beaten egg whites. Add fruit powdered with flour and beat. Drop by teaspoonfuls two inches apart. Bake 20 minutes at 350 degrees F. Makes 250 cookies.

ICING

Beat two egg whites in one and one-half cups confectioners sugar. Beat until thin and spread on cookies.

MRS. PAUL URKO,
819 Fourth street, Monessen.
CHICKEN CROQUETTES

One-third cup butter.
One-half cup flour.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon paprika.
Three-quarters cup chicken stock.
One-third cup thin cream.
One and one-half cups shredded chicken.
Two beaten egg yolks.
Two tablespoons parsley, chopped.
One-half cup nut meats.

Melt butter and add flour. Blend well, then add milk, cream and seasoning. Add egg yolks, cook for one minute, then remove from fire, stir in chicken, parsley and nuts and put on large platter to cool. Shape into croquettes, roll in sifted crumbs and fry to a golden brown.

Honorable Mention

MRS. R. J. ADLER
Box 366, Uniontown.
CHICKEN SOUFFLE

One cup diced cooked chicken.
Two egg yolks.
Two egg whites, well beaten.
Two tablespoons chopped pimenta.
Two tablespoons chopped celery.
One tablespoon chopped parsley.
Three tablespoons butter.
Three tablespoons flour.
One and one-half cups milk.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
One-quarter teaspoon pepper.

Melt butter in saucepan, add flour. When blended, add milk slowly and cook until a creamy sauce forms. Stir while cooking. Add yolks slowly to hot mixture, beating with each addition. Add other ingredients, mix lightly and fold in beaten egg whites last.

Pour into buttered baking dish. Set in pan of hot water and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Unmold carefully and serve with mushroom sauce made by adding cooked mushrooms to thickened chicken broth.

The souffle may be cooked in individual ramekins, requiring about 20 minutes for baking.

MRS. FREDA OSBORNE,
841 Lincoln avenue, Charleroi.
BEET RELISH

One quart beets, diced.
One medium-sized white onion.
Two red peppers.
Two teaspoons salt.
One-half cup grated horseradish.
Two cups vinegar.
Three-fourths cup sugar.

Cook beets until tender, then cold-dip and slip off skins. Chop beets, onions and peppers. Combine ingredients and cook mixture until clear. Seal in clean, hot jars.

MRS. MARIE K. ROSS,
614 East End avenue, Pittsburgh.
KROMESQUIES.

One cup leftover meat or fish, minced.
One tablespoon butter.
One tablespoon flour.
Salt and pepper to taste.
Three-quarters cup evaporated milk.
One-quarter cup water.
Pastry
One egg yolk, beaten.
Sifted bread crumbs.

Make sauce of butter, flour and milk, diluted with water. Add meat or fish and season to taste. If meat is used, a little gravy may be strained into mixture. Cut out rounds of pastry rolled thin (about three inches in diameter). Place a spoonful of mixture on each round, fold over and press together. Dip in egg yolk, diluted with one tablespoon cold water, then in bread crumbs and fry in deep fat. Serve very hot.

MRS. H. F. YAHL
730 Kelly avenue, Wilkinsburg.
PIMENTO CHEESE SPREAD

One-half pound cream cheese, grated.
One can pimentos.
One-half cup milk.
Two hard-cooked eggs.
One raw egg.
One teaspoon butter.
One-half cup vinegar.
One tablespoon sugar.
One teaspoon flour.
One-half teaspoon dry mustard.
One-half teaspoon black and red pepper to taste.

Mix dry ingredients, all the raw egg, milk, butter, cheese and vinegar. Cook until thick and smooth. Add the pimentos and hard cooked eggs. Spread between slices of bread. Serves six or eight persons.

ANNA STROBEL
130 West Eighth avenue, Tarentum.
DATE SPONGE

One cup white sugar.
One-fourth cup butter.
One beaten egg.
One cup milk.
One cup bread crumbs.
One cup chopped dates.
One cup chopped walnut meats.
One-half cup flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.

Cream the sugar and butter, add the egg and milk. Mix the dates, nuts and bread crumbs. Mix and sift the flour and baking powder. Combine everything, turn into a well buttered loaf (in about eight inches square and bake about 30 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees).

Pitt Alumni Offers Two Scholarships

BOY SLAYER'S PLOTTING TOLD

LOS ANGELES, July 24.—(AP.)—Testimony that 21-year-old Louis Payne, son of a St. Louis utilities executive, admitted he planned the murders of his mother and brother for three weeks before he killed them was given at the trial today by L. E. Sanderson, Los Angeles police detective. Sanderson told the jury:

"While I was talking to Payne after he surrendered, he told me he had planned "the murders three weeks beforehand. He said he planned to use a bayonet."

Sanderson said the youth told him he planned the killings because of "small grievances" held against his mother, Mrs. Carrie Payne, and Robert, his 14-year-old brother. They were hacked to death with an ax Memorial Day.

Sanderson said Payne admitted he was annoyed by the reprimands of his mother and brother, and said he was unable to sleep for a week before the murders.

Man Slain, Widow Sues Frick Company

Widowed when her husband was shot by deputy sheriffs, Mrs. Helen Podrosky, of Allison, Fayette County, has filed suit for $50,000 damages in Common Pleas Court against the H. C. Frick Coke Company.

She avers that her husband, Louis M. Podrosky, was standing near Rowes Run at Colonial No. 3, last August 1, when Jack C. Brosius and William C. Black, deputized by the Sheriff of Fayette County, opened fire on him. He died the same day. Podrosky was 38, and leaves three children.

Oh, Boy, What a
CLEARANCE!
Before Inventory

DID you see the people here Saturday? Looked like old times, what? Piles of this, that and the other melted like snow in a furnace, when people saw these reduced prices! Please don't misunderstand. We're NOT giving away the store. We ARE clearing out every last thing that we don't want to carry over till next summer—you can save ENORMOUSLY by buying for now, for next summer, and in some cases, for fall (because this is a half-yearly clearance and there's a lot of goods in it you can wear when it's cool). For to-morrow we've taken additional goods from stock—sweetened up the sale so it will look like the first day, and you'll find thrills a-plenty in all these departments:

FOR MEN: Tropical Worsted Suits, Linen Suits, Slacks, Flannel Trousers, Sports Shoes, Shirts both dress and sports, Ties, Underwear, Socks, Braces, Belts, Bathing Suits, Straw Hats, etc.

FOR WOMEN: Silk Dresses, Cotton Dresses, Acetates, 3-piece Play Suits, Millinery, Footwear, Foundation Garments, Lingerie, Bags, Hosiery, Bathing and Beach Wear, etc.

FOR BOYS: School Suits, Wash Suits, Slacks, Bathing Suits, Sports Blouses, Underwear, Shoes, Wash Knickers.

FOR GIRLS: Dresses, Underwear, Sweaters, Bathing Suits, Footwear, Hosiery. Also Infants' Wear.

In short, almost everything worn by man, woman or child, at sacrifice prices.

A REVOLUTIONARY NEW GENERAL ELECTRIC
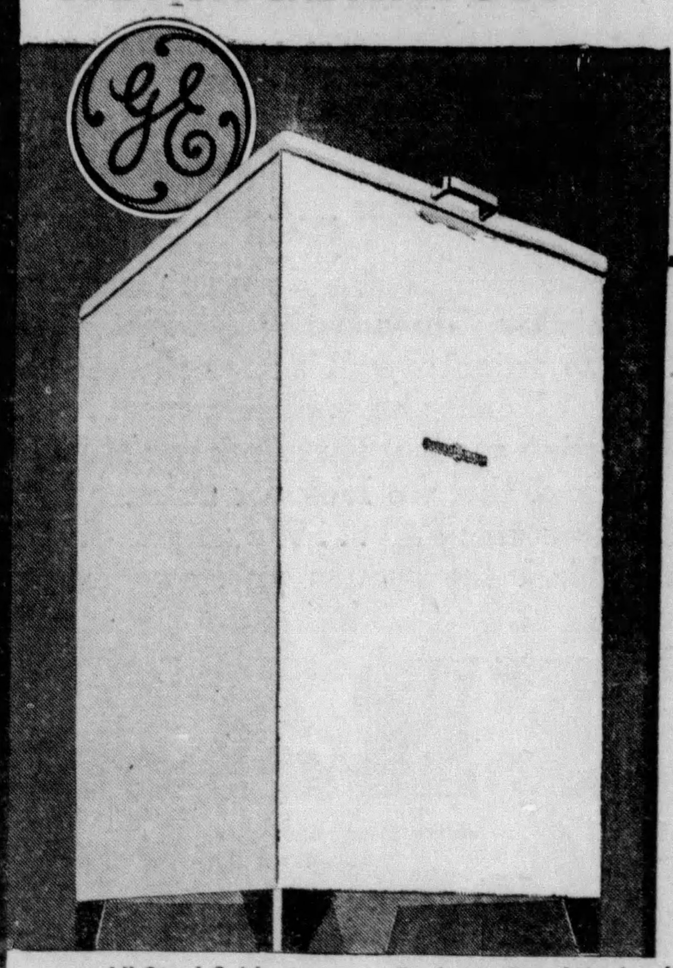
REFRIGERATOR
$95



Lowest Operating Cost in the World

This new G-E "Liftop" refrigerator has the lowest operating cost of any electric refrigerator in the world—provides more refrigeration for current consumed.

Roomy, Convenient

Radically different in design, this G-E "Liftop" requires only 21 x 24 inches of floor space, yet it holds all this food:

| | |
|---|---|
| 2 qts. milk | 2 lbs. tomatoes |
| 2½ pts. cream | 1 bunch celery |
| 1 doz. eggs | 2 grape fruit |
| 1 lb. butter | 2 lemons |
| 2 pkgs. cheese | ¾ doz. oranges |
| 2 cans fruit juice | 1 jar salad dressing |
| 1 bottle catsup | 1 lb. lard |
| 1 bottle cherries | 2 left-over containers |
| 2 lbs. bacon | 1 qt. water bottle |
| 5 lbs. roast | 2 quick freezing trays (20 ice cubes—2 lbs. of ice) |
| 1 head lettuce | |
| 1 big cucumber | |

The big, roomy interior is equipped with food rack and sturdy rust-proof food basket that easily slides to left and right making all contents instantly available.

All-Steel Cabinet
The cabinet is all-steel with one-piece stainless porcelain interior and gleaming white Glyptal baked enamel exterior. Quick freezings shelf is stainless steel that will not chip or rust. Freezes ice or desserts faster—two trays, 20 cubes at one time.

Sealed-In-Steel Mechanism
The G-E "Liftop" is powered with the famous G-E sealed-in-steel mechanism—same principle as in the G-E Monitor Top that is universally recognized as the standard of excellence. It requires no attention—not even oiling.

5 YEARS' Protection
In addition to the standard 1 year warranty the famous seal-in-steel mechanism will be protected 4 more years against failure for only $7.00 —included in the price!

LOPEZ, O'HARE :-: Gala Jamboree At Midnight :-: ON RADIO

'Floradora' Broadcast Tonight

The original New York production brought $2,000,000 into the box office! Edna Wallace Hopper and Cyril Scott were in the first cast. Chorus girls became stars of the stage and married millionaires because they had the golden opportunity of singing, "Tell Me Pretty Maiden."

And now, "Floradora," the sprightly operetta which, at the turn of the twentieth century, made a fantastic chapter of success in theatrical history, is given over the air with Gladys Swarthout and John Barclay heading the cast.

The Beauty Box Theater brings Leslie Stuart's exciting musical play to the NBC-WCAE audience tonight at 10 o'clock.

* * *

George Givot, Greek Ambassador of Good Will, offers another half-hour of fun and further adventures of Acropolis No. 7 during his program with Freddie Rich and his orchestra on WJAS at 9.

SYMPHONY

Josef Honti directs the NBC Symphony Orchestra in tonight's broadcast over an NBC-KDKA network at 9:30 in Franz Liszt's seldom heard "Pester Carneval" Rhapsody and in two movements of Haydn's melodic symphony in D major.

* * *

Frank Munn and Muriel Wilson feature Noel Coward's duet, "Some Day I'll Find You," during the "Lavender and Old Lace" program on WJAS at 8:30.

* * *

"Cop Killer," the newest manhunter mystery, by Stewart Sterling, in which six policemen were murdered within a week, is presented in part tonight during the Crime Clues program on KDKA at 8.

'Kitten On the Keys'

Vincent Lopez illustrates one of his most famous songs, and your Aircaster scratches his head in search of some such suitable caption as "Lopez, the Cat's Whiskers On the Piano." The famous pianist-band leader and Husk O'Hara combine their orchestras in a gala jamboree over WJAS tonight at midnight.

TEN BEST BETS

7:00—WCAE—George Seibel.
8:00—WJAS—Lavender and Old Lace.
8:30—KDKA—Goldman Band.
9:00—WCAE—Duluth Symphony.

12:00—KDKA—Buddy Rogers.
12:30—WCAE—Jack Denny.

Lopez, O'Hare Guests Of Aircaster Tonight

Vincent Lopez and Husk O'Hare, two of the most popular orchestra leaders of radio, stage and ball room, are guests of "Aircaster" on WCAE and WJAS tonight at 6:35.

At 7:15 WCAE opens the Song Bag program, an entertainment rich in variety.

Tomorrow morning women listeners are given many special treat over WCAE between 9 and 10.

Whiteman's Plan Goes Astray

By AIRCASTER

Without wishing to discourage radio listeners, I deem it a duty to report that although many of the comedians are laying off for the summer, the new season, which, according to radio tradition always begins late in August, will bring quite a crop of gagsters, punsters and purveyors of familiar jokes back to the kilocycles.

It seems I was misled when I ventured the opinion recently that the comedy cycle had exhausted itself.

The wish, as they say, probably was parent to the thought.

SKIP IT?

Some eight months ago it was joyfully announced here and elsewhere that Paul Whiteman had decided to inaugurate a foundation for student musicians, to encourage the development of an American idiom in modern music.

Young composers were invited to compete for a scholarship by sending in suites along the lines of Grofe and Johnny Green and Dana Suese lines. The winner would be sent to conservatories for special training, after which he would be groomed as a forthcoming master.

I am wondering what happened to this benevolent project. Nobody seems to have been selected yet. No foundation has been started; no new music has materialized, and—well, maybe we'd better skip it.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

We can start a new department for those Globe Trotters who want to brag about the fact that soon they expect to be fathers.

Not so long ago Jack Dempsey puffed with pride and coyly answered questions for the Globe Trotter about the expected addition to the Dempsey family.

Now comes Morton Downey to town, who in a confiding moment gives some news that would make Walter Winchell grab his pencil and note book.

Morton was telling about his two "kids," Michael, 4, and Sean (Gaelic for John), 20 months, then with a burst of enthusiasm he said that about Thanksgiving his home would be blessed again.

He and his lovely wife already have chosen the name for the newcomer.

If it's a girl it will be named for Mrs. Downey, Marianne Barbara, and if it's a boy he will bear the name of his distinguished actor grandfather, Richard Bennett.

(P. S.—Morton Downey's permission to print secured.)

Things I Never Knew About Hawaii.

(You're Welcome, Mr. Roosevelt.)

Hawaii is pronounced "Hah-vy-ee" or "Hah-wy-ee," not "How-ah-ya."

Although Hawaii contains dense tropical vegetation there are no wild beasts or snakes in the grass.

Hawaiians have no word for "weather" because, it appears, they've never had to do anything about it. (I get it—unusual.)

Except in one small section of the Hawaiian Islands, "little grass shacks" are built only for tourists—and songwriters.

The Hawaiian language has only 12 letters: A, E, H, I, K, L, M, N, O, P, U and W. (What! No NRA?

New England missionaries, using the phonetic method, first put the alphabet on paper for the Hawaiians. Which doesn't explain why the vowel sounds are more Spanish than Yankee Doodle. Or does it?

Aloha, pronounced with a broad "A" is a friendly salutation meaning love. But it also means "Hello," "Goodbye," "Here's how," "Ask her if she's got a friend for me."

Kaukau, pronounced "cow-cow," means food, and "wiki-wiki" means "hurry" in case you land in this part of the U. S. and want something to eat pronto. If you want to be alone, "kapu" means "keep out" and "kulikuli" means "be still." (Look, he's a linguist.)

An old-timer in Hawaii is a "Kamaaina" and a newcomer, like President Roosevelt, is a "Malihini."

Earl Derr Biggers patterned his detective-hero, Charlie Chan, after a member of Honolulu's police force of Oriental ancestry, a cop as American, however, as any of New York's "finest."

Hawaii's volcanic mountains are topped with "tropical snow" and the summit of another mountain is the "wettest spot on earth" (Broadway included), having an average annual rainfall of 433 inches.

A bit of Hawaii is forever England's—the site of the monument of Captain Cook, English discoverer of the Islands in 1778.

In Hawaii's National Park geysers sing, sands bark on the beach and in some places waterfalls "fall" upward. Ask Ripley.

Hawaii's potatoes are bought at a premium in California.

Hawaii has a replica of the Grand Canyon in its Waimea Canyon — and the Yosemite in Iao Valley. The world's largest extinct volcano is Haleakala on the island of Maui.

Hawaiians say cocoanuts have eyes, because they never have been known to drop on a person's head.

They say there are no more ukuleles on the beach at Waikiki than in the average fraternity house.

Hawaii had its theme song long before Hollywood ever thought of such a thing. "Aloha Oe" was the first, and the latest is the popular "Little Grass Shack" number which was the theme song for the revival of the old outrigger canoe racing last year at Kona. These races will be put on again for President Roosevelt this summer.

No billboards mar the beauty of Hawaii's roadways or streets. The Outdoor Circle, a women's club, fought for such a law.

The ancient Hawaiians had spittoons inlaid with the teeth of their enemies. No insult was regarded greater. The Bishop Museum in Honolulu has a curious old refuse bowl made of pine wood, probably from a log which floated down from Washington or Oregon. Molars, to the number of 289, decorate the inside of this strange cuspidor.

Schofield Barracks, one of the many army posts in Hawaii, is the largest military reservation in the United States and the only one to contain every unit which goes to make up a complete army.

Much of the land of Hawaii is not for sale. You lease it.

One of the smaller cattle ranches is on the "Big Island," Hawaii. (It's merely 500,000 acres in area.)

Songwriters such as Harry Revel, Buddy DeSylva and Richard Whiting got their starts as fake Hawaiians in Hawaiian orchestras.

They say there isn't a Hawaiian who can't swim or dive.

Honolulu has its own brewery. Hawaii has its own "soft" drinks—ginger ale from its own ginger; lime rickey from its own limes, and "maluna (soda) water," which comes from the islands' own springs.

None of this is hoomalimali, baloney to you who didn't know till now that "oke" is a drink, and all right, too.

And the largest fish in Hawaiian waters has the shortest name, the "A'u," pronounced ah-oo. The smallest fish bears up nobly under the cognomen "Humuhumunukunukuapuaa." You say it.

Notes From Cabarets

By THE ROUNDER

Ted Black and his recording, broadcasting band will furnish the music for the first two weeks of the Sky Club, Pittsburgh's newest and largest night club, which will open at Bettis Field Friday night with a dance floor 60 by 80 feet. The Sky Club will accommodate 2,000 persons.

The whole set-up has been planned with the purpose of creating an atmosphere of grandeur and modernism. After passing through the newly decorated airport building, which will serve as the entrance to the club proper, guests will face a fountain playing upon a seven-foot statue symbolic of air-minded youth, illuminated by changing, colored lights. Back of the fountain is the dance floor, at the rear of which, in a modernistic orchestra box, the band will play.

At either side of the floor, scattered among rows of thick hedges, colored steel tables, many with gaudily colored center umbrellas, lend a note of gayety and liveliness.

Among those interested in the club are Joseph (Hap) Slater, popular aviator; Edward Huler, department store merchandise man; James Rinelli, caterer; Aubrey G. Wolk and August Becker, operator and general manager of Bettis Field.

* * *

Jake Goldstein, well-known local figure, is now a co-owner of Villa Royale, the Babcock boulevard spot whose "Hot from Harlem" show is boosting it to popularity.

* * *

Vincent Lopez and his boys will be whizzed out to Byerly Crest tonight to make merry with Vincent's old friend, Husk O'Hare, whose band is playing at Byerly. Joining in the celebration will be Johnny Gallagher, former manager of Husk O'Hare, and personal friend of both band leaders. Gallagher has been amusing Byerly guests with an impromptu show.

Feline Wits Purred Well

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Those who remember "The Vinegar Tree" need only be told that Paul Osborne is the author of "Oliver Oliver," the comedy that was put on last night at the Arnold School by the Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse. To that information let me add the candid opinion that this comedy is even better than "The Vinegar Tree." And to that opinion let me add the conviction that Mary Boland or Spring Byington could not have done much better than Florence T. Henry as Constance, the hostess of the house party where everybody hates everybody else and tries to make the week-end generally uncomfortable.

Mr. Seibel

It is the most enjoyable comedy the Playhouse has staged since "Springtime for Henry," and the most perfectly balanced cast anybody could imagine. Opposite the Constance of simpering and sugary romance was Irene Cowan, the perfect embodiment of disagreeable acidulous catfishness—a perfect characterization. Marjorie Morris as the daughter had a most difficult role to play with conviction, but she made it thoroughly credible and also charming. As for Betty Abbott, who has only one line, it is mere justice to mention that this single line and brief appearance were so managed that the feminine half of the cast could be said to be four-square and flawless.

Arthur Marlowe was Oliver Oliver, a part just as difficult as that of Phyllis, and played with the same quiet and smooth conviction. Howard Blaine as the colorless rival did a gallant piece of work with few opportunities. The burden of masculine comedy rested upon James Macfarlane as a Babbitt from Ohio, and Ohio could well be proud of him. Bennett Rodgers, like Betty Abbott, had little to do but did that little well.

The comedy is of gossamer texture, depending upon one situation and half a dozen characters—but the dialogue is so brisk, so sparkling in its humor, and was so deftly put across that one is often reminded of Noel Coward. Just why the clever concoction should have been labeled with so trite a title as "Oliver Oliver" is the mystery of it all. Everybody enjoyed it, laughed consumedly, and went home happy—as you do when you see other people quarreling all evening.

Go to the Arnold School for the vicarious satisfaction of any misanthropic inclinations you may harbor. Florence T. Henry and Irene Cowan will provide you with a pleasantly feline evening, under the approved direction of Arthur Marlowe amid some antique furniture of intriguing design.

Contralto, Pianist In 'Pop' Bill

This evening's "POP" concert on the Hotel Schenley lawn will feature Addison Jones, pianist, as soloist. Mr. Jones will play the Tschaikowsky Concerte in B flat. Sarah Logan, contralto, will sing "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" from "Samson and Delilah." The orchestra will play the following numbers:

"Country Gardens" ..... Grainger
Dream pantomime "Hansel and Gretel" ..... Humperdinck
"Merry Widow" selection ..... Lehar
Prelude—Sonata No. 6 for Violin Solo—
Arr. by Jan Falck ..... Bach
(Played by all violins)
Farandole Suite "L'Arlesienne" ..... Bizet
"Strike Up the Band" ..... Gershwin

Sam Jaffe to Play In Sten Film

Sam Jaffe, the Kringelein of "Grand Hotel" on the New York stage, has left for Hollywood to fulfill his contract with Samuel Goldwyn. When he arrives at the Goldwyn studios he will immediately begin rehearsals for his part with Anna Sten and Fredric March in "We Live Again." Since Jaffe's great success in the Vicki Baum play, Goldwyn has been negotiating for the services of the actor. He will join the company of that producer as one of its foremost figures.

"DILLINGER ENDINGS"

When John Dillinger's body was raked by the withering fire of the government's sharpshooters in the mouth of a Chicago alley it marked the end of a "gangster story" that has had several surprising parallels in the making of motion pictures dealing with the underworld.

While I am well aware that many of the films on the gangster order have more or less glorified their "heroes," the story writers and directors have almost invariably seen to it that their central characters "got what was coming to them" when the climax was reached. The end of Dillinger has run a similar course on the screen several times.

In "Scarface," Paul Muni, playing the ruthless gangster chieftain, was shot to death by machine guns in the hands of police as he came down the back steps of his armoured hide-out. At least, that was the original ending of the film. But several censor boards, among them Pennsylvania's, couldn't swallow that conclusion. They demanded that Muni be sentenced to death in a court of law, so Howard Hughes, the producer, had an alternative ending filmed, and it was used in several states.

"Little Caesar" was another example of a photoplay that had a Dillinger twist at the end. One of the earliest and best of the gangster talkie cycle, this one saw Edward G. Robinson in the role that made him a film star, dead of lead poisoning at the hands of detectives' machine guns. It also had his body rolling into a gutter just as Dillinger's did in that alley's mouth in Chicago.

CLEAR BACK TO "ALIBI"

Young Lew Ayers met a similar fate in "The Doorway to Hell," stepping out of his hideaway to be swept into oblivion by a blast of gunfire from across the street. In those days, too, when the talkies were first getting started, Roland West made a great picture. It was called "Alibi," and in it Chester Morris gave a performance that he has never matched since.

Chick Williams, the role played by Morris, was a yellow gunman, and he stayed that way until the end when he was laid low by a bullet from the gun of Detective Sergeant Tommy Glennon, a characterization filled by Pat O'Malley. "Alibi" also failed to make a hero of its chief murderer, a distinct novelty at the time.

Then, there was Richard Barthelmess in "The Finger Points." If the late Jake Lingle, of the Chicago Tribune, hadn't been put on the spot for just such monkeyshines as Barthelmess engaged in in "The Finger Points," any newspaper reviewer could have dismissed that underworld tale with a wave of the hand and a sniff in the air. The Barthelmess fate in "The Finger Points" was very similar to that of Dillinger, only he was mowed down by the racketeering big shots he had double-crossed, not a squad of detectives or government agents.

And, as Jack Lait told you in one of the finest newspaper stories ever written in yesterday's Sun-Telegraph, there was a "woman in the case." Not just one, but two, where Dillinger was concerned. In the underworld talkies this has been a favorite whim of the script writers. It was, you may recall, the real reason Muni met his fate in "Scarface." To give the movies credit they have held the mirror up to nature faithfully in "rubbing out" their criminal heroes.

RICHARD BARTHELMESS

Speaking of Richard Barthelmess, one can do no less than point to him as the most enduring screen star of the lot. Barthelmess has rated the highest distinction that can be accorded a screen player for 15 years, and in that time he had made the amazing total of 51 motion pictures.

In addition to being one of the few silent stars to carry his popularity over to the talkies, Barthelmess has limned more sides of human nature than any other leading man in the business. Many of his pictures, such as "Broken Blossoms," "The Dawn Patrol" and "The Patent Leather Kid" have been artistic and box office knockouts. Some have been poor, but always has Barthelmess given a good performance. Nothing more could be asked of him.

Although he got close to the underworld in "The Finger Points," in which he appeared as a newspaper reporter, he never delineated a racketeer until Damon Runyon's "Midnight Alibi," originally written as "The Old Doll's House," came along. This picture, incidentally, is his fifty-first photoplay, and while he appears as a New York gambler in it, it owns that "lavender and old lace" whimsy of Runyon's that sets it apart from the usual gangster narrative.

In "Midnight Alibi," too, the dependable Barthelmess makes a radical departure in playing two distinct characters. Neither has any relation to the other, except as each plays a vital part in the life of Abigail Ardsley, once the belle of New York, later an aristocratic white-haired recluse, who breaks her silence of nearly half a century to save the life of the young gambler, who resembles her girlhood sweetheart.

Aherne Gets Role In Hayes Film

Brian Aherne will play the male lead opposite Helen Hayes in the picturization of Barrie's play, "What Every Woman Knows." Miss Hayes has just returned to the West coast from New York. She took a brief vacation after completing her role for the season in "Mary of Scotland," and is to start work in the new picture within the next few weeks.

New Runyon Film Completed

Universal has completed its first Damon Runyon picture, "Million Dollar Ransom." Its cast includes Phillips Holmes, Edward Arnold, Mary Carlisle, Wini Shaw, Marjorie Gateson, Andy Devine, Robert Gleckler, Henry Kolker, Joyce Compton, Dorothy Christy, Spencer Charters and Jane Darwell. It was directed by Murray Roth.

Tale Intended for Marie Goes to Fazenda

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, July 24.—Hello! Although a grand old trouper lies dying in Santa Barbara, there is a yarn—a story at M-G-M—for which she was once mentioned as the star—"Comin' Around the Mountain"—but this was long ago.

Marie Dressler has made her last movie, but the celluloid must move on. "Comin' Around the Mountain," a ditty of the hillbilly, is now slated to co-star Louise Fazenda and Polly Moran!

Long before Marie became seriously ill the M-G-M script dept. started changing the script—to fit Louise and May . . . It sounds odd, perhaps, but nevertheless true . . . And so Louise and May will make their M-G-M bow as a new team of feminine funsters with the yarn. Charles (Chuck) Reisner wrote the script.

* * *

Charlotte Granville, one of those grand, grand dames of the old-timers, mentions that some Hollywood parties are the kind where they burn the scandal at both ends!

* * *

Wanderings around Hollywood . . . Francis Lederer and Steffi Duna have been coo...s loudly in Al Levy's it can be heard in the Brown Derby! . . . Evalyn Knapp and Dr. Snyder are seeing so much of each other! . . . Some old gossip is trying to start a rumor that Joan Crawford is looking in Phil Regan's direction. . . .

* * *

Boulevard Bussings: . . Is there anything wrong in the Bob Hussey romance at the Warner studio or maybe he was just taking out Mary Russell for the idea that she should be seen! . . . Leonard Stenberg, whose pappy has a seat on the New York Stock Exchange (but he doesn't want to sit down), is in town to see the cinema sights with "Broadway Sam" Roth as a guide—and he's really a guide who can show things, no less! . . . Dutch Pettit, a stand-in for Richard Barthelmess, broke his ankle and is really in a bad way, if Dick is reading in! . . . All in the time it takes the Warner Publicity Dept. (Snappy outfit, no doubt) to say zip, Phil Regan has chased George Brent away from Jean Muir—and that's something nobody should fall for! . . . Lil Harvey is up at Lake Arrowhead writing a play! . . . Loretta Young is at the same mountain resort trying to get over a busted romance and recover from her recent illness . . . Alistair Cooke, British dramatic and flicker critic, is in town to see what's happening.

* * *

Bill Halligan has just chimed in on a new radio broadcast—a beer outfit—and he has a swell slogan which should catch on: "Quaff and Grow Fat!"

* * *

Rian James, the Brooklyn columnist—well, he was one—who is now supervisor at Universal, was considerably surprised when a few of the local pillar pills tossed him a dinner. The main courses of the feed-bag were nuts, scallions, applesauce and polenty of roast!

* * *

Movieland meanderings . . . Lew Schreiber, once one of the gay laddies of the town, is now to such a romantic stage with Joan Gale that he has to ask permission to crack jokes—and that's sort of a spot to be in! . . . John Gilbert has just about settled himself as a guy who attracts a flock of attention. In fact, the style he's using for a comeback is a frown-putter on for executive foreheads! . . . A former director—and once a biggie—is now associate editor of a California Prison Journal . . . Harold Lloyd has a scene in his new comedy, "The Cat's Paw," in which he might have used his own youngster to advantage, but much against his publicity department's wishes, he hired a kiddie actor for the role—and thereby lost practically (so I'm told) a ton of press space that would certainly have helped exploit his fun film . . . Baby Peggy (Montgomery), now very much grown up, is doing an adult role in "The Return of Chandu" for Sol Lesser, an independent producer.

In Which the Customers Do the Work

"FEELING A trifle dizzy at the moment," writes F. K., "I offer you astory that is purely original. I hope you will be broad-minded enough not to hold that against me. So:

"It was the night of Paul Revere's memorable ride. The hour: 11:55 p. m. In one of the Colonial homes, a hotcha party was in progress. All the guests had gathered in the kitchen to be more informal—and to be closer to the drinks.

"A silly game was in progress. One man had been elected leader, and he had the privilege of telling anyone of the guests what to do. It was all in fun, and some of the things the guests had to do were pretty batty.

"One of the guests was a young man who was gloriously stewed. His condition was pretty bad. So the leader, pretending it was part of the game, ordered the drunk to go to the parlor window and sit there for further instructions. The young man did exactly as he was told.

"He was sitting by the open window at the precise moment that Paul Revere came galloping by on his famous ride. Spotting the man, Paul cried loudly:

"'Fall out! Fall out! The British are coming!'

"The drunk grinned and tossed himself out of the window headfirst. Then, pretty well shaken, he staggered back into the kitchen and approached the leader of the game.

"'Okay,' he hiccoughed. 'What do I do now?'

"The leader, seeing that his friend still needed plenty of air, ordered him back to the open window. The drunk, still thinking it was all a part of the game, did as he was told. He was swaying at the window when Paul again galloped by.

"'Fall out!' cried Revere. 'Fall out! The British are coming!'

"Obeying instructions, the drunk again toppled out of the window. Arising with difficulty, he stumbled around to the kitchen. And for the third time, the leader ordered him back to the open window.

"He had just arrived when Paul Revere rode by again. Seeing the man still standing at the same window, Paul grew a bit peeved. He drew up in front of the window and spoke harshly.

"'What's the matter with you, man?' he asked. 'I've told you the British are coming. Fall out, man. Fall out!'

"The stew gazed blearily at the horseman.

"'Lishen, feller,' he muttered disgustedly, 'I'm gettin' tired of thish. Don't you know any other games?'"

"THAT was a swell gag the other day," writes James Gillen. "The one, I mean, about the Scotchman who grew angry at a friend and said: 'A nut to you!'

"DEAR Mark:" writes Howard Snyder. "A young boy about eight years of age was brought into court by a policeman. 'What's the charge?' asked the judge.

"'Your Honor,' replied the cop, 'this boy is a nudist.'

"'What?' shouted the magistrate. 'That young lad is a nudist?'

"'Yes, Your Honor,' said the officer. The judge shook his head sadly.

"'What a pity,' he sighed. 'Just a mere stripling!'" . . .

"This gal is so extra thick that she is convinced a bookend is the last chapter of a volume, and that a time-table is something the clock stands on. She maintains that faro-bank is an Egyptian trust company, and insists that Free Wheeling is in West Virginia.

"In spite of all arguments to the contrary, she still holds to the belief that an octaroon is a cocoanut cookie; that the legitimate stage has a father, and that a tidal wave can be had in an expensive beauty parlor.

"She is confident that a tiger-shark is a fellow like Frank Buck, and that a breeches buoy is a kid in short pants. But—and if Mr. Koszalka's girl can top this, she wins the championship—Ozzie's friend told him the other night that a Pole Vault was a foreigner's safety deposit box!" . . .

Brisson Is All Fussed About Dog Tip

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, July 24.—Midnight detective work by Carl Brisson has solved the mystery of the barking dog on movie row in Benedict Canyon. But is the Danish actor's face red!

Residents of the district long have complained about the howling of dogs on the estates of film stars, who kept kennels both as a hobby and as a practical safeguard against prowlers. Gloria Swanson's dogs were at one time the chief offenders, and she finally was persuaded to get rid of most of them. Harold Lloyd's great danes also came in for their share of complaints.

Recently, however, the peace of the night has been disturbed by only one deep-voiced animal. Neighbors decided that it was Brisson's police dog, Prince, and registered a complaint with the Beverly Hills authorities. But when visited, the actor stoutly denied that Prince was the offender.

And so the situation stood at a deadlock until the other midnight, when Brisson waked up to hear the loud baying from some nearby point. He summoned the police, showed them that Prince was safely in the house, and then suggested a scouting expedition.

This time the howler was discovered. It belongs to Sylvia Sidney, Brisson's neighbor and recent fellow player at the Paramount studio. The actor is chal embarrassed to have played informer.

* * *

The village wits have been working overtime since the birth of the Crosby twins. Herman Hoffman would have it that Dixie Lee gave Bing "the double Crosby."

* * *

What is local banditry coming to? Inez Courtney, pretty Columbia starlet, had her apartment burgled the other evening and the thief took only silken whal-nots. The loot included 23 nightgowns, 19 pairs of pajamas and eight negligees. Well, imagine having that many anyway!

* * *

Even if he did leave himself wide open, Guy Kibbee is a little nettled. The other day, driving over Cahuenga pass toward Warner Brothers, the comedian picked up a hitch hiker. They got to talking and Kibbee admitted he usually was afraid of giving a ride to strangers.

The hitch hiker comforted:

"You needn't worry, Mr. Kibbee. Those holdup fellows wouldn't bother an actor. They want cash."

Gossip is that Joel McCrea's deal for one picture at RKO just forestalled the company's suit against him, charging breach of contract. The tall, young star draws twice as big a weekly pay check for the new film as he did under his 52-week contract. But Universal was ready to give him a long-term agreement for three times his RKO salary. So it doesn't look as if Joel and Frances Dee will exactly starve, even if she is off the screen until the baby is born in September.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Ken Maynard, star of "horse operas," as the flippant term western pictures, who will make a personal appearance at the Roxian Theater, McKees Rocks, tomorrow, and who saw that type of picture all but disappear when sound came in, has had his faith justified. Such films have been "coming back," and there probably will be more than the usual number made under the New Deal. The bad gunman never did come out on top in westerns, that triumph always being reserved for the cowboy types played by Mr. Maynard, Hoot Gibson and Buck Jones, and by many now out of pictures, including Tom Mix and Bill Hart. Ken Maynard, native of Texas, is a collector of cowboy songs—can sing 'em, too—and he plays the fiddle and banjo. Before the movies got him he was a rider and roper in a circus. Besides riding horses, he is addicted to airplanes, being a licensed pilot, and boats.

* * *

That movie contract whereby Theresa Helburn, executive director of the Theater Guild, joined the staff of Columbia Pictures, was consumated by means of a telephone conversation between Hollywood and New York. "Mary of Scotland," which starred Helen Hayes, was directed by Miss Helburn, who was in Pittsburgh during its presentation in the Nixon last fall. She also was here a year previous to that occasion, as director of "The Pure in Heart."

* * *

No less than 16 new plays are listed for try-outs in eastern summer theaters this week, including "Amaco," by Martin Flavin, which has been published Philip Merivale is the author of another, "Such Men Are Dangerous." Another, by John McGee and Bernard Sold, bears the title "Brigham Young." It is historical, of course, and is dramatic in tone.

Do You Know As Much As Your Cat?

She's a knowing cat.

She asks for little—just her meals, a saucer of milk and a place in the sun. She gets plenty of sleep and exercise. She never worries, never frets. What is the result? Such vitality and resistance that we say, "Cats have nine lives."

What does your cat do when she is not well? She eats catnip, if she can find it. She eats grass and certain green plants to which her instinct leads her.

Your cat takes herbs for a tonic.

Did you ever stop to think that Old Mother Nature, who supplies the herbs necessary to your cat's health, has also provided the herbs necessary to your own well-being?

You don't have to hunt for them as the cat does. The herbs you need are skillfully blended and compounded in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, an old fashioned tonic that will help to restore your strength and energy.

TROLLEY MEN 'CRAZED' BY STRAIN, BOARD TOLD

NEW YORK Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 24.—Max Baer is entirely too unpredictable for an estimate on the permanency of his popularity after six weeks of championship. But so far he has kept on the tight rope without a wobble. The fact he rescued prize fighting on its death-bed gives him face with fight fans.

Broadway sees the fine Italian hand of Jack Dempsey in the post-battle restraint of the new champion. It is not believed he thought up going straight from the arena to his hotel. But had he celebrated the defeat of a tremendously brave pugilist in night club monkey-shines it would have hurt him.

Baer's sophomoric affection and admiration for Dempsey also show his qualities are not altogether that of the killer. He is childish in his adoration. Already he is imitating Dempsey's do-si-do walk. His show-off propensities are a part of his natural exuberance. Broadway is one place that likes them.

Like or dislike him, he is a natural for the headlines. In a distraught world, he flames the imagination. The chief complaint that he is a clumsy dockwalloper and could not stand up under a scientific boxer is beside the point. Just now the public is interested only in watching him "go to town."

* * *

Westchester's most beautiful motoring boulevard, Bronx River Parkway—suggesting a transplanted turn of the Bois toward St. Cloud—tries to bring a blush to selfish drivers with signs "Don't be one of these"—arrowing to a big fat porker.

* * *

Percy Crosby, more or less incognito, often comes up from his Virginia estate to loaf about the sand lots of his native Brooklyn. The young ball players there furnish him much material. During the summer a hundred and one games are in constant activity across the bridge. In the see-saw of such youthful spirits there is a fountain of unconscious humor, some of which is often imprisoned in the "Skippy" cartoons.

* * *

Now and then, motoring off Long Island's beaten paths, one comes upon a queer little straggle of houses and a general store, a hamlet trying vainly to be a village. They languor in serene decline, very lonely, stifled by old attitudes, old habits. Dusty and untouched by progress, they seem indifferent to all efforts of cultivation. Although they have been rooted there for years.

* * *

My vote for Long Island's spotless town goes to Jackson Heights. I discovered it but recently, although it's a short spin across the bridge and well established. The spic hedged walks, spreading trees and profusion of shrubbery make it a veritable suburban greenery. It does not appear peopled by the enormously rich or the dreadfully poor. Instead, by the Grade A of that designation sociologists call middle class. The children, with faces always ashine, have big yards at every corner on which to play. Too, there are adult sketchers at easels. Young marrieds who stroll hand in hand. Romping, well mannered dogs, window love birds. And an extravagant aroma of flowers.

* * *

One of the reigning beaux of the beaches this summer was Clarence Gould, long a Winter Garden juvenile under the billing, Jay Gould. He sported the gayest beach robes and bathing getups and was usually surrounded by a bevy of beauties. Gould's career as a promising young lawyer in Muskegon, Mich., was diverted by a stage struck siege that brought him to New York. He was married and later separated from the attractive heiress, also stage star, Lorraine Manville, whose leading man he was in a long Broadway run.

* * *

I walked slowly past that queer fling of architecture the fast-decaying old brown brick Wendell mansion on the avenue late last night. The four storied gloom was relieved only by a dull blob of light from a third-floor window. Two or three floppy shutters squeaked in the sway of night breezes. A prowling cat minced along a high wall in the rear. Had somebody suddenly touched me and given a shrill whistle I could have, just like that, become the standing broad jump champion. Its strange occupants, family feuds and miserly mysteries surpass anything ever thought up by the spookiest of the thrill writers. And is the town's ugliest eye sore.

COUNCIL PLANS $1,444,874 FOR WORKS

Cash From Bond Issue To Be Used for Wide Variety of Projects

An ordinance providing $1,444,874 of city improvements is before the public works committee of Council.

The projects would be financed from the general improvement bonds of 1934.

One of the projects calls for the expenditure of $92,000 for improvements at the zoological gardens. Expenditure of $295,000 for repairs at the city's pumping stations also is provided.

BRIDGE REPAIRS

Included also is a request for $30,000 for repairing and repainting the Manchester Bridge and other sums for additional bridge and street improvements.

An ordinance creating positions for 12 draftsmen, two transitmen, two rodmen, one chainman and one clerk in connection with bond projects was introduced in Council yesterday.

Councilman John Kane presented a resolution for the appropriation of $3,500 for the Police Research Commission.

Welfare Director Southard Hay submitted a communication setting the cost of improvements which he said were needed at Mayview at more than $2,000,000.

AUTHORITY PROVISIONS

An ordinance giving the city's consent to the Allegheny County Authority projects was presented and referred to the Public Works Committee.

President of Council Robert Garland offered an ordinance barring fireworks from the city and communications from the Civic Club of Allegheny County and other organizations favoring a ban on fireworks.

Also presented was an ordinance extending the city's zone map to include portions of Penn Township, annexed to the city.

Health Director Ray P. Moyer submitted a communication recommending the distribution of toxoid free to practicing physicians and the payment of 50 cents for each immunization in all cases of diphtheria.

Council Considers Zone Cab Support

City council today was to decide if it will join with the Zone Cab Corporation, which promises to place 300 cabs on city streets at lower rates than now being charged by the Parmelee Company, operating the yellow cabs. The city law department was to report on the progress of the Zone's case now before the Public Service Commission, which was laid before council yesterday and referred to the committee on service and surveys.

Hearing on the company's application for a permit to operate the cabs will be resumed by the Public Service Commission September 12.

Woman Fined $50 As Collector in Numbers Racket

ARREST MADE IN 'QUARANTINE'

Known to police as the "pickup woman," according to testimony in North Side Police Court today, Sara Yeagley, 33, of 515 Walker street, was fined $50 in a cleanup of two reputed numbers lottery headquarters. Three men were fined $100 each and another man, the woman's alleged companion, was fined $50.

According to testimony of City Detective William A. Doench, he followed Miss Yeagley in an automobile around North Side streets last night. She made several stops, according to Doench, at which time men standing on the curb would hand in envelopes, presumably containing money. She and the man finally stopped at 515 Walker street and went in. Police, ignoring a diphtheria quarantine sign, followed and arrested her and Angeleo Gustafero, 31, of 1015 Reedsdale street. Miss Yeagley testified:

"I was driving the automobile, that's all I know."

Others fined $100 each in another numbers raid included James Brown, 60, and Leo Wise, 37, both of second floor, 910 Duquesne way, and L. Wise, of 805 Ledlie street.

LAW TIGHTENS GRIP ON BANDIT SUSPECTS

More Charges Added Against Pair Identified By Blinded Man

The law cracked down today with new charges on the two men who have been identified by their voices as bandits who robbed and blinded George Stratigos, 49, in his bowling alleys at 2804 Fifth avenue.

John Arendash and Nick Derembeis, both of Homestead, have been identified also as the stickup men who held up the Iroquois Club at Conneaut Lake two weeks ago, according to Sam Wheeler, inspector of city detectives.

The identification was made yesterday from photographs by J. O. D. Kirkpatrick, 45, of Meadville, shot in the holdup, who is now in Columbia Hospital there, Wheeler said.

Wheeler said he had filed charges of felonious assault with attempt to commit murder, highway robbery, pointing firearms, before a Meadville squire.

The inspector added that the prisoners were suspects in 35 robberies in Pittsburgh.

Arendash and Derembeis deny all the charges, including the identification by the blind Stratigos, whose eyesight was gouged out by the thugs who robbed his place.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park said today that if either of the prisoners seeks liberty on bail, the bond will be set at the unusually high figure of $50,000 each.

CAPITAL GOAL OF RUNAWAYS

Apparently unaware that President Roosevelt is almost on the other side of the globe, a Pittsburgh brother and sister and a girl companion, who disappeared from home Sunday, were reported en route to Washington to see the President, according to a letter received by the parents here today.

The President's callers are Edward Bett, 15, and his sister, Mary, 16, of 2047 Veronica street, and Viola Prom, 14, of Lowrie street. Mrs. Mary Lynch, mother of the Bett children, told police she received the letter today which read:

"We are heading for Washington to see the President. We're having a fine time. Everybody is well. Don't worry."

Yesterday, Mrs. Lynch said she found a note in Edward's bedroom which read:

"We are going through with our plans to go to Chicago to see the World's Fair. Don't worry about us, we'll be all right."

The mother notified the Bureau of Missing Persons, which asked Washington police to be on the lookout for the trio.

McDonald Boy, 10, Dies in Water Hole

John Donort, 10, of McDonald, was drowned while swimming in a water hole on the property of the Pittsburgh Coal Company at Sturgeon last night. His body was found floating on top of the water by a group of boys returning from a baseball game.

Mr. Mellon, his shoe broken, his pants patched, pictured today at work in the little one-flight-up among Pittsburgh's downtown skyscrapers that has been his home for 18 years. He "batches," was on public relief for $1.50 a week for the first six months of the year (a mistake, he says). Of Cousin "Andy": "I didn't ask for anything and didn't want anything . . . he wanted me to be comfortable." From the Mellons he now gets a monthly allowance. Mr. Mellon is a son of Samuel Mellon, only brother of the late Judge Thomas Mellon, father of Andrew William Mellon, former U. S. Secretary of the Treasury. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

BRAIN FAG LAID TO HIGH SPEED SCHEDULES

Work, Worry Doubled In Operation of One-Man Cars

Trolley motormen "driven crazy" trying to maintain fast schedules on one-man cars was the picture drawn today before a special arbitration board by Alex H. Logue, secretary of the trolley men's union.

Logue declared there were three or four such cases. One motorman, starting from Sixth street and Penn avenue, "lost his mind" suddenly and went to the North Side when he was scheduled to run to East Liberty, he said.

Leslie Vickers, counsel for the Pittsburgh Railways Company, immediately demanded the names of the men. Logue gave the names of two men. As a union official, he had been told of the cases, he said.

Logue's testimony was given following statements by Michael Garvey, president of the union, that if working conditions continue:

"In five years no man now operating a car will be fit to operate one."

Attacking the service maintained by the traction company during the early part of last winter as "scandalous," Garvey declared that the operators of one-man cars were forced to do the work of three men during rush hours. He explained that formerly a trailer, or extra car, containing a conductor, was attached during rush periods to the two-men cars, but that now one man is forced to do all this work.

Garvey said:

"Work and worry are doubled in the one-man cars.

"In spite of everything, you feel yourself slipping after the strain of operating one of those cars. You feel it on the job, carry it into your home life, to your children and in all your activities.

"There are three doors in the car that must be watched at all times. With increased speed, the men have 'close shaves' and accidents that prevent them from sleeping weeks and months afterward.

"A man would have to have nerves made of steel to withstand trolley operation in Pittsburgh."

WIFE, DAUGHTER SEE MAN KILLED

While crossing Main street, West End, where his wife and daughter awaited him, John Knittel, 62, of 327 Noblestown road, was fatally injured by an automobile last night.

LeRoy Willard, 43, of Bridgeville, was held in $1,000 bond as driver of the car pending his appearance before the Coroner, police said.

Ray Dietz, of 166 South Eighteenth street, suffered a fractured toe yesterday when the ice truck he was driving crashed into a pole in Grandview avenue, near Shiloh street, according to police.

Calvin Larzioffi, 5, of 720 Catherine street, Duquesne, died late yesterday in McKeesport Hospital from a skull fracture, suffered Saturday when he was struck by a truck, according to a Coroner's report. James N. Keinerer, of Oak street, Duquesne, the alleged driver, was ordered to post bond pending an inquest.

NECK BROKEN IN POOL DIVE

Stephen Lux, 50, assistant superintendent of the Frick Building, was near death in a Canton, O., hospital today as the result of a dive into a shallow swimming pool, when he received a broken neck.

Lux left Pittsburgh, with his wife and family Saturday, to visit relatives, and was seeking relief from the heat in a Canton swimming pool yesterday when the accident occurred. He lives at 1503 Rutherford avenue.

City Ordinances Codified at Last

Codification of general city ordinances for preparation of a printed volume was completed today. Thomas M. Benner, first assistant city solicitor, said the volume will contain more than 1,000 pages even after many obsolete and repealed ordinances are dropped. The work took two years and was the first codification in 26 years.

Veteran Airman Had More Planes Than Government

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Newton Baker okays the Army mail fliers. But claims that even a feather will not fly unless it is attached to a bird.

The Army needs thousands of new birds. When you are boosting aviation don't forget a man who just passed away in California.

His name was Bill Pickents. Way back in 1911 Bill owned more planes than the government. I wrote his story some years ago.

One of Bill's fliers actually started the air mail. One of his boys was the first to fly over water. Another was the first to land on a battleship.

Bill started with Barney Oldfield and switched to aviation. He promoted flying in every big city in America and hired out his boys to China, Mexico, Japan and points east.

Write in and ask me about Mickey McQuire, who was shot down by his own army paymaster to save Villa a year's pay.

Fire Flares in Shaft Of Paper Building

Fire, believed caused by an overheated motor, caused $200 damage in the Post-Gazette Building, 612 Wood street, early today. Starting in the basement, the blaze flamed up the elevator shaft for several floors before it was placed under control.

M'NAIR RENEWS FINLEY ATTACK

Mayor McNair has resumed his attack against Traction Conference Board Chairman Charles A. Finley, whom he is attempting to oust in favor of Theodore L. Moritz, the Mayor's secretary and factotum.

In a communication notifying Council that during its recess he had named Moritz to Finley's post, the Mayor yesterday charged that Finley was representing the interests of the railways company rather than the interests of the car riders.

The Mayor also charged that Finley was an obstacle to the 5-cent fare campaign. He declared that Finley is holding office illegally because he is receiving a pension of $125 a month from the city.

On motion of Councilman William A. Magee, the Mayor's communication was referred without comment to the Committee on Service and Surveys.

AUTO STRIKES TREE, 2 HURT

Two men were injured when a careening auto hit another car and crashed into a tree on the Mount Royal boulevard, near Etna, early today. John Mangold, 22, of 616 East Ohio street, the driver, and Robert Wold, 23, 523 Sulsmon street, were treated at the Allegheny General Hospital.

Albert G. L. Karn, 24, 2643 Connecticut avenue, Dormont, driver of the second car, and Ed Blaba, 100 East Genesse street, Etna, escaped injuries. Both cars were wrecked.

M'Nair Cabinet to Quiz Firemen on Union

Leaders of the city firemen's union will be called before Mayor McNair's cabinet within the next two weeks in the Mayor's campaign to guarantee fire protection for the city in the event of a general srike.

They probably will be questioned on the possibility of divided loyalty—on the one hand to the city, on the other to the union.

At a meeting of the Mayor's cabinet yesterday the question of having the firemen drop from the union was raised.

City Treasurer James Kirk urged caution, declaring the Mayor should hesitate before asking men to drop from an organization that had helped them better their wages and working conditions.

Col. W. R. Dunlap, director of city supplies, stated that the firemen have no more license to belong to a union than the Army does.

Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston voiced his opposition to permitting any city employes belonging to a union.

The Mayor's proposal for organizing volunteer firemen's organizations to protect the city in the event of a strike of regular firemen was held up pending the hearing of the firemen's union leaders.

Also delayed for further study was the Mayor's proposal for the construction of three sewage-treating plants to take care of sewage now flowing into the three rivers.

Every summer home is a scene of family reunions. Married sons and daughters and their children usually spend all or part of the summer with their parents who have summer places.

In addition there are non-family guests galore; so that every summer home is a scene of a perpetual house party during July and August.

The Stephen Stone family are gathering for the summer on Georgian Bay, Canada. The Stephen Stones, of Forbes street, are there already with their son Stephen Stone, Jr., and their daughter, Mrs. Ellen Stone Bailey, and her children.

Mrs. J. Shirley Austin, another daughter of the Stones, and her children are to join them for the summer, too.

* * *

W. P. Witherows At Beaumaris

The William P. Witherows, their daughter, Virginia, and son, William P. Witherow, Jr., have been at "Rockmont," their Beamaris, Ontario, home since the twentieth of June. Mr. Witherow was in town yesterday, but he left for Canada again last night.

* * *

In the summer Helen and Sherley Tunnell, post-deb daughters of the E. Paul Tunnells, of Aylesboro avenue, always go to Newport, R. I.

There they are always guests of their aunt, Mrs. Peyton J. Van Rensselaer, at her summer place, "The Playhouse."

The Tunnell sisters and Margaretta Oliver have just motored to Newport. Sherley will attend a house party later on in the season—she'll be one of the many guests at popular Beaumaris, Canada.

Margaretta Oliver is a daughter of the Augustus K. Olivers.

* * *

One of the most popular resorts on the New Jersey coast is fashionable Spring Lake. There the Thomas Clifton Jenkinses have their summer home, "Swanhurst," which they opened about a fortnight ago.

Their daughter Elizabeth is with them. Their son-in-law and daughter, the Edwin M. Rheas, will probably join them before the season is over.

R. T. Eastells At Swampscott

Enjoying a summer visit at Swampscott, Mass., on the ocean near Boston, are the R. T. Eastells and Peggy Eastell, their daughter. They're staying at the New Ocean House there.

* * *

Among those who spent the week-end at fashionable Hot Springs, Va., were Mrs. William G. Costin and Mrs. Edward Houston Bindley, who arrived at the Homestead there Friday morning.

Mrs. Frank S. Love is spending the summer at quiet, cool Pike Run Country Club, just a few hours by automobile from town.

Her young daughter, Rebecca Frances Love, is in Canada just now visiting friends.

Pittsburgh Folk Visit At Summit

Among the Pittsburghers who spent the past week-end at the Summit Hotel, Golf and Country Club, Uniontown, were Miss Mary E. Morris and Miss Helen D. Ross, Miss Dorothy Brown, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Perry, Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Patton, William R. Edmondson, W. H. Heider, Miss Martha Yost, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Brown, Robert W. Reader, Mr. and Mrs. W. Miller, Mrs. J. C. Stamp, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Rafferty.

A number of Pittsbughers making up foursomes at golf included Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Craig, Mr. and Mss. J. L. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Porter, O. H. Henry, F. Drake, W. S. Deal, Mr. and Mrs. John Dolphin, E. S. Justice, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Albright, E. R. Brennan and A. W. Pope.

Mrs. I. Elmer Ecker, of Pittsburgh, entertained a party of friends in the Baron Munchausen room. Included in the party were Miss Selma D. Barger, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Grove, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Ballinger, Miss Ada M. Kassimer and Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Aul.

Maxine Cuden To Wed in September

A Pittsburgh girl, whose engagement was announced in June, has chosen a September date for her wedding. She is Miss Maxine Bertha Cuden, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Cuden, of Valmont street, and on Semtember 2, she will wed William Milton Adler, of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton S. Adler, of Rochester, N. Y.

The ceremony will take place in the Cuden home with the Rev. Solomon Frehoff, of the Rodef Shalom Synagogue, officiating.

Miss Cuden attended the University of Wisconsin and last month was graduated from Pennsylvania College for Women. Her fiance is a Stanford University graduate.

Lorraine Packer To Wed in Fall

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Packer, of Watts lane, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lorraine Packer, to Martin Schwartz, of Oakland. An early fall wedding will terminate the bethrothal.

Pythian Sisters Plan Card Party

Pythian Sisters, of McKees Rocks, will hold a card and bingo party Thursday at Bemus Club rooms, Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks.

The education committee head this year will be Mrs. F. W. Coulter with Mrs. G. N. Myers as vice chairman. Mrs. D. R. Ferguson is chairman of attendance, Mrs. J. W. Nesbitt, vice chairman; Mrs. A. L. Nelson, social, with Mrs. Regis Nycum as vice chairman.

On the ways and means committee, Mrs. W. J. Diamond is chairman and Mrs. F. M. Billheimer, vice chairman; better magazines, Mrs. George Fisher, chairman, and Mrs. Arlington Locke, vice chairman; legislative and civic, Mrs. Lettie Ege, chairman, and Mrs. A. J. Jaegle, vice chairman; soldiers and sailors, Mrs. John Dean, chairman, and Mrs. F. T. Blaidell, vice chairman; finance, Mrs. E. E. Wenrich, chairman, and Mrs. Keller Zimmerman, vice chairman.

The music committee is large—Mrs. O. B. Hamer is chairman; Mrs. Wallace Bishop, vice chairman; Mrs. Nancy Canan McMunn, director; Mrs. N. R. Woode, pianist.

Members of the choral are Mrs. J. Dick Crawford, Mrs. Robert Drennen, Mrs. Carrie Henderson, Mrs. F. C. Horrell, Mrs. Arlington Locke, Mrs. E. C. Miller, Mrs. George Miller, Mrs. A. L. Nelson, Mrs. Marvin W. Smith, Mrs. E. B. Simpson, Mrs. Naomi Struble, Miss Edith Wooldridge and Miss Bess Williamson.

There is also a Junior Civic Club, of which Mrs. N. R. Korb is president.

Knoxville Juniors on Vacations

Some of the members of the Junior Auxiliary to the Woman's Library Club of Knoxville are taking time off from their philanthropic work for vacations.

Mrs. Joseph S. Schuchert and her family are spending the summer as guests of her mother, Mrs. M. V. O'Donnell, at her cottage at Geneva-on-the-Lake, Ohio.

Mrs. Joseph Burke and her family are on a motor trip which will include the World's Fair in Chicago.

Mrs. Robert C. Cox has just returned from a visit of several months in Kansas City. Mrs. Melvin H. Knoepp is planning a trip to the Pacific coast by airplane early in August and Mrs. Henry M. Oates is spending the summer as the guest of her parents at their summer home in Portersfield, O.

Mrs. G. Dewey Smith left Friday for a short stay at Beverly Beach, Md., and Mrs. Charles L. Bowman will return shortly after the first of the month from Rehoboth Beach, Delaware.

Mrs. H. G. Solbach and family are at Conneaut Lake for the summer, Mrs. Bernard C. Kreitsch will leave this week for Detroit, and Mrs. E. F. Walker will be in New Martinsville, W. Va. for the remainder of the summer.

Greers Sail On Southern Cruise

Dr. and Mrs. Martin Greer, of Pittsburgh, sailed Friday on the Santa Paula for Havana, Colombia, Panama, El Salvador, Mexico, California, British Colombia and Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Johnston and Mr. and Mrs. John M. Edwards, of Halket street, are in New York, at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Dr. Linharts Informed of Newcomer

The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. S. B. Linhart, of Alliquippa street, have received announcement of the birth of a granddaughter, Lois Anne Grabill, to their daughter, Mrs. Dayton L. Grabill, of Montreal, Canada, the former Miss Lois Linhart, on July 10. Mrs. Linhart will leave soon to visit her new granddaughter.

PARIS, July 24.—Freddy Procter, soap scion and his wife, the former Dorothy Stokes, are going to kiss and make up after "icing" each other for weeks.

Freddy, who has been moping in London, will find the key under the doormat when he returns to Paris, in a few days and all talk of divorce has been outlawed. Freddy and Dorothy began glaring two months ago when she threatened to leave on account of his "strange sense of humor" at parties.

Pittsburghers Visiting In East

Pittsburgh travelers to New York during the past week were Miss Grace Hamilton and Miss Bertha Strauss, who were registered at the Waldorf-Astoria, and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Mitchell, Mrs. P. J. Finnell and Mrs. Josephine Weems, who were all at Hotel Lincoln.

Atlantic City also attracted a number of Pittsburghers including Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Decker, of Anderson avenue; Miss Hazel M. Brunt, of Jancey street; Mr. and Mrs. James Wyman, Marshall avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gaber, Kennedy avenue; Miss D. M. Hudson, North Negley avenue; Mrs. L. F. Petty, of Bennington avenue, and S. S. Wilson, of Ben Avon.

Bregenzer Nuptials In Fall

September 15 is the date chosen by Miss Celeste Marie Bregenzer for her marriage to Dr. Francis A. Aaron. Miss Bregenzer is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Bregenzer, of Outlook drive, Mt. Lebanon, and her fiance is a son of Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Aaron, of Hazel drive, Mt. Lebanon.

The bride-elect is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh where she was a Theta Phi Alpha and Dr. Aaron, a graduate of Jefferson Medical School, is a member of Phi Beta medical fraternity.

Miamian Guest Of Daughter Here

Mrs. L. W. Ink, of Miami, Fla., formerly of Pittsburgh, is visiting her family and friends here. She has been visiting her son, Theodore B. Ink, of Brookline, and at present is with her daughter, Mrs. H. Lippert, of Mt. Washington.

Washington Travelers Return

By GEORGINA WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Although the tide of travel is set definitely away from Washington, a scattered few are drifting home with holidays abroad behind them.

Among them are Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery Blarr, Jr., fresh from several weeks in Rome, and Mr. and Mrs. Delattre Seguy, who had an apartment in Paris for three months and traveled on the continent for another month.

The Seguys were in New York for a day and then were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Spruille Braden at their country home on Riverdale-on-the-Hudson, before coming on to Washington.

The Bradens, who are in Washington frequently as the guests of Attorney General and Mrs. Homer Cummings, have an old, old place, historic and all that, with a big gray stone house, magnificent old trees and a swimming pool.

Jean Delattre Seguy is French, so, of course, the young Seguys were very much at home in Paris. Moreover, they kept bumping into people they had known in Washington—Fred Nano, one-time counselor of the Rumanian legation; Capt. Camille Husson, formerly naval attache of the French embassy, and Raymond Bousquet, who used to be attached to the French embassy here.

In Brussels, Mr. and Mrs. Seguy saw the former French Ambassador and Mme. Claudel—he's now ambassador to Belgium—and their daughter, Reine Claudel, since married to Jacques Paris. And on the train bound for Brussels, they ran into Hans Kindler, director of the Washington Symphony Orchestra, who was going to Holland to conduct a series of concerts.

Powell Family In Chicago

Mrs. P. H. Powell, of North Negley avenue and her family have been visiting in Ocean City, N. J., accompanied by Miss Peg Kelly, Miss Mae Rita Donnelly and Miss Betty Roush. They are now in Chicago and will return here about August 1.

Daniel Maddens Florida Bound

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Madden, of Churchill avenue, Emsworth, and their daughters, Virginia and Norma Madden, left yesterday for Miami Beach, Fla., where they will be registered at the Miami Beach Hotel, Ocean drive.

THE COOL AND CHIC DECOLLETAGE

By FRUNELLA WOOD

NEXT to a cool bath with lots of pungent scent in the water there is nothing quite so good for midsummer morale as a new evening gown. There is something defiant and successful about getting into a fresh, elegant costume after the travail and heat of the day, and greeting the evening breeze, if any, with a spruced up appearance.

There are a number of novelty fabrics and designs to be found in the shops, in models that are pretty enough to step out and simple enough to be quite appropriate for a quiet evening at home. Some are made of fine seersucker with daring cut-out backs and trained skirts, much like sophisticated tennis dresses. Embroidered muslin is used for another type, in pure white, with a trained skirt and a conventional V-necked evening bodice, or a bertha neck over a shorter skirt, or some such simple effect.

* * *

ORGANZA printed with a shadow brocade all-over design, or striped with satin, or edged with brilliant silk fringe, or detailed with flounces, tucks and rickrack braid forms another large class of sheer, practical evening clothes that won't break the pocket book.

Ice shades in satin, made up in the simplest, most cut-out designs are not very dear, either, and they look very swell indeed for parties that seem to demand a bit of special primping. The woman who buys one, however, should not think that it will take kindly to water washing, even though it is made of some fabric warranted to wash, as so many crepes and satins are. The weight of the washer will not spoil the fabric, true, but it will often pull the fit out of a gown all to pieces.

* * *

LITTLE wraps to wear with summer evening GOWNS are especially amusing this year. Those shaggy capelets of cellophane fringe are cool and charming—and so inexpensive. The black ones are very worldly; try one over your white chalk crepe frock, and wear black sandals and black gloves to back it up. And a few near-diamonds will help out the ensemble very much, at wrist and ears.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Satin-striped organza is a rare fabric: this one is white with brown and yellow plaided stripes. Note the back fin jabots and the soft shoulder wings. The sash is, unexpectedly, black velvet ribbon.

A bit of the Chinese feeling is put into this pale pink satin coat and gown. Coat edges are stiffened by satin covered cords.

The rich Goya yellow tint is used for the daisy print on the black crepe model above, and for its broad linen collar and cuffs. It makes an excellent dinner costume with or without a smart hat.

CUPID BECKONS TOO OFTEN

NEW YORK, July 24.—(AP.)—One marriage too many—and one telephone call too many—landed David Persofsky, 24, in court.

Mary Brownstein, 25, said he married her in June, took $100 to buy furniture and disappeared the next day. He called her Saturday night to tell her it was a mistake, she said, because he already was married.

Police arrested him, charging that he married Lillie Reiner in 1929. He was held in $1,500 bail on a bigamy charge.

Through the Spyglass

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

* * *

How's your hospitality bearing up under the strain of this weather? If it's anything like ours . . . it's wearing pretty thin. Somehow the thoughts of running around serving pickles and ham don't appeal to us . . . and probably not to you either. Although . . .

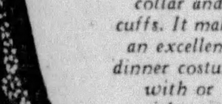
When you DO get up enough energy to ask a few friends in, remember that they, too, are somewhat let down . . . and serve accordingly. Nothing is worse (to our way of thinking) than blobs of whipped cream and sweets on hot nights! Or slabs of good old h-a-m! We've found that some fat, juicy olives, a piquant dish of some kind (like chutney and cream cheese) and maybe some anchovies, fill the bill satisfactorily. Not much . . . yet dainty, tasty and amusing to nibble at.

Serve them in that hospitality tray that we told you about not long ago. The one of wood with the two glass dishes fitted into it and the cheese board in the center (they come out and turn it into a tray proper if you choose). The handles are of rope . . . that rustic touch, you know. And the price has dropped down to 79c instead of its original $1.00.

* * *

Pongee pajamas! . . . the answer to the keeping cool problem! Nothing quite as cool at pongee . . . nothing quite as comfortable and yet well-dressed looking as these pajamas that one of the shops is showing for only $2.95. For a three-piece set! Which includes "trou" . . . a tuck-in-shirt . . . a long coat (wear this for beach, as a summer bathrobe at home, on Pullmans)! In typical pongee color printed in gay colored designs.

* * *



Now . . . to let you in on a little secret of ours! We have a favorite line of toiletries we use . . . whose lipstick and nail polish are not-to-be-equaled in our estimation. AND . . . we have found that this same line has sired an anti-sunburn foundation cream this season that will bear a few words! Attention!

So much has been babbled on sunburn lotions and creams, that it's almost come to the point that we women think "wolf, wolf" (even though we may not say it). That's why we are making this to-do over THIS cream. Because it fills so many "bills." Spread it on thinly, it repels the sun to the degree that you tan lightly, evenly, without discomfort. Spread it on thickly, you will not tan at all. If you are already tanned—using this will prevent your becoming darker.

Nor is this all! This same cream can be used all year 'round as a simple foundation for makeup. None of this using half a jar and having it left on your hands at the end of the summer! Which makes it not only practical, but MOST inexpensive . . . seeing as how the initial cost is but $1.00.

Find Small Defects In Vote Machines

Only minor defects in material have been found in the ten voting machines reconstucted by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company by Dr. H. A. Everett, head of the engineering department at Pennsylvania State College, and Albert Lauer, mechanic of the County Bureau of Elections, after the first day of an inspection of the machines. After the machines are approved, probably next week state examiners will be called in to inspect them. If approved by the state, mass production will start immediately.

Stores Plan Joint Delivery Service

A hearing on petitions for approval of the incorporation of the Stores Delivery Service and for granting it the right to transport packages from department stores in Pittsburgh to other points in the city, was resumed yesterday by Public Service Commissioner William E. Best.

The Service would handle much of the delivery business of department stores which have been using their own trucks for that purpose, or delivering goods through other carriers.

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Some Bucs Lack Spirit. Removals Due for 1935. Foxx Develops Own Rival. Flaw in Stengel Theory. Many Ex-Heavy Champs. Giant Weight-Throwers.

President W. E. Benswanger, of the Pirates, again shows himself to be a real sportsman and a good loser by defending his team and insisting that its prolonged slump has been due largely to ill luck, when most other club owners, in a similar situation, would be tearing their hair and making all kinds of threats. But while admiring the action of President Benswanger in sticking up for his floundering crew, the average fan on the sidelines is led to wonder whether all of the Buccaneers have been as loyal to their employer as the latter is to them.

W. E. Benswanger

When a club as strong as the Pirates loses eight games in succession and 15 out of 19, with the result that Pittsburgh is below the .500 mark as late as July 24 for the first time since 1931, there would appear to be something else wrong besides adverse pitching. Only the feeble Reds, with the season's major league record of nine straight defeats, lost a greater number of games in succession than the Bucs, and only the Dodgers and White Sox lost as many as eight in a row. Those clubs are not to be compared with the Rovers in all-around strength.

Even under the worst of conditions, a strong team could hardly lose 15 out of 19 games if the right spirit prevailed throughout the ranks at all times. It is evident that the absence of such a spirit—and one or two drones, too quick to give up and lacking the right fighting stuff, can offset the efforts of the real hustlers and create a harmful condition generally—has played a big part in the disappointing showing of the Corsairs this year. Probably it is too late to do anything more this season than to try a little prodding with a view to keeping the club in the first division, but the halfhearted performers responsible for the condition will have to be removed next winter as the first step toward better things in 1935.

FOXX CREATES HIS OWN HOME-RUN RIVAL

If Bob Johnson, rookie slugging sensation of the A's, strips Jimmy Foxx of his home-run laurels this year, the young outfielder will owe his success to none other than Foxx himself. For according to what is said to be the inside story of Johnson's development into a candidate for the home-run honors of 1934, a tip from Foxx was behind it all.

Instead of taking a free swing and slugging away, as he had done in the Pacific Coast League, Johnson attempted to dope out what kind of pitch was coming, with the result that he was swinging too late to connect effectively. Thereupon Foxx took him in hand and advised him to forget about the opposing pitcher's stuff and simply crash every good ball with all his might, as he had done in Portland. Bob followed the tip and immediately regained his home-run punch. So if he beats out Foxx for the four-base crown he will have Jimmy in particular to thank for it. Foxx is leading at present, with 32 homers to Johnson's 28.

STENGEL PLAN MIGHT LEAD TO CHEATING

Casey Stengel rises again to propose a revision of the regulation which restricts each major league club to 23 active players from May 16 to August 31, inclusive, each year. That rule put Stengel and his Dodgers under a heavy handicap this summer. Len Koenecke, Linus Frey and Owen Carroll were out of commission at one time and two or three others were playing under difficulties. Casey thinks the magnates ought to change the 23-player rule so that injured athletes could be retired until they are ready to work again and other pastimers could be brought up to keep the squad supplied at all times with 23 available men. As it is now, if an injured player is placed on the voluntarily retired list he is lost for 60 days, and no reinstatements are allowed after August 1.

Casey Stengel

Stengel's plan to permit the retirement of an injured player for a shorter period and the taking on of another man in his place is all right in theory, but it is safe to say it will receive no consideration from the club owners, because they fear it would lead to cheating. They can't trust one another. The idea has been up before, but didn't get very far. The impression appears to prevail that some clubs in the majors, seeking to strengthen themselves in the thick of a pennant fight, might be tempted to pick one or more men out of an overstocked department and put them on the retired list with a phony injury to permit the addition of new strength to another department in an emergency.

NINE OLD HEAVY CHAMPS STILL LIVING

There was a time when living ex-champions of the heavyweight class in the fight game were few and far between. It was considered unusual, and worthy of no little comment, if more than two or three of them were around.

But today there are so many former heavyweight kings still living that only those of exceptional color and enduring popularity, like Jack Dempsey, attract more than ordinary attention in fistic circles. There are no fewer than nine of them. In the order in which they held the title, they are Jim Jeffries, Tommy Burns, Jack Johnson, Jess Willard, Dempsey, Gene Tunney, Max Schmeling, Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera. They don't stay on the throne so long nowadays. Max Baer is the fourth champion in four years.

ERA OF GOLIATHS IN WEIGHT-THROWING

Followers of track and field sports are wondering if next season will bring out any new giant weight-throwers to be added to the list of reigning Goliaths. As Edwin Dooley recalls, a 200-pounder in the past was considered a big man in the shot put, but since the advent of Leo Sexton, of Georgetown, a few years ago the weight standards have gone up to almost 300 pounds. The coach of the old days evidently were wr... in preferring men who lacked heft but had muscle.

Jack Torrance

Sexton was the first of the dreadnaughts. He stood several inches above six feet and packed 225 pounds. Jack Torrance, Louisiana State's world record holder, tips the beam at almost 300 pounds. George Theodoratus, of the Olympic Club, of San Francisco, is almost as big as Torrance, and John Lyman, of the same club, fits into the picture physically, with those other huge specimens. All of these towering, ponderous Goliaths have proved that size does not necessarily mean an absence of speed and agility.

BULLETIN.

PARK CLUB, BUFFALO, July 24.—(AP.)—Bob Crowley, of Dedham, Mass., shaving five strokes off the Park Club's par 72, blazed his way around the course in 67 today to set the pace at the half way mark of the 36-hole qualifying round for the Professional Golfers' Association championship. Crowley, a "dark horse," took the lead from Harry Cooper, of Chicago, who shot a 68.

PARK CLUB, Buffalo, July 24.—(AP.)—Playing effortless and errorless golf, "Light Horse" Harry Cooper, of Chicago, today toured the sun baked Park Club course in 68, four under par, to move into the leadership at the halfway mark of the 36-hole qualifying round for the Professional Golfers' Association championship.

Eddie Loos, of Chicago, also cracked par with a 69 to hold second place. Ky Laffoon, of Denver, was next with a 70.

Playing in only his second P. G. A. National championship in 16 years, Loos clipped a stroke off par going out, with a 35, and was two under on the incoming nine, finishing with a 15-foot putt for a birdie 3 on the eighteenth.

Laffoon also came back in 34 for his 70 and was in a tie with Bill Mehlhorn, of Brooklyn, who reversed the process by going out in 34 and coming back in 36.

Paul Erath, of Turtle Creek, Pa., scored 40-37—77.

MRS. VAN RYN ELIMINATED

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 24.—(AP.)—Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn, of Philadelphia, was the victim of an upset in the second round of the Seabright tournament's women's singles today. After a fine start she was eliminated by the hard-driving Dorothy Andrus, of Stamford, Conn., 3-6, 6-4, 6-0.

Mrs. Van Ryn's game went to pieces after games reached 4-all in the second set, Miss Andrus taking the last eight games in succession.

Helen Jacobs, the national champion, gave a convincing exhibition in disposing of Marianne Hunt, of Santa Monica, Cal., 6-0, 6-0.

Helen Fulton, of Chicago, failed in an attempt to turn the tables on Gracyn Wheeler, of Los Angeles, who beat the Chicago girl in the recent western tournament. Miss Fulton, after winning the first set and leading 6-5 in the second, twice lost her service, dropped the set and finally was put out by scores of 2-6, 9-7, 6-2.

The results of matches played in the second round of the women's singles today follow:

Helen Jacobs, Berkeley, Cal., defeated Marianne Hunt, Santa Monica, Cal., 6-0, 6-0.

Mrs. Mary G. Harris, Kansas City, defeated Helen Pedersen, Stamford, Conn., 6-4, 6-2.

Carolin Babcock, Los Angeles, Cal., defeated Dr. Esther Bartosh, Los Angeles, Cal., 6-2, 6-2.

Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, New York, defeated Mrs. John W. Van Ryn, Philadelphia, 3-6, 6-4, 6-0.

Gracyn Wheeler, Los Angeles, defeated Helen Fulton, Chicago, 2-6, 9-7, 6-2.

Mae Cuervorst, Wichita, Kan., defeated Bonnie Miller, Los Angeles, Cal., 13-11, 6-4.

Baroness Maud Levi, New York, defeated Katherine Wolf, Chicago, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

Mrs. Penelope Anderson McBride, Short Hills, N. J., defeated Ruby Bishop, Los Angeles, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

PHILADELPHIA, July 24.—The skidding Pirates lost another tense slab duel yesterday to record their eighth straight defeat of their very bad eastern tour. Bill Swift pitched well enough to win a majority of diamond contests as he faced the Phillies in the opening game of the series, but Tommy Thevenow muffed a thrown ball in the fifth that should have retired the Quakers and they made two runs on top of this break to win the contest, 3-to-2.

Swift was opposed by Indian Eual Moore, secured by the Quakers recently from the Baltimore club of the International League. The Redskin rang up his third triumph in four starts as he humbled the Pirates.

Traynor did not start the contest owing to an attack of sinus trouble. The Pirate manager also is bothered with a bruised toe. Pie entered the fight at a late hour after Lavagetto had been yanked for a pinch-hitter.

The Buccos scored single runs in the first and third, but they failed dismally on two occasions when they could not score with a runner on third and only one out. The Phils made a tally in the first inning and added two more in the fifth after Thevenow had erred.

Bluefield College Quits Major Ranks

BLUEFIELD, Va., July 24.—(AP.)—The Ramblin' Reds, of Bluefield College, one of the nation's nine undefeated and untied football teams a year ago, will drop out of major competition this year.

They carried the school to football fame in 1933, aided by the great Pete Young, who finished the season as the nation's highest individual point scorer.

This fall, however, they will meet only secondary schools under a "de-emphasized football program" announced by Dr. Edwin C. Wade, president of the school.

Repeats Swim Victory

MARVIN NELSON . . . WINS HEARST MARATHON

U. S. NET STAR TAKES FIRST TWO SETS

WIMBLEDON, England, July 24.—(AP.)—With Sidney B. Wood, Jr., leading Jack Crawford, Australian ace, two sets to none and 15-love in the first game of the third set the interzone final series of Davis Cup play between the United States and Australia today was postponed until tomorrow because of rain.

Wood today found the strokes that were sadly lacking Saturday and won the first two sets, 6-3, 9-7.

The match was interrupted by rain in both the first and second sets and rain set in again after only one point had been played in the third set, halting play at least temporarily. Earlier in the day a virtual cloudburst had broken over Wimbledon, delaying the start of the contests more than an hour.

The victory against Crawford necessary to give Frank X. Shields a fighting chance against young Vivian McGrath in the final singles encountered, Wood played up to the brilliant game he is capable of to hold the whip hand over the big Australian most of the way. His play was in sharp contrast to his careless exhibition against McGrath in the opening singles Saturday where he and Shields both lost to give Australia what was thought to be an unsurmountable margin.

Wood appeared to realize his responsibility and carried on where George M. Lott, Jr., and Lester Stoefen left off yesterday in winning from Crawford and Adrian Quist in doubles.

Crawford was unsteady at the start, but then settled down to play his usual all-round game, which wasn't good enough against the fighting performance of the American in the first two sets.

Seven Horses Die In Racetrack Fire

SALEM, N. H., July 24.—(INS.)—Seven thoroughbred race horses lost their lives today, scores of others stampeded and fled in terror as flames razed two stables at Rockingham Park.

A score of stable boys and trainers were singed and blistered as they opened locked stable doors and led valuable horses to safety. Nearly 200 of the 300 thoroughbreds quartered here, were in danger from the flames, which did damage estimated at $35,000.

Old Depot and his stablemate, Vote, owned by Miss L. C. White, of Baltimore, perished in the flames. Little Stokes, one of the favorites for the afternoon racing and his stablemate, Arrowsmith, members of the stable of Mrs. R. Thomas Flippen, of Baltimore, also were burned to death. Waydone, a stake horse of the Gennesee Stable, had to be destroyed because of injuries suffered during the stampede around the enclosure. Two other unidentified horses, which suffered broken legs, also were destroyed.

DUNDEE-YAROSZ BOUT SET FOR FORBES FIELD, SEPT. 10

THAT IS, IF YAROSZ IS SIGNED

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

The Ted Yarosz-Vince Dundee fight will be staged at Forbes field on the night of Monday, September 10, if—

Promoter Bus Vogel can induce Yarosz' manager, Ray Foutts, to listen to his honeyed phrases and forget all about filthy lucre and think only of the glorious chance to win the middleweight championship of the world.

Dundee, as announced a few days ago, already has been signed for a guarantee of $25,000 and a privilege of 37 1-2 percent of the gate receipts.

Forbes Field has been contacted and will let the promoters know today what sort of a business deal they can have there.

FOUTTS STATES CASE

Manager Foutts and Promoter Vogel went into a huddle last night at which Foutts was worldly enough to bring up the matter of financial reward for his man. They parted to lie awake the remainder of the night looking at the celling and counting dollars instead of sheep.

Foutts is more than a little burned up over the fact that the promoters were so willing to give Dundee everything he wanted on the theory that he would take what was left without consulting him on this point. He said:

"Of course, Teddy wants this chance to win the title. But suppose he doesn't win it? Suppose he has an off night, or gets a cut eye or any one of a half-dozen other things happens to keep him from victory—what then? Unless he gets some money he'll be holding the bag and will have to start in all over again.

SAYS TED IS CARD

"If this match were to be held anywhere but in Pittsburgh, where Yarosz' popularity and his bid for the championship make him the big card, I would be willing to take the small end and say nothing about it, but Dundee has proved that he is not an attraction here by himself. He got a $1,250 guarantee to box Frankie Goosby last summer and the show didn't draw that much. When he was in with Yarosz at Forbes Field the gate grossed $21,000. Yarosz drew that money, not Dundee.

"I turned down a 12½ per cent offer to have Yarosz box Lou Brouillard for the title in Boston and Dundee took it and won the championship. The reason I declined this purse was that Madison Square Garden in New York, feeling certain Brouillard would beat Dundee, offered me 15 per cent to box Brouillard there."

Still quoting figures, Foutts continued:

"When Yarosz defeated Dundee at Forbes Field last year both received 25 per cent, or a little more than $4,600 apiece. I want to be fair about this. I am not money-mad, as I think I demonstrated when I refused to take a $5,000 guarantee to have Teddy box Anson Green, who did not figure to be in Teddy's class and has been beaten by inferior fighters since. However, if the promoters can afford to give Dundee a $25,000 guarantee they can afford to pay Yarosz what he is worth, which I think is not less than 20 per cent, or a little more than half of what Dundee is getting.

QUOTES FIGURES

"Max Baer got this much as the challenger against Primo Carnera because he and not Carnera was the drawing card. Barney Ross got this much for his bout with Jimmy McLarnin. Is Dundee a bigger attraction than McLarnin?

"Personally I think Dundee's managers hooked the local promoters with that ridiculous guarantee, which is twice as much as Dundee has drawn for any of his more important fights. His bouts with Brouillard and Jeby went around $13,000, and a bout in defense of the title with Andy Callahan in Boston, Callahan's home town, netted only around $11,000. Recently, Dundee went to Chicago to box Young Stuhley in a non-title fight and they drew exactly $1,502, and Dundee lost that fight.

"I don't blame Dundee for getting all he can, but not at Yarosz' expense. His manager, Max Waxman, is one of the shrewdest managers in the business. Maybe Dundee is the best managed middleweight in the game, but I am not going to have it said that Yarosz is the worst managed."

Foutts said he would be willing to take a $10,000 guarantee for Yarosz' end and forget about a percentage.

NEED $60,000 GATE

Just how the promoters can get out on this basis is a mystery to the best posted local fistic men. The show would have to do $60,000 or better to let them out, and their chance of showing a profit would be small, in view of the fact that the largest gate ever drawn here for a fight, in good times, was $31,000 for a Jack Zivic-Cuddy DeMarco Milk Fund show at Forbes Field in 1923.

Meanwhile Vogel has arranged a card for Hickey Park, Millvale, next Monday night featuring a double windup of two 10-round bouts in which Joey Speigal will box Tiger Joe Randall and Mike Barto will engage Jimmy Vaughan, of Cleveland. Jimmy Belmont and Jack Dalcherone will meet in an eight-rounder and there will be two five-round preliminaries.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: ILLITERATE POSTMASTER—Mir is a little town, population 3,700, in the county of Nieswiez, province of Nowogrod, and has been part of Poland since 1918. Before that it was part of Russia. Under the latter regime the Russian authorities employed a postmaster letter carrier who could neither read nor write. He would inquire from the first addressee the name of the next one and repeating this practice was able to make the proper deliveries for many years. THE ELASTIC RAILROAD—The longest railroad in the Western Hemisphere is the Canadian National Railways running from Sydney, Nova Scotia, to Prince Rupert, near the Canada-Alaska border—a distance of 5,284 miles. Each mile of track (single rail) contains 160 rails, and, due to the expansion of steel in hot weather, each rail is one fourth of an inch longer during the summer months—the total difference being approximately 17,000 feet or more than three miles.

Seeking to break a jinx that has followed him at the Homewood playgrounds, Leo Carroll will start on the mound for the Book nine when the defending champion clashes with Homewood in a City League game this evening.

Leo went into last evening's game with Mt. Oliver and pitched one inning when Manager Heinie Beall found it necessary to lift Blimmy Steele for a pinch hitter. That one inning should not impair Carroll's effectiveness.

Leo has found the going pretty tough at Homewood, but believes the law of averages will balance itself and that Carroll will come through with a victory.

With the race tightening up, all the games listed for this evening will hold more than passing interest. Dormont goes to the Salt Works to meet the J. J. Vaughans and to try to hold its slender advantage over the Books in the race. The third game finds Parmelee at Mt. Oliver.

The Books pulled a tough battle out of the fire last evening when they came from behind in the final innings to win over Mt. Oliver, 9 to 8. The champions trailed throughout. Boll was forced to use three of his ace pitchers to win the game.

In the Independent League, Swissvale and Pitcairn will clash in the battle that will carry with it the undisputed leadership of the circuit.

The Crawfords wound up their series with the Bachrach Giants, of Atlantic City, at Greenlee Field last evening, winning 3 to 2 in a well played game.

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The smartest of baseball leaders appear to stagger when they run afoul of the bad breaks of the game. When Pie Traynor was captain of the Pirates I don't think he would have countenanced such a poor play as that which the Buccos pulled in the eighth inning of yesterday's game.

The late John McGraw made it a business to play for the winning run instead of the tying run in the late innings when his club was on the road. In other words, McGraw would spurn a bunt with a runner on first; instead he would try to get the winning run on the sacks. He figured that the home club, batting last, held an advantage when the score was tied. John J. always played percentage ball and he has a dozen followers now in the managerial role.

To get back to yesterday's game. Thevenow opened the eighth with a single, the Buccos being a run in arrears. At this point the Pirates were guilty of two bad blunders. It was bad baseball to bunt and it was worse baseball to allow Padden to go to the plate with the shortest rightfield fence in the league beckoning to hitters of the Grace, Birkofer stripe.

Earl Grace is a pull batter who finds it quite easy to smack one out of the bandbox in Philly. He did it once with three on for the Pirates. Put Padden in the crisis of yesterday bunted and forced the tying run at second. That was curtains for the Pirates.

That, fans, is not Traynor baseball. All over the National League Pie is known as a smart percentage player. Traynor's woes must have overwhelmed him when he permitted Padden to bat yesterday. Pie used Grace as a pinch-hitter on the previous day in Brooklyn and Earl came through with a double.

TUBERS REGAIN FIRST PLACE

McKeesport's scrappy entry in the Penn State Association has fought its way back into temporary possession of first place in the second-half race, half a game to the good. The Little Pirates took a free-hitting game from Monessen yesterday, 9 to 7, to knock the latter club out of the top position.

Charleroi came back well after suffering five defeats in a row to nose out Jeannette, 2 to 1, in a slab duel between Counts and Peckman. Greensburg added to the troubles of the Washington Generals, nosing the latter out, 7 to 6, at Greensburg. The contest was marred by continual wrangling by players on both sides with the umpires.

Well in the fore of the Mid-Atlantic League standings, the Zanesville Greys open an away-from-home stand today at Johnstown with firm determination to equal their number of victories at home.

As the Greys defeated Wheeling, 2-1, in the final game of their home stand last night, it marked their tenth victory in a dozen starts.

Johnstown, in second place, took the final game of their Huntington series, 11-4.

While Springfield was defeating Charleston, 6-2, the Dayton Ducks scored a 2-1 victory over the Beckley Black Knights.

WALKER VS. CORBETT

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—(AP.)—Mickey Walker will meet Young Corbett, of Fresno, with his claim to the middleweight title at stake, in a 10-round match in the Seals' Stadium here August 14, the San Francisco Press Club, sponsoring the bout, announced today.

ROONEY SIGNS TWO STARS

By JESS CARVER

The pros are kicking up the first waves of what should eventually develop into a pretty nifty gridiron storm hereabouts as President Art Rooney, of the local entry in the National Professional Football League, goes about lining up his performers.

The signed contracts of two more ends, Wilbur Sortet, former West Virginia ace, and Ray Tesser, erstwhile Tartan, were received by Rooney today. Yesterday, Tar Onder, husky guard of last year's Pitt eleven, came into the fold, giving the Pirates about 600 pounds of pretty good material all in one day.

The signing of Tesser and Sortet takes good care of the wing situation as far as the Pirates are concerned. Muggsy Skladany, Pitt's great all-America terminal of last year, and Bob Timmons, another Panther end of last year, already were in the fold. Tesser and Sortet both were with the Pirates last year, Tesser turning out to be a pip of a punter.

Both the Philadelphia and Brooklyn clubs were after Onder. The Jeannette lad carries the necessary beef to make him a valuable bit of professional material. He goes better than 210 pounds, even when in condition, which he'd better be.

The Pirates will open their training camp at Mt. Pleasant August 27 and the championship season at Forbes Field against Cincinnati September 9.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Both Vince Dundee and Ted Yarosz will have to post a $2,500 forfeit for weight and appearance if their bout is closed.

Jack Dempsey is slated to referee two of the bouts on the Yarosz-Dundee card, but not the main bout, as he is too close to Dundee and the latter's manager, Max Waxman. Waxman is booking Dempsey's personal appearances.

The next amateur boxing shows at Morgantown are slated for August 2, 16 and 30.

Mose Butch and Ross Fields will box the eight-round semi-final to a Ted Yarosz bout at East Liverpool, O., August 9.

George von der Hayden boxes Carl Dasnaugh and Franklin Young meets K. O. Morgan in six-round bouts at Dearborn, Mich., Friday night.

Leo Sweeney and the Martzo brothers are requested to get in touch with Charles H. Harvey or Dr. Charles L. Harvey at Beaver Falls with reference to an amateur boxing show to be held as a hospital benefit.

Tony Shucco and Dick Madden have been matched for a bout at Braves Field, Boston, July 30.

DEAN'S MOUND WORK STOPS CHAMPIONS

Associated Press.

J. (Dizzy) Dean, a young man who can see so far ahead that he's already asking for $18,500 for next season's work, is strutting around the metropolis today looking for an argument on the subject. He won't get it from any of the Cardinals who play baseball with him.

The young right-hander, who never got his nickname on the ball field, did a lot of highly important things for the St. Louis Red Birds yesterday. He pitched the Cards to a 6-to-5 victory over the World Champion Giants, for one thing, his tenth straight, his eighteenth of the National League campaign, and the seventh straight for the Frankie Frisch outfit that suddenly has decided to go places.

GIANTS' LEAD CUT

He made it possible for the Cards to cut the lead of the champions to three full games with three more to go in the series, a simple problem in addition and subtraction whereby it can be proven that continued success would lock the Cards and Giants together by the time the Birds leave town.

With the Cubs holding grimly to second place, two games back, the Cards all of a sudden have become the team the Giants must beat back immediately, if the orderly procession of the past couple of months is to be maintained.

The Cubs, beaten off recently in hand-to-hand conflict with the Giants, held on by beating down the Dodgers 8 to 3. Euel Moore, Indian right-hander, shaded Bill Swift in a pitching duel as the Phillies continued to bid for sixth place with a 3-to-2 victory over the Pirates. The losing trail had no turn for the Boston Braves, who dropped their sixth straight to the Cincinnati Reds, 4 to 2.

YANKEES VICTORS

The Yankees continued the bitter stern chase of Mickey Cochrane's astonishing Tigers as Red Ruffing won his tenth victory of the season, 5 to 2, from the Browns, with the aid of Lou Gehrig's twenty-seventh homer and another by Frank Crosetti. But it gained the New Yorkers nothing, as the Tigers clung to a one-game lead by hammering down the Red Sox, 7 to 2. Tommy Bridges kept things under control as Detroit pounded Lefty Ostermueller for 14 hits.

Sluggers had a field day in Cleveland and Chicago. Jimmy Foxx's pair of homers, for a total of 32, helped the Athletics nose out the Indians, 11 to 9, and Joe Cronin's homer, double and single bulked large in Washington's 11-to-5 trouncing of the lowly White Sox.

Philly Muny Golf Team Star Barred

PHILADELPHIA, July 24.—(AP.)—The Philadelphia public links golf team was crippled today through the disqualification of one player and a protest over the score of the man next in line in the quintet entered in next week's national championship at Pittsburgh.

W. F. Gordon, manager of the course where the qualifying round was played last Friday, announced Frank Irete was automatically ruled out after he admitted he made a mistake in posting a score of 151. George Bradley, who scored 152, was slated as Irete's successor until a protest was filed to his score. Officials are considering it. Harold B. Ridgley, of South Ardmore, ranks next with 153.

LEGION NINES PLAY TODAY

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., July 24.—The New Kensington and Claridge American Legion baseball nines will clash here this evening in the second game of their series for the right to represent Western Pennsylvania in the state Legion championship tournament. Claridge defeated the crack local outfit, 5 to 2, in the first game at Claridge.

New Kensington apparently was set as Western Pennsylvania champions until it was discovered that Claridge still was in the running and the series ordered.

YORK IN FINALS

YORK, Pa., July 24.—(AP.)—In an uphill fight, the York American Legion juniors nosed out Minersville, 11-10, yesterday, in the first of a series to gain the right to enter the state tournament later in the week at Reading. The score by innings:

| | | | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Minersville | 1 | 0 | 0 | 3 | 5 | 0 | 1 | 0 | 0 | —10 |
| York | 0 | 0 | 0 | 2 | 0 | 3 | 0 | 4 | 2 | —11 |

Batteries—Sinkovitch, Andruckich, Brown and Polanski; Michalski, Diehl, Kerns, Raffensberger and Cunningham.

TOURNEY DATE SET

BEAVER, Pa., July 24.—The annual Beaver County open tennis tournament will be sponsored this year by the Beaver Valley Tennis Association. The tournament will start Saturday, September 1. W. Warren Littel, of Ambridge, is the chairman.

W. MARYLAND DATES SET

The fifteenth annual Western Maryland tennis championships will be staged by the Women's Civic Club, of Mountain Lake Park, on the courts of the club from Monday, August 13, to Saturday, August 18, inclusive. Announcement to the foregoing effect is contained in invitations now in the hands of local net devotees who have long been in the habit of making the jaunt for a week's racqueting in the Blue Ridge Mountains.

The Western Maryland championships have been drawing hosts of Pittsburghers and residents of the tri-state district since inception of the event in 1920. Last year Frank Broida, Harvard southpaw star and former Pittsburgh parks premier, annexed the men's singles crown in a five-set final fray with Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. ace, who had beaten Randolph Shields, of Winchester, Va., for the challenge flagon in 1932. Margaret Carspecken, now Mrs. Stanley K. Robinson, retired the women's singles bowl permanently last year, which means that a new trophy, a handsome silver pitcher, will be placed up as a three-year objective in the feminine division of the coming tournament.

Entries for the Pittsburgh Center junior and boys' championships closed today. The draw will be made this evening, and hostilities will get under way on the P. A. A. courts early tomorrow morning. Chairman Hub Rhinehart, of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association junior development committee, has returned from his holiday jaunt and will be on deck to collaborate with Co-Chairman Bobby Grier in handling the classic. Winners will be sent as Steel City representatives and P. T. A. guests to the national junior championships at Culver Military Academy, Culver, Ind., from August 6 to 11.

Columbus Horse Wins Circuit Stake

TORONTO, July 24.—(AP.)—The Canadian National Trotting Association stake for 2-year-olds, purse $1,500, was the feature event of the fourth day of the Grand Circuit meeting at Thorncliffe Park yesterday and was won by Silver King, owned by E. J. Merkle, of Columbus, O., and driven by D. N. Egan, of Lexington, Ky.,

NETTERS AWAIT INTER-PARK BATTLES

PARKS CHAMPIONS

Park — Men — Women

Frick—Harry Wald, Betty Bethune.
Highland—James T. O'Connor, Mrs. Sue Giltanboth.
North—S. A. McCorkle, Betty Recker.
Olympia—Alfred D. McCabe, Jr., Joy Hartman.
Schenley—Harry J. Milton, Myrtle Gordon.
South—Joe Kristofek, Elizabeth McCollegan.
West—Robert C. Meyer, Mrs. Elizabeth Artzberger.

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The traditional inter-park elimination series of the annual Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph - Pittsburgh Parks tennis championships will get under way tomorrow with Harry Wald, former Pitt star and winner of the Frick title, topping the men's list and Mrs. Jean Artzberger, holder of women's honors since 1930 and recent victor in the West Park feminine competition, leading the ladies' group.

Second on the abbreviated man-to-man seeded roster is Jimmy O'Connor, brilliant Highlander, whose racqueting the past week has shown approach to the form that carried him within a set of the West Penn crown in 1925. Elizabeth McColligan, South ace, rates the No. 2 post among the fair aspirants.

PROGRAM SET

The inter-park classic, the winners of which will receive initial legs on the new Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Challenge Trophies and will be sent as Steel City representatives and Sun-Telegraph guests to the national public parks championships at Minneapolis from August 13 to 19, brings together captors of men's and women's titular distinction in Frick, Highland, North, Olympia, Schenley, South and West parks, all of the bailiwicks wherein preliminary hostilities were sponsored. This means that there will be seven contenders in each class, a three-day array of jousts scheduled for tomorrow, Thursday and Saturday, with Friday held open in case of bad weather either of the previous two days.

The slate of events currently favored by the committee in charge calls for first round play to be staged on the Frick lot at Forbes and Braddock tomorrow afternoon and early evening. On Thursday, if it can possibly be arranged with due regard for the convenience of the players, one men's and one women's semi-final fray will be reeled off on the South Park layout, the other penultimate affairs being fixed for Frick, where, too, the final tussles will be cared for at 2 p. m. on Saturday. All of the masculine melees in the inter-park series will be the best of five sets, with the women, of course, traveling the best of three.

Starting times for the inaugural encounters will be decided upon today and announced in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph. The inter-park draws follow:

Men's Singles

First round: Upper half: Joe Kristufek, South, vs. S. A. McCorkle, North.

Lower half: Harry Wald, Frick, vs. Robert C. Meyer, West; Alfred D. McCabe, Jr., Olympia, vs. Harry J. Milton, Schenley.

Semi-final round: Upper half: James T. O'Connor, Highland, vs. winner of Kristufek-McCorkle match.

Women's Singles

First round: Upper half: Betty M. Recker, North, vs. Mrs. Sue Giltenboth, Highland.

Lower half: Elizabeth McColligan, South, vs. Myrtle Gordon, Schenley.

Semi-final round: Upper half: Mrs. Jean Artzberger, West, vs. winner of Recker-Giltenboth match.

O'CONNOR, M'CABE WIN

Jousting in the individual parks terminated yesterday with decisive triumphs for Jimmy O'Connor, Al McCabe, Mrs. Sue Giltenboth, and Joy Hartman. O'Connor, driving with pace, depth and consistency, unslung too many guns for Joe Tucker and the destiny of the Highland men's throne was determined by a 6-2, 6-2, 6-1 count. Meanwhile the redoubtable McCabe, once Wooster College net captain, accounted for young Ken Ritenour of South Hills High in the Olympia finale, 6-2, 6-1, 6-2. Mrs. Giltenboth was never menaced in downing Mary Willcox, 6-2, 6-1, for the Highland women's coronet and Miss Hartman was similarly decisive in disposing of Carolyn Isler, 6-3, 6-1, in the Olympia wind-up. The summaries:

MEN'S SINGLES
Highland Park

Final round—James T. O'Connor defeated Joe Tucker, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1.

Olympia Park

Final round—Alfred D. McCabe, Jr., defeated Kenneth Ritenour, 6-2, 6-1, 6-2.

WOMEN'S SINGLES
Highland Park

Final round—Mrs. Sue Giltenboth defeated Mary Willcox, 6-2, 6-1.

Final round—Joy Hartman defeated Carolyn Isler, 6-3, 6-1.

Olympia Park

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER,

Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates.

To the Sports Editor:

Baseball stars are not the only kind of stars that interest me in my "old" age—as some of the boys insist on regarding me. Real stars have been on a fascination. I think if more people would find out about the stars they would realize that we all are small potatoes at best. For instance, did you know that if we show the sun as a globe two feet in diameter the earth on the same scale is the size of an ordinary pea. And that, while light from the sun reaches us in 499 seconds, it takes 4 3-10 years for light to reach us from the next nearest sun, or star. Put that in your pipe and smoke it the next time you feel blue.

HONUS WAGNER.

By PHIL GRABOWSKI

The Morgan Blue Birds will engage the Staabs, of Elliott, in a Bracket VII game of the senior division in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tournament at Bridgeville. The Staabs tossers, who played a 7-7 tie with the bracket-leading Weise Newsies are still in the running for a place in the playoffs. A defeat this evening will eliminate the Staabs.

Manager Perry Thomas' Campbell Lunch Shamrocks will meet the Solomons in a practice softball game on the Peabody High School Field. The teams will play with a 14-inch ball. The Campbells are scheduled to play the S. A. O'Toole Club tomorrow at Hazelwood.

Manager Harry Staubach will take his Hunzeker Radiator team to Verona this evening to play the Blues Chasers in a Bracket III contest of the senior division on the Veronian field. Al (Speed) Anderson will do the pitching for the Hunzekers.

The U. S. Engineers and the Koppers Coal teams scored victories in Bracket I of the senior competition to remain in the running for a playoff berth. The Engineers trounced Main and Company, 16 to 3, while the Koppers team won easily from the Travelers, 14 to 2.

Although their fielding was ragged, the Commercial Garage softballers managed to take a slugfest from the Overbrook Independents, 12 to 9, in a Bracket V game of the senior division at Moultrie Park yesterday.

It was Pitcher Irving Brenner's and Joey De Battista's hitting that carried the Commercials on to victory. Brenner collected four straight safeties and flied out on his last trip to the plate. Joey had a perfect day at the rubber. He got four hits and a base on balls. His fielding was spectacular.

If the Fort Black Community Club defeats the Snubs in its last game in Bracket V competition, the Blacks will have to play the Commercials for the bracket championship, but if the Snubs win, the Commercials will not have to meet the Community Club to decide the winner.

SOFTBALL SLANTS

Manager Peter McBarron's Modern Food team assured itself a place in the playoffs by overwhelming the Harwick Red Sox, 29 to 5, in a Bracket I game of the girls' division. The Moderns have won five games and lost only one.

Marion Kent, Modern leftfielder, hit safely five times to lead her team in batting. Ruth Cargo and Helen Bercic played a fine game in the field.

The C. J. Wahls will oppose the Goodwill Industries tomorrow in a Bracket II game of the senior class at Marshall Field.

STOCKS' RISE DEPENDS ON U. S. PLANS

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, July 24.—Industrial activity rose a little last week. The gain, however, was not very encouraging, since it was partly due to comparison with the extraordinarily sharp slump in the first week of July, and partly to artificial factors. Few observers take it to indicate a sustained turn for the better.

As usual with the various New Deal spurts, I note that there seems to be a tendency in industrial production to pick up more than commercial lines or consumption. Thus the sharpest rise came in automobile production, and this was the chief factor in the little rise in steel production. But despite strenuous sales effort, motor production appears to be out-running retail purchases of cars, and in general the statistics of car loadings, retail trade, and bank clearings are backward.

As usual, too, there is the tendency to get the cart before the horse. Prices are marked up first. Then speculative buying comes in. But earned purchasing power and buying for ultimate consumption do not increase. Thus the rise in cotton prices on account of drought conditions in the Southwest was the chief factor in an increased "demand" for cotton goods.

BANK DEBITS LOWER

Both railway carloadings and bank debits last week were appreciably below a year ago. Incidentally, the same was true of steel and lumber production. These facts are not very significant in a statistical sense, because of the abnormal pre-inflation spurt last July. But they are significant as leading to public disillusionment concerning the New Deal as a business recovery program.

About the only things which are higher than a year ago are automobile production, commodity prices, unused bank deposits, public debt, and taxes. More persons are "employed," but strangely enough they are producing smaller quantities of goods and buying less.

Last week, carloadings and the volume of bank checks drawn, made less than seasonal gains. Retail trade was backward, and mail order sales appear to be actually running below a year ago, on account of drought conditions. Wholesale trade was very spotty as retailers are limiting purchases for the fall. The Southwest, which was formerly so active as a result of government spending, has now slipped badly, and reports from St. Louis and Kansas City are not favorable.

One influence causing the setback in the stock market has been growing doubt about the hoped for fall expansion in business. I can see no basis for forecasting that far ahead, however, for the reason that prediction is impossible when everything depends upon what the President and his little group of advisors will do.

MORE SPENDING NEEDED

It does seem unlikely that there will be much of a fall rise unless the New Dealers dole out a great deal of money. This condition seems to make it all the more probable that this is just what they will do. They badly need to hold their political ground in the fall elections. But labor unrest is widespread, the NRA is subject to increasing attacks, and farm discontent is growing. (Witness the attacks on the Bankhead cotton scheme in Texas). So a fall spending and lending spree seems to be the best bet.

The recent talk of "conservative" government financing in the shape of a long-term bond issue is interesting. But, if this is really contemplated, it will only increase public debt and lead to more spending, which are the surest ways to currency inflation.

I doubt the story. The Treasury could perhaps float a moderate issue by forcing the banks to take more bonds. But if our currency is to be stabilized the government will have to cut its spending and balance its budget. These steps are not at all probable, so the currency will remain unstable, and there can be no real investment market for bonds.

Tin Consumption Up 27% for Year

NEW YORK, July 24.—World consumption of tin during the year ended with May, 1934, amounted to approximately 129,600 long tons, compared with 101,765 tons consumed in preceding year, an increase of 27 per cent, according to the International Tin Research and Development Council.

Trade Decline Exceeds Seasonal Precedent

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor.

BUSINESS IS QUIET and, in its present drifting state, provides no indication upon which predictions for the future may be based.

Declines in production and trade appear to have reached more than seasonal proportions, but this may be due to abnormal conditions such as exist in the steel industry.

There are no developments in sight which appear likely to bring about any great changes in the volume of business before the end of the summer. After that time we may expect to have some basis on which to judge the general trend.

* * *

Conference Board Sees Recession

COMMENTING ON recent business developments, the National Industrial Conference Board in its last monthly bulletin declared:

"Declines in production and trade of more than seasonal proportions were recorded in June and the first half of July. The downturn in June, terminating a succession of advances begun last December, brought business activity down to the general level of February. Commodity and security prices showed moderate net advances in June and the first two weeks in July.

"Productive activity declined in the last six weeks. More than seasonal setbacks were observed in automobile output, construction contracts awarded, steel and iron production, textile apparel output, and bituminous coal production. Electric power output in June showed the usual seasonal increase."

* * *

Price Trend Shows Change

EVIDENCE IS gathering that a change is taking place in the rising tide of prices. The conference board's index of commodity prices at wholesale advanced in June, continuing the upward trend noted since January and interrupted only once in April, but the increase was due entirely to rises in agricultural products and foods. All other items either were unchanged or exhibited a slight downward tendency. The rise in agricultural products apparently was due largely to bad weather conditions and is not significant of any general price movement. The June index, taking 1926 at a base of 100, moved to 74.5 from 73.7, an increase of 1.1 per cent.

STOCKS FAIL IN ATTEMPT TO RALLY

NEW YORK, July 24.—(AP.)—Stocks attempted to rally today, but the effort was rather feeble and met with little response from most operators who while generally expecting at least a temporary technical recovery, were more cautious than courageous.

After an irregular opening, due partly to the closing out of an assortment of thinly margined accounts, gains of fractions to around a point were recorded by a number of the more recently depressed shares. Trading activity became somewhat dull on the upturn and the list later exhibited further spottiness. The fact that selling was not so persistant though, tended to aid sentiment a bit. There was no news of consequence.

Commodities were a trifle nervous. Corn was again resistant, but wheat and some of the other cereals lagged. Cotton was again heavy. There were only slight changes in rubber and silver. After early heaviness, rail bonds showed signs of betterment. International dollar rates were narrow.

Some commentators warned of the danger of too much bearishness when gloom is so prevalent and the markets are inclined to violent movements.

It was recalled that in the past heavy selling of securities has frequently brought in banking support. In the current situation, however, considerable doubt was expressed as to just how much protective buying was being undertaken in view of the prohibitions of the new exchange control law.

While various trade analysts were estimating a decline in third quarter corporation profits, with the view that the mid-summer lull in business is much greater than had been expected, there were still hopes of a substantial fall improvement. At the same time brokers reported the inflation idea still persists in many quarters, the theory being that the lower prices go, the greater the probability of drastic currency expansion.

J. & L. REPORTS NET PROFIT

Showing the first quarterly profit since early in 1931 the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation turned the corner in the three months ended June 30, 1934. Net income after deducting taxes, depreciation, depletion and interest was $886,252. This compared with net losses of $1,924,524 in the first quarter of this year and of $1,682,801 in the second quarter of 1933.

Due to the loss in the first quarter, the statement for the first six months of this year showed a net loss of $1,038,272 as compared with $3,743,446 in the first half of 1933.

Reserves for depreciation and depletion in the first quarter amounted to $1,419,622 in comparison with $1,201,555 in the corresponding period of the previous year.

WHEAT TAKES SHARP FALL

CHICAGO, July 24.—Material setbacks of grain values took place early today. Rains in spring wheat territory northwest, together with prospects of a break in the heat wave had a noticeable bearish influence.

Opening ¼-⅞ cent off, September new, 99¼-99½ cents, wheat afterward sagged further, and then rallied somewhat. Corn started ⅛-½ cent down, but later recovered.

SQUIRREL HILL, 5

Cast Into Eden

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

CHAPTER IV.

There came again from the dense scrub farther back and abreast of them that sinister inhuman cry, with its derisive note. Linda grabbed Jerome by the arm.

"This island is inhabited by some sort of monsters. Half man, half beasts."

"Well, come on," he said impatiently. "We can tell something about them from their tracks."

As they hurried on she said, "I'm scared, Jerry. Beasts don't steal clothes and set boats adrift. But why should anybody want to keep us here? And that yell certainly wasn't human."

"I don't know what to make of it, unless they're baboons. But you'd hardly expect them to clear the grapnel and shove the boat off so that she'd drift away."

They came to the spot where the boat had been moored. Not an article was to be seen. Jerome's shirt and trousers and shoes and socks that he had spread out to dry had disappeared.

The sand was scuffed to some extent by various traces including those made by himself. But all of these were indistinguishable because the sand here was dry and deep and retained no distinct impressions. What was most puzzling, the firmer sand below high water mark was very fine and hard, and while it showed some faint impressions these were of a blurred scraped sort, as if something had been dragged along to obliterate whatever had been left.

On a moment's thought Jerome solved this. "Whoever cast off the boat must have swiped the sail. It was furled and stopped and he took it by the two ends and hauled it up the beach after him."

"Then it's a person," Linda said. "A human. But that horrid cry or jeer wasn't human."

He stared at the jungle. "Somebody lives in there somewhere. We've got to locate him, whoever or whatever he may be. We can't go on like this."

She said, "All undressed and nowhere to go. But we'd be torn to pieces if we tried to explore that scrub. Especially our feet."

Won't Stay Alone

"You stay here while I look round a bit.

"Not me. Alone with that horror watching me perhaps."

"Then wait while I go back a little way. I'll keep within hailing distance."

"That would be more than grabbing distance. No, sir."

One thing only had been left, the oar that Jerome had driven into the sand to hold the boat heeled over while he examined the tear in the bottom. He waded out and broke this at the neck of the blade, then gave the stump to Linda.

"Here's a club. If anything comes near, whale at it with the butt. Luckily you're a rugged girl."

"You've said it, Jerry." Her voice was ironic. "Back there on the yacht I was swearing because I'd gained seven pounds on the silly cruise. I shan't have to worry any longer about going Rubenesque. More apt to die of thirst. I'm swallowing sawdust now."

There was nothing strange that neither gave a though to their lack of clothes. She was superbly made, less athletic than of a splendid femininity. Her dread was being replaced by hunger and even worse by thirst.

Jerome left her and went back through the fringe of palms and started to push his way into the bush. He had to be careful of his bare feet. Before he gained fifty yards his sport shirt was flecked with blood from thorn scratches.

Seek Trail

Whoever had made off with their goods could hardly drag them through such a tangle. Somewhere there must be a path. He came back to Linda. She looked at him with her mouth drawn down.

"If that's what the trekking's like I see where I'd be in a few minutes. Stark!"

"Worse. Skin torn to ribbons. It won't do. Let's go along the edge and look for a trail."

Even this was rough going but proved encouraging. They came to where a little stream pierced the jungle and disappeared in a clear pool behind a mass of rock. The water was sweet and fairly cool and they drank eagerly.

"Let's get into that," Linda said, and stretched out on the sand in about a foot and a half of water. Jerome bathed his scratches.

They started up the stream. This was easy going. The jungle deepened, furnishing a cool heavy shade. The size of the trees increased. Before they had gone 300 yards they were startled by the shrill ringing crow of a cock.

"That's one thing we can eat," Jerome said. "Somebody lives here."

They came to a smooth ledge of rock that was sheer for about five feet and covered with fine moss of a vivid green. The little stream poured over it in an exquisite water fall. They made their way round the natural dam and looked amazed at what might ne described as a chapel in Paradise.

Find Fairyland

Linda drew in her breath deeply and let it out in a gasp of rapture. Jerome could only stare. Coming from the hot desolation of the sand even the cool mossy arcade of the brook had not been able to prepare them for such natural beauty as was here.

There was a wide deep pool. Around its edge the jungle had been cleared of undergrowth, leaving only the larger trees with their heavy foliage that let through no more than flickering sunbeams.

Farther back they could see the edge of a small plantation of citrus fruits that were green and yellow. There were some papaya trees and avocades and the bright red points of coffee beans glowed like embers. There were huge clusters of bananas, cocoa and pandanrus palms, and a great profusion of brilliant flowers. Here and there flamboyants blazed through the heavy shade like the red sectors of lighthouses through the murk of night.

"Fairyland!" Linda murmured.

Near the head of the pool was a low stone house with screened windows and a veranda. A trellis leading off from it was covered with jasmine of which the odor perfumed all the premises. These had a carefully tended look. Yet there was no indication of occupancy; no scent of wood smoke, nor utensils nor any evidence of present tenantry. It gave the impression of being tangible and yet detached from further phase of human habitation. It seemed suspended in a half world of its own.

Synopsis

Jerome Crain, young naval architect, and a wealthy society girl, named Linda, are guests aboard the yacht owned by the millionaire, Thomas Tucker, anchored at San Cristabal. Jerome and Linda are bored with one another and when the other guests go ashore, the young couple, each believing the other has gone, stays on board. One of the sailors contracts fever and the yacht is quarantined. No one is allowed to come aboard or leave. But Jerome and Linda escape in a skiff, landing on a strange island. Linda wanders off while Jerome repairs the boat. Later he finds her scantily clad, the clothes she took off to dry missing. Linda and Jerome have the uncomfortable feeling of being followed. Suddenly an eerie cry issues from the jungle. Frightened, they hurry back to the beach in time to see their boat—which Jerome had tied securely — drifting away and most of his clothes gone, too.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

It's a good idea to have a room of your own at home, fellows!

And girls too, of course. Maybe you have noticed how much nicer it is to have your Junior Patrol club meetings in a clubhouse all your own. You not only feel more at home, but you can do more as you please and have things more as you like. For instance, for a party, you want to decorate the room the way you like the best, with your Patrol colors perhaps.

It is much the same way with a room of your own. We know that some members live in small houses and apartments where there isn't room for all of them to have a separate room, but even in small houses you may be able to have a cupboard or corner of a room.

Your room or your cupboard ought to be all your own to take care of. You ought to have to dust it and keep it in order. And you ought to be allowed to fix it up the way you want it.

If you have a whole room of your own, you can select any new furniture you buy. We know one fellow who has tried to make his room look like a ship's cabin. He has a clock that looks like a ship's clock, and when it strikes, it strikes like a ship's bell. On the walls are swell pictures of all kinds of ships, especially the big ones that used to carry tea and spices from China to America, all towering with canvas spread high on tall masts.

Hanging from the ceiling is a light that looks like a ship's lantern. Even his bed is like the captain's bunk in a ship at sea. And in the glass cupboards near the window he has all kinds of odd things from all over the world.

So we hope all Junior Patrol members can start fixing a room or corner all their own. It gives you a dandy chance to learn how much things cost, and why some things are good looking and why others aren't. It's wise to look at many rooms, and pictures of good furniture and paintings before you buy anything, too.

Hurry along those contest letters, fellows! What is the best outing you ever had? Tell us about it right now in a letter of not more than 100 words. Then shoot your letter along to the Junior Patrol Contest, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Only Junior Patrol members are allowed to compete, so be sure to put your badge or card number on your letter.

Legal Diet -:- Daily Short Short-Story

By MAE HOUSE

"You are charged," said Judge Bingham, "with disorderly conduct and with committing assault on an officer of the law."

Mr. Angell tried to look brave, but his short fat legs trembled so that he could scarcely stand. His hair was rumpled, his coat torn, and there was a wild look in his eyes, as if he had been out all night. Which he had.

"Well," prompted the judge impatiently, "have you nothing to say in your defense? When the Purple Parrot was raided last night you were found in an upstairs room with a young woman who was presumably, not your wife. Am I right?"

"Y-yes, your honor," he sputtered. "I mean no, your honor," he amended hastily. "That is, it's not as bad as it sounds. You see," the little man's voice fell almost to a whisper as he leaned toward the judge. "I—I that is—I had a bad case of indigestion, your honor."

The blue-coated giant standing beside him suddenly burst into a roar of laughter that echoed through the courtroom.

"Order in the court" shouted the judge. "Now tell us, Mr. Angell, what has your digestion to do with your morals?"

"A very good deal," Mr. Angell assured him eagerly. "When my wife——"

The judge leaned back in his chair and closed his eyes. "Go on with your story," he sighed wearily.

Mr. Angell made a fresh start. His wife, he said, had suddenly been called to Prairie Center to take care of a sick sister. On his way home from the station, Mr. Angell had met an old friend, Joe Mooney, and, together, they had dined and wined—a sort of a celebration, er, that is, a consolation dinner.

And what a dinner! After a couple of drinks things took on a rosy glow, and it was easy to laugh and see the point to a story, even when it didn't have any point. And during this delightful repast two young ladies attached themselves to their table. One, a whipped-cream blonde, who answered to the name of Flossie, seemed particularly smitten by his charms. Mr. Angell had the grace to blush.

After a while Joe and the other girl disappeared, and Mr. Angell was left alone with Flossie. But every heaven has its purgatory, and Mr. Angell's purgatory began at the pit of his stomach. In less time than it takes to tell, all the demons in hades were pitching their forks into his gastronomical cavity, and he was carried upstairs, half-conscious.

"A fine story," sneered the Judge as he stopped dozing and sat upright. ". . . and you a married man! I'll have to make an example of you."

Numb terror crept slowly over Mr. Angell. One thought alone was uppermost in his mind. Disgraced!

"Please, your honor," he begged, "I swear I'm innocent."

The judge pursed his lips judicially and put the tips of his fingers together as he considered the problem before him.

"When," he asked at last, "will your wife return?"

Mr. Angell swallowed the tears that were drowning his Adam's apple.

"In two weeks," he wailed. "Oh, please, Mr. Judge, "I'll pay any fine—I'll do anything you say, only don't send me to jail."

But the judge seemed to freeze.

"Fifty dollars fine and two weeks in jail," he ordered. "A diet of bread and water," he added sarcastically, " will do wonders for your indigestion. Next case!" said the judge, settling into his judicial pose.

When Mr. Angell met his wife at the railroad station his suit was several sizes too large for him, but he wore a determined smile and presented her with a bouquet of violets.

"Why, Archie," she exclaimed in pleased surprise, "how dear and thoughtful of you!" She lifted her cheek for a dutiful kiss and was surprised by the warmth of his greeting.

"You don't know," he breathed fervently, "how glad I am to see you. If you had stayed another week I'd have died!"

"Poor boy," said Mary Angell, "I'll never leave you again. Was it so dreadful?"

Mr. Angell sighed gustily. "It was terrible!" he complained.

His wife stopped at a telephone booth. "Do be a good boy and get my bags," she said, "while I make a telephone call."

Before she dialed the number Many Angell watched her husband trot off toward the baggage window.

"Hello," she said. "Is this Judge Bingham's chambers? Let me speak to the judge's secretary . . . Hello, Flossie, this is Mary Angell. I just got back and want to thank you for the good work. No, he doesn't suspect anything . . . Two weeks, you say, on bread and water? He looks much better . . . No, I didn't worry; I knew he'd be safer in jail than in a hospital—at least, they didn't cut him to pieces!"

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Somebody is always dragging out that old stand-by about looking pretty and holding your husband's love. Any woman with brains clicking looks pretty for her own sake. Self-respect demands it.

Husbands don't go round the house looking particularly handsome; evidently they aren't afraid of losing love. Men have an ardent passion for old clothes. Give away a favorite worn out bathrobe or pants that have gone fishing for twenty year's and there's a big fight on.

It would be just too bad if a husband's affection can't survive the sight of his wife in a complexion pack or with her hair scrambled. There are times when every woman is unmasked, looks the way she is without aid of beauty props or war paint. What of it?

There's allurement in a nice voice and there's charm in a nice laugh. Laughs, my hearties, are not all alike, and don't you laugh at that. Snickers and giggles are nerve snappers. A first-class laugh is worth money. Sometimes it is a sly, dry chuckle that starts others laughing. Sometimes it is a spontaneous outburst, and very jolly that is, too.

To the items in the beauty questionnaire, we shall have to add this one: "Is your laugh attractive?" Listen to yourself some time and find out.

Written in Thanks

O, tree, because you have sheltered her,
The lift of your leaves is lovelier
Than the movements of other trees,
And the green of your boughs is a fairer thing
Than all the green garlands of waking spring
That flutter and bend in the breeze.

O, tree, through the parching days of drought
When the sunlight burned like a furnace mouth
And the spirit of Heat stalked, free,
When the wind to your branches came rustling through
And waking the voices of music in you,
You have sung her the song of the sea.

You have sung her the song of the cool, green tide,
Of waves where seaweed and white foam ride,
You have lulled her to rest, to ease;
O, tree, because you have been kind to her,
The lift of your leaves is lovelier
Than the grace of all other trees!

Politics Grows a Set of Wings

The office has gone forth over the gossip grapevine route that boys with political jobs must stay out of politics.

That's strange. Politics is how they got the job.

Nevertheless, and not-with-standing, government employes cannot step around shilling for their bosses and collecting unwilling bonuses and stubborn contributions from other employes.

It seems that some of the lads in the silver and copper mints thought it would be a neat gesture to flash up a campaign fund for their political patron.

You would imagine that a shillaber working in a mint would stay after hours and stamp out enough hot coin to elect anybody. But there seems to be some foolish sentiment against it. The Secretary of the Treasury objects to day and night bookkeeping. That's what makes him the greatest secretary since Alexander Hamilton. There's a phrase that overworked, the 40-hour-week last administration. We used it a lot and pointed with pride. Ask any man to point out the greatest patriot since G. Washington, Esq., and he will stick his finger in his own eye.

But we will throw another loop over the original topic and wash it up. Political employes have always been supposed to remember who got 'em the jobs. Usually administration aphasia and temporary loss of memory has resulted in permanent loss of everything.

If you didn't back into the shafts and stand without hitching, you were given the bum's rush to less elysian fields where there was no graft nor giving in bribery. You were a traitor to the party which would stand for no vermin on its golden comb.

You were worse than that. If you showed any germs of revolt or got a filibustering fever, they ran you out so fast your shoelaces glowed like tungsten filament. Loyalty to the party preceded honesty and probity by a full day's march on fast camels.

Now that has been all changed. You can be honest and still Democratic. And, we hope, Republican. That party being on the loose these days, we have no moral thermometer to register its ethical aberrations.

We do know that this administration has placed itself on record as being against coercion and baksheesh, even in their most pleasant and soothing manifestations. Having all the offices that man can bestow on man, it can afford to was dignified and honest.

And it's the first indication in all the years of government that any national bureau has asked its heelers and yes-men to lay off the thumb-screws, the political knout and the patronage rack. Though it may be spasmodic hitch-hiking we are on the road to decency.

A Blistering Indictment

The Police Research Commission Makes Some Praiseworthy Recommendations

The Police Research Commission's finding, as disclosed in its preliminary report to City Council, that graft and favoritism were rife in the Bureau of Police under former administrations comes as no surprise.

That these conditions continued after Ben R. Marshall became Superintendent of Police and A. Marshall Bell became Director of Public Safety is less easy to believe. The evidence on which the commission bases its charge that "improper influence and graft . . . were not dislodged by the present administration" is not, in our opinion, convincing beyond the shadow of a doubt.

We would like to see the charge investigated further and, if the testimony warrants, prosecutions instituted. Certainly this is no matter to be dismissed with a reprimand. If what the commission charges is true, the District Attorney should prepare to draw up indictments for the consideration of the grand jury.

Aside from the question of individual guilt, the commission's report is notable for its arraignment of the Pittsburgh police system as a system.

The commission's indignation at the discovery that in times of labor trouble or threatened trouble the police were given "bonuses" by employers of the disgruntled workmen is justified. The police cannot be expected to give impartial service in strikes if they are in the pay of the employers.

The recommendations for the training of police, for removing them from the corrupting influence of factional politics, and for their protection from various unfair practices relating to their pay, pension and retirement, are commendable.

There is too much meat in the report for offhand digestion. Here is material that calls for long and careful study.

The commission has rendered a service and justified its appointment.

How Europe Does It

Pittsburgh Will Find Suggestions for Beauty in the Cities of the Old World

To the voices of Edgar Kaufmann, the merchant; Frank Vittor, the sculptor; Vic Dwyer, of the Lions' Club; Public Health Director Ray P. Moyer and the others who have been appealing lately for more beauty for Pittsburgh, is now added that of the Rev. John E. Nelson, B. D., pastor of the Gustavus Adolphus Lutheran Church, "the friendly church on Friendship avenue."

Mr. Nelson protests against "such vandalism as cluttering up the site of the Cathedral of Learning with a number of small buildings." He quotes "a very famous artist," whose name is withheld because he was not talking for publication, as saying it will "ruin" the beauty of the Cathedral to erect other structures on the 14-acre quadrangle.

Mr. Nelson goes on to say that a mistake was made in squeezing in the beautiful new East Liberty Presbyterian Church between the skyscrapers and noise of the East Liberty business section. It should have been placed on the bluff overlooking Fifth avenue, near the junction of Fifth and Highland avenues, he thinks.

An error of judgment was also made, according to Mr. Nelson, in placing the Mellon Institute on its Fifth avenue site instead of on a hill, where there would be no other buildings to distract attention from its beauty and majesty.

We are asked to study European cities famous for their beauty—Paris, for example, where all houses have been razed for a block or so around every celebrated edifice, that it may stand in solitary grandeur.

Mr. Vittor expresses something of the same thought in appealing for the acquisition by the public of land alongside the boulevards, so that they may be lined with trees and shrubbery instead of advertising billboards and hot dog stands.

With its 27 hills and three rivers Pittsburgh has exceptional opportunities for beauty. But let us not beguile ourselves—we have not made use of them.

The men who built Pittsburgh were hard workers, intent on making money. They saw in the river banks not opportunities for beautiful esplanades and parkways such as are found on the river banks of the principal European cities, but sites for factories and freight yards. They thought of parks and public squares as "loafing places for bums," and made no provision for them.

Our early captains of industry seemed to think of Pittsburgh only as a place to make money. When they had accumulated fortunes and had leisure in which to think of beauty and the other pleasures of life, they went elsewhere to live.

But Pittsburgh has now become a place of permanent residence for nearly a million people, and for their sake the city should be made as attractive as it is humanly possible to make it.

The swelling cry for beauty is a hopeful sign.

Pipe Down, Horn Tooters!

The Police Should Admonish Autoists Who Needlessly Set Up a Din

Automobile horns are dangerous playthings which should be curbed.

Furious tooting of horns on six cars on the Staten Island ferryboat Dongan Hills almost cost the life of Mrs. Annie Evans.

Unavoidably delayed from leaving the ferry by the fact that the stork was paying an advance visit to Mrs. Evans in the car ahead of them, the drivers of the six cars set up a dreadful din. The effect on Mrs. Evans was serious and would have been more serious if policemen had not silenced the inconsiderate tooters.

This, of course, is an extreme example of the bad effect of automobile horn tooting. But it differs only in degree from hundreds of other cases.

How often, in Pittsburgh, motorists whose progress is delayed for a few seconds or minutes by a mishap to a car ahead or a traffic jam show their annoyance by continuously tooting their horns!

The tooting does no good. It doesn't hurry up matters. Indeed it delays them. And it brings pain and suffering to persons in the neighborhood who are ill or trying to rest, or whose nerves are not of the strongest.

The police should put a stop to this stupid, unnecessary and harmful practice.

Pipe down, horn tooters! It may be fun for you, but it's agony for the rest of us.

Not Wanted Here!

The Governor of Iowa has set the rest of the country a good example.

Fifteen undesirable aliens were convicted of crime in his State.

Instead of burdening the public purse with the cost of supporting these lawbreakers in prison the Governor suspended their sentences—on the condition that all fifteen should be IMMEDIATELY deported.

If, however, any of them remains in the country or returns here the suspension of sentence will be automatically revoked, and the alien offender will have to serve his time.

That, as the Ellis Island Committee pointed out to Congress and Secretary of Labor Perkins, is exactly the way to deal with foreign-born criminals and racketeers—in fact, most of them can be deported without court trials.

And while we are about it we should include among the deportables the alien agitators who want to subvert constitutional government and American institutions.

How Roosevelt Settled The Coal Strike

By James T. Williams, Jr.

DURING THE seven years of Theodore Roosevelt's presidency, the most serious conflict between wage-earners and wage-payers which put in jeopardy the public safety was the Pennsylvania coal strike of 1902.

As the general strike which gripped San Francisco and adjacent communities threatened a food famine, so the Pennsylvania coal strike of 1902 threatened a fuel famine not only for the people of Pennsylvania but for the people of many other states dependent upon the anthracite coal mines of the Keystone State for their fuel.

All his biographers agree that the settlement of the coal strike 32 years ago this autumn was due to the intervention of President Roosevelt, they also agree that his settlement of this strike was a service to the nation which "ranks in history as one of the most patriotic and beneficient of his career."

In the spring of 1902, 150,000 miners in the anthracite coal region went on strike. This started a conflict which was waged with increasing bitterness through the summer and early autumn of that year. There were many acts of violence, of which the non-union miners employed by the operators to take the place of the strikers were the victims.

Governor Slow In Responding

THE GOVERNOR of Pennsylvania appeared unable or unwilling to discharge his responsibility for the maintenance of law and order and for the protection of life and property. He was exceedingly slow in responding to appeals from the coal region for protection. As matters grew worse, he was finally prevailed upon to send about 2,000 guardsmen into the mine fields, but this force proved altogether too small to perform its mission.

After rioting in which some 20 persons were killed and 40 injured and a great deal of valuable property was destroyed, the rising tide of criticism in Pennsylvania was reinforced by public alarm that spread to other states. Neither criticism at home nor alarm elsewhere stirred the Governor into effective action.

Even after it was obvious that the state forces were insufficient to protect life or property in the strike-stricken area, the Governor persisted in his refusal to request the Federal Government to come to the aid of his state.

Meantime, apprehension grew in other parts of the country as the approach of winter brought with it the threat of a coal famine. The Governor of Massachusetts, the Mayors of New York and other large cities then informed President Roosevelt officially, what of course he already knew, that the coming winter would be one of suffering for many millions of people unless the shipment of coal from Pennsylvania could be quickly resumed.

Conference Called In Washington

THIS WAS the situation which President Roosevelt faced when on October 1, 1902, he determined that federal intervention in defense of the public safety for a large part of the country was essential.

Mr. Roosevelt sent an invitation to the coal operators and representatives of the striking miners to come to Washington for a conference on October 3. This conference was held in the temporary White House on Lafayette Square, where the President was then residing—the White House being then as now closed for repair.

Mr. Roosevelt in the brief statement with which he opened the conference said:

"I disclaim any right or duty to intervene in this way upon legal grounds or upon any official relation that I bear to the situation; but the urgency and the terrible nature of the catastrophe impending over a large portion of our people in the shape of a winter fuel shortage impel me, after much anxious thought, to believe that my duty requires me to use whatever influence I personally can to bring an end to a situation that has become literally intolerable. With all the earnestness there is in me I ask that there be an immediate resumption of operations in the coal mines in some such way as will, without a day's unnecessary delay, meet the crying needs of the people."

Mr. Roosevelt did not invite any discussion at that time of the respective claims of the opposing sides. Instead, he appealed directly to their "patriotism, to the spirit that sinks personal consideration and makes individual sacrifices for the general good."

The operators were at first opposed to arbitration. They showed their resentment at what they seemed to regard as unwarranted interference by Mr. Roosevelt.

Then the President sent Mr. Root to New York and, following a day's conference with J. P. Morgan, an agreement was drawn up to arbitrate the strike by commissioners to be appointed by the President. The operators and the miners finally signed this agreement with some minor modifications.

The coal strike was settled and another victory for the administration of Theodore Roosevelt became a part of history.

ABOARD SS. MALOLO, July 24.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Radio operator woke me middle of night, telling me they got Dillinger. Like to be home, guess it's like Armistice Day. Well, the moral is, he just wouldn't take advice. The better element warned him to stay away from those movies, they would be a bad influence on him. Cable me at once (your expense), what picture it was got him. Hope it was mine. WILL.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

If You Want to Be Popular Don't Be Perfect

Lonely? Nagged, perhaps, by that secret terror of solitude which begins for many of us around thirty?

Outwardly things may seem secure enough. A good job—work you like—pleasant quarters. Many a one would envy you—wonder what you're complaining about. But inwardly, life's beginning to assume a sinister emptiness. You don't like to think of the future.

Plenty of genial acquaintances, possibly. Even those who call themselves "close friends." But something's wrong. There's no really intimate companion. And perhaps marriage has passed you by. Or, if it hasn't, it isn't clicking right. Somehow, you feel like an outsider. Even with your own people you feel left out.

It wouldn't be so hard for you to bear, you feel, if you understood the reason. But you don't. No matter how hard you try—and you certainly do try—you can't seem to break through that invisible wall which seems to separate you from other people.

Yes, I know. This sounds like one of those halitosis ads. But it's no joke to you—is it? Good heavens, no! Sometimes you wonder if there's any crueler agony on earth than just this feeling of utter loneliness.

And you've done everything. Everything. You dress nicely. Go to the right places. Do the right things. Entertain generously. You're sympathetic, helpful, always willing to do anything for anyone—aren't you. And you've almost made a religion of being cheerful, no matter how badly you feel. You're always laughing—no one has ever heard you whining.

People seem to appreciate it, too. They're always telling you their troubles. And yet—no one ever really takes you into their lives.

Time and again you've seen the love you'd have given your heart to have, wasted on some silly, selfish person who'd never reciprocate. On worthless men—on naggy, complaining women. Why? WHY? Where do you fail? What is that mysterious quality which makes some people loved—yet which you lack?

There's no mystery about it. It's all based on the oldest trait in human nature . . . that trait which is the source of all the finest things we do, as well as all our cussedness—self-esteem.

I like myself. You like yourself. We both like people who help us like ourselves more. And we don't like people who give us no chance to like ourselves, or who actually belittle us.

And that's exactly what those humans do who are always cheerful, helpful, generous and efficient.

Does the world appreciate such model deportment? It does not! To the contrary, it regards it with suspicion, boredom and loathing. And rightly so—for it is not natural for anyone to be so perfectly behaved all the time.

All normal people have their "off moments" . . . times when they are silly and selfish, clumsy and weak. Naturally we suspect that there's "something funny" about creatures who are impossibly perfect, and inwardly accuse them of being artificial or downright sneaky. We also resent such behavior as a personal affront. For obviously it shows up our own cussedness and cramps our style.

Why do we always have a sneaking liking for Villains and a frank loathing for Saints? Why does the Dizzy Little Twist with the pee-wee brain get the orchids, while the Brave, Sweet, Patient, Unselfish, Cheerful, Golden-Hearted Gal merely gets the gate? That is why.

BECAUSE, BEING HUMAN, WE LIKE SOMEBODY WHO GIVES US A BREAK . . . AND PARAGONS DON'T.

If you want to be popular, don't be perfect. Come down off the pedestal and be one of the gang. Show your weakness. Let the other fellow know that you're a bit of a fool—thereby giving him a chance to strut his stuff.

You love those who need and admire you—don't you? Then remember—that rule works both ways.

FIRST CAR RIDE ALONE!

By Winifred Black

Mary Brooke took her first street car ride alone not so long ago.

Of course you remember Mary Brooke—who has now reached the mature age of 7.

Her eyes are a little deeper, softer brown, and her hair, of the same hue, curls softly about her little round face. Just to watch her skip down the street on her way to school brings sunshine into the heart.

But Mary Brooke's mother is rather careful of her little girl and always sees that she has someone with her when she goes out. So when small John's mother invited Mary Brooke to go to the matinee with small John, she, of course, was quite delighted and asked mother if she couldn't come home alone on the street car if John's mother would put her on the car.

Promptly at 6 o'clock mother went out to meet the car, and there, standing at the front, almost too excited to wait till the car stopped, stood Mary Brooke.

Oh, yes, she had had a very good time with John and the matinee was very good — all about Hansel and Gretel, you know. But I'm afraid that the matinee and everything else was for the time being overshadowed by Mary Brooke's thrill of her first car ride alone.

On the way up the hill she quite proudly told mother how she had given up her seat on the car to a very nice old lady who got on a few blocks back.

"I'm sorry you had to come on such a crowded car, darling—there didn't seem to be many people on when you got off."

"Oh, no," replied Mary Brooke, "the car wasn't crowded, but I just thought I'd give her my seat—maybe she'd like it better than the others."

And dear little Mary never suspected the cause of a sudden coughing attack mother had or why mother's face got so red.

What in the world is the use of knowing your way about if you can't let other people appreciate it, too?

Mary Brooke knew what was expected of little folk on street cars when nice old ladies got on—what mattered it that there were plenty of vacant seats? Something had to be done to let her sophistication be known.

But, whisper, wouldn't you have given a pretty penny to have been somewhere on that car and watched that little episode?

I would.

ISN'T IT SO?

High fliers oftentimes get the hardest falls.

It keeps a lot of people moving to get enough money to pay rent.

Another office that always seeks the man is the tax collector's office.

Folks are considered old-fashioned if they still have their appendix.

The meanest boy in the neighborhood always belongs to someone else.

Salvage the Debts!

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

FOR ALL OUR maudlin and ill-advised generosity toward debtors, we have earned for ourselves the sobriquet—UNCLE SHYLOCK.

In her recent businesslike dealings with Germany's threatened default on bonds held by British investors, the United Kingdom set an example for us as to how to handle a Welsher.

Likewise, Germany, in her treaty early in the year with Chile, gave a clue to how a realistic nation insists on debt collection. It provided that 20 per cent of the proceeds from the sale of Chilean nitrates in Germany shall be allotted to liquidation of Chile's outstanding commercial debts.

Secretary Hull is to be commended for his recent vigor in discussing commercial debts with Germany.

Until recently, foreigners took it for granted that the American investor and the United States Treasury were fair game for the alien exploiter.

The international atmosphere will not be clarified until our officials at Washington evolve a practical technique for the collection of the defaulted war debts.

The actual procedure is more or less clearly delineated by the underlying economic facts.

The fine precedent in fact finding set by George N. Peek, special advisor to the President on foreign trade, should be followed in formulating a debt policy.

Our State Department, with the best of intentions, got off on the wrong foot in suggesting that Great Britain pay the debt at least in part in goods, for the record shows that that country habitually buys vastly more than she sells in this country.

John M. Morehead, former minister to Sweden under Mr. Hoover, recently returning from abroad, made a sensible suggestion based on his knowledge of our vast invisible imports from Europe.

Referring specifically to the huge normal American tourist expenditures in Europe, Mr. Morehead proposed that American tourists buy letters of credit directly from the United States Government, which should in turn get the foreign currencies in partial settlement of outstanding debts.

This very practical procedure would enable us to get paid—at least in part—irrespective of the alibi concerning the difficulty of transferring funds across national borders. Mr. Morehead's plan would obviate the transfer problem.

His plan would enable Great Britain to liquidate her obligations and regain her prestige by permitting our tourists to visit Picadilly and to view the Derby. France would get square with us by authorizing our tourists to wander through the Louvre. Italy would liquidate by showing our travelers her art treasures in the Pitti and Uffizzi galleries in Florence.

Our tourists have spent as much as $821,000,000 a year overseas.

In referring to American tourist expenditures, Mr. Morehead said:

"If the tourists were to pay this money into our Treasury and receive letters of credit on European governments, this money could be used in reducing the debts.

"The European governments would issue their own currency on the letters of credit, which would insure the spending of the money in their own countries."

This method could be supplemented by the plan of mobilizing foreign holdings of American property, securities, and bank balances. The proceeds of these could be turned over to the Treasury, and foreign nationals thus deprived of their private property could be reimbursed by their own governments in their home currencies.

This plan too would eliminate knotty problems of transferring funds from country to country.

Great Britain used a similar plan in connection with war time borrowing in this country from private investors. Securities were regimented, and used as collateral for the war loans.

Before our debtors have become too accustomed to default, our government should make a hasty census showing foreign holdings of American securities and property, and then should enter into negotiations for debt collection based on a knowledge of the economic realities.

Once we start to discuss debt collection in terms of actual economic data, instead of vague, moralistic generalities, we shall have made considerable progress toward at least partial salvaging of questionable, frozen national assets.

As a by-product, we shall also be serving notice on the outside world that we are approaching sophistication in financial affairs.

By the same token, by focusing attention on the difficulties of international transfers of funds, we shall warn our own people of the great risk inherent in foreign lending and in unbalanced trade.

Any delay in acting will seriously weaken our ability to collect.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Have you a limousine income and heavy truck manners?

There are many persons of this sort.

Although they have the power and independence which money gives, they are arrogant and unfeeling.

Having all that they need to meet their wants, they deem it unnecessary to be civil and courteous.

They're not dependent upon the public for an income, consequently they think the general run of persons unworthy of their respect.

There is another class that is kind and considerate.

They are the sort who have real breeding back of them.

Money is not a god to them.

It merely represents a means of exchange of what they have for something they want.

They do not pick their friends because of their financial standing.

They appreciate merit and ability no matter in what station it may be found.

They are easy and approachable to those who wish to see them.

In other words, they are real persons, not shams.

Money has not robbed them of fine human traits.
